BRITAIN BACKS PRESIDENT IN NOTE TO RUSSIA

Says She Approves Principles Laid Down in His Historic Message to Congress.

WAR NOT ONE OF CONQUEST

Rejoices Russia Has Announced Intention of Rescuing Poles from Germany.

WISHES HER GODSPEED

Expresses Readiness to Examine, and If Need Be, Revise Treaties Made with Allies.

LONDON, June 11.—In reply to the Russian Government's request for a statement of the British war aims, Great Britain has forwarded to Petrograd a note in which is expressed hearty acceptation and approval of the principles which President Wilson laid down in his historic message to Congress. The British Government believes, broadly speaking, that the agreements made from time to time with Britain's allies are conformable to these standards.

The purpose of Great Britain at the outset, says the note, was to defend the existence of the country and enforce respect for international agreements. Since then there has been added that of "liberating populations oppressed by alien tyranny." The note bespeaks not only the liberation of Poland by Russia, but of that section of Poland within the dominions of the Germanic Empires. Following is the text of the document:

"In the proclamation to the Russian people inclosed with the note it is said that free Russia does not purpose to dominate other peoples or take from them their national patrimony or forcibly occupy foreign territory. In this sentiment the British Government heartily concur. They did not enter the war as a war of conquest; they are not continuing it for such object. Their purpose at the outset was to defend the existence of their country and enforce respect for international engagements. To those objects have now been added that of liberating populations oppressed by alien tyranny.

"They heartily rejoice, therefore, that free Russia has announced her intention of liberating Poland, not only Poland ruled by the old Russian autocracy but equally that within the dominion of the Germanic Empires. In this enterprise the British democracy wish Russia godspeed.

"Beyond everything we must seek such settlement as will secure the happiness and contentment of peoples and take away all legitimate causes of future war.

"The British Government heartily join with their Russian allies in their acceptance and approval of the principles laid down by President Wilson in his historic message to the American Congress. These are the aims for which the British peoples are fighting. These are the principles by which their war policy is and will be guided.

"The British Government believe that, broadly speaking, the agreements they have from time to time made with their allies are conformable to these standards, but if the Russian Government so desire they are quite ready, with the allies, to examine and, if need be, to revise these agreements."

FRENCH APPROVE NOTE.

Say It Shows the World Must Unite to Vanish Autocracy.

PARIS, June 11.—President Wilson's note to Russia today occupies a prominent position in the French newspapers. The general current of editorial opinion strongly approves of it. The Journal des Débats says the note is in reality a message to the Russian people and all the Allies, showing the indispensable necessity of all States based upon liberal principles pursuing the war until victory establishes this liberal principle throughout the world and puts an end to autocracy.

"Mr. Wilson shows," the newspaper continues, "that the entire world, caught in the meshes of Germanic intrigue, is absolutely compelled to break the chains in order to liberate itself. It is necessary, he demonstrates, either to vanquish or to submit to autocracy, that we either must dominate or be dominated.

"Mr. Wilson unmasks the sophism of re-establishing peace on the basis of the status quo ante bellum. While he is against conquest he requires the righting of wrongs and guarantees against their renewal; he wishes no people to be forced to accept a sovereignty, yet each nationality affected will readily understand his meaning."

The Temps gives a prominent place to the note, but makes no comment on it.

La Presse says:

"The document has an elevated philosophic character, which is marked by moderation of purposes expressed and a firm intention of attaining those purposes."

Georges Berthoulat says in La Liberté:

"President Wilson's note to Russia is a compendium of universal democracy that the American Republic invites Russia to study. It is striking, logical, profound and human. Will the Russian democracy in its cradle listen to the American democracy in its full experience?"

LAUDS PRESIDENT'S NOTE.

British Paper Calls It Powerful Piece of Analysis.

LONDON, June 11.—The Manchester Guardian, in a long leader, describes President Wilson's message to Russia as an extraordinary and powerful piece of writing. The paper finds little new in his statement of principles affecting a peace settlement, but says that his

Germany Decides to Hold Americans Taken by Moewe

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Germany has notified the United States that she regards the seventy-four American merchant sailors brought in by the raider Moewe as prisoners of war, and that they will be treated as such.

To insure them adequate care in the prison camp, this Government has arranged to supply the men with additional food and other necessities through Switzerland.

300,000 REGISTER HERE ON FIRST DAY

NO DISORDER REPORTED

Names Recorded by 40,000 Volunteer Men and Women —Mayor Enrolls Early.

More than 40,000 men and women began yesterday the taking of the State military census of all persons between the ages of 16 and 50 years, and at 11 o'clock last night Ernest P. Goodrich, director of the census for New York City, announced that about 300,000 had registered, of whom 100,000 were in Brooklyn and 20,000 in Queens. There are about 4,000 registering places in the city, and most of these were open by 8 o'clock in the morning, while hundreds were ready for business an hour earlier. In many instances the work of registration was delayed owing to the non-delivery of registry cards and other needed documents, but by this morning, it was announced, every registration place would be fully supplied.

At noon the first reports began to come into census headquarters at 261 Broadway. These showed the registration was well within the estimated daily average figured on by the directors. In a few districts enthusiastic registrars reported that if the day's rush was maintained for the rest of this week those districts would have been finished with. In some districts the supply of registration cards ran out in the early afternoon, but the deficiency was quickly made up.

There was no disorder reported in any part of the city, even the shyest of women, according to the registrars, telling their ages without a moment's hesitation. Every schoolhouse is a registration office, as are also most of the libraries and many of the public buildings. One of the busiest of the registry places was the one in the Museum of Natural History. Fifty-three women volunteers helped in the work there.

Eager to Register.

"The force of 40,000 volunteer workers for New York City was literally overwhelmed by the rush. At the headquarters, 261 Broadway, a crowd of persons eager to register and a larger crowd of those seeking information on numerous points of residence, citizenship, and exemption from militia duty jammed the offices. A large store on the ground floor was pressed into service as an emergency registration place, and fifteen volunteer registrars were at work. At the time of closing 522 persons had been registered at this office.

"Two questions were raised repeatedly during the day. One was regarding the rule for absentees from the city. Hundreds of persons called for blanks to take out of town to persons who would not be in the city during the period of registration from June 11 to June 25. Owing to the fact that no way existed for ascertaining the identity of the persons for whom the blanks were sought. The rule against giving blanks to take away from the registration places had to be strictly enforced. Inquirers were directed to send in a written application giving the names and address of persons for whom blanks were needed, and blanks will be sent to them by mail. These blanks must be sworn to before a notary public in order to comply with the law regarding absentees.

"Another question was about exemptions from military duty. The State regulations require that each male citizen or alien between the ages of 18 and 45, who has taken out his first citizenship papers be served with a notice of enrollment in the State Militia. On the back of this form is a notice to the effect that persons claiming exemption are required to file an affidavit setting forth their claims of exemption with the County Clerk of the county in which they reside. This led to much confusion in the County Clerk's offices in New York, Kings and Queens Counties, according to report.

File Exemption Claims.

"Nearly 1,000 men appeared at the office of County Clerk William F. Schneider to file claims of exemption, and hundreds more thronged the offices of the County Clerks in Brooklyn and in Queens. It was explained at the census headquarters that the County Clerk was authorized to grant exemptions only to men in the service of the United States in the army or navy, post office, and custom house departments, and to marines engaged in active sea service. The County Clerk cannot take notice of any other claims of exemption because these are the only classes that are exempt under the rulings of the Adjutant General to date. If a draft of men is ordered for the State militia it is understood that the same procedure will be followed as for a Federal draft, and all persons called out will have to present their claims for exemption on account of dependents, injuries, or other causes, to an Examining Board to be named subsequently. It should be plainly understood that the County Clerk cannot grant any exemptions whatever, nor can he recognize any claims but the four classes already mentioned.

"Mayor Mitchel registered in the afternoon at the City Hall. His enrollment was taken by Director Goodrich, and he was served with a notice of enrollment in the State militia. The Mayor's answers to the questions, 'Do you desire to enlist in the United States Army, the United States Navy, the United States Marine Corps, the New York National Guard, the New York Naval Militia,' were all in the negative. The Mayor said he believed he was best fitted for service in the infantry, and that he could operate a power boat or an automobile. Governor Whitman will also enroll before Director Goodrich, either at Albany or in New York City."

BRITISH CAPTURE ANOTHER MILE OF LINE IN BELGIUM

TAKE SEVEN FIELD GUNS

FRENCH REPEL ASSAULTS

Enemy Makes Several Futile Attempts to Gain Ground on the Aisne.

LONDON, June 11.—By striking another blow at the southern end of their new front in Belgium today the British captured the enemy's trench system over a front of about a mile near La Poterie farm, just one mile due west of Warneton. The operation, which was in the nature of a surprise attack, as seen by the fact that General Haig's troops took seven field guns, was carried out early this morning. During the day the British gained further ground in this area.

Elsewhere on the British front the day has been marked by spirited raiding operations, particularly at several points along La Bassée salient, between Lens and Armentières, which is the only important salient left in German hands along this front.

The text of tonight's statement reads:

Our progress southeast of Messines has continued. Early this morning we captured the enemy's trench system in the neighborhood of La Poterie farm on a front of about a mile, and during the day our troops gained further ground in this area.

In addition to some prisoners, seven German field guns have been captured by us today as a result at these operations.

The early statement said:

There was considerable artillery activity on both sides during the night east of Epehy. Bodies of hostile troops assembling in this area were dispersed by our fire.

We made a successful raid last night southwest of La Bassée. Much damage was done to the enemy's trenches and mine galleries, and eighteen prisoners were captured. Parties of our troops also raided German positions east of Vermelles and south of Armentières. They inflicted a number of casualties on the enemy.

Our own and the enemy's artillery showed great activity last night south of Ypres. Our line has again been advanced slightly south of Messines.

Guns Raging on Front in Belgium.

BERLIN, June 11, (via London.)—There was a considerable increase yesterday in the artillery activity in the sector of the dunes on the Belgian front, near Nieuport and east of Ypres, says today's Army Headquarters announcement. The text of the statement reads:

Army Group of Crown Prince Rupprecht: In the sector of the dunes, near Nieuport and east of Ypres, the firing activity yesterday increased considerably in intensity from time to time. The firing also increased toward evening in the battle area east of Wytschaete and Messines.

After a vigorous surprise bombardment at night, British companies advanced against our lines west of Hollebeke and Vambeke. They were repulsed. South of the Douve, British attacks during the evening against the pottery west of Warneton failed.

On both sides of La Bassée Canal and on the southern bank of the Scarpe our destructive fire near Festubert, Loos, and Monchy prevented British attacks in preparation from being carried out. On the La Bassée-Bethune road, northeast of Vermelles and near Hulluch, enemy reconnoitring advances were repulsed.

Army group of the German Crown Prince: On the Chemin-des-Dames, to the west of Cerny, East Prussian and Westphalian thrusting troops broke into the French trenches in a surprise attack and annihilated the occupants with the exception of those who fled. Our men returned with some prisoners. The lively firing which began here extended to adjacent sectors. Elsewhere the firing remained unimportant.

Army group of Duke Albrecht: There is nothing new to report.

MESSINES BATTLE A STUNNING BLOW

Examination of Captured Ground Shows Terrible Effect of the Modern Weapons of War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, June 11.—The effect of the British capture of Messines and Wytschaete has been such a stunning blow to the enemy that he has not as yet made any attempt at counterattacking on a big scale. The rapid advance below the further slopes of the ridge and the rush forward of the guns made it impossible for him to rally his supporting troops quickly, and as the hours pass it becomes more impossible for him to storm his way back. His early attempts to assemble troops in the Warneton neighborhood were annihilated in-

British Patrol Boat Destroys German Seaplanes Off Dover

LONDON, June 11.—Two of five hostile seaplanes that were sighted by a drifter of the Dover patrol today were destroyed by the British craft, it was officially announced tonight. The Admiralty statement announcing this incident says:

"The Vice Admiral at Dover reports that about 5 A. M. today one of his Majesty's drifters, while on patrol duty, encountered a group of five enemy seaplanes, and engaged them. One machine was destroyed, the pilot being rescued by another enemy machine. This machine was in turn attacked by the drifter, and both pilots were taken prisoners, the machine being so badly damaged that it sank while being towed into the harbor.

"The remaining three enemy seaplanes made good their escape."

MEETING OF REDS TRAPS SLACKERS

U. S. Marshal Arrests Thirty at 'Protest Against Draft' Without Registration Cards.

WARNS AGAINST DISLOYALTY

"I Will Arrest This Goldman Woman," He Says, "if She Organizes More Such Meetings."

Leon Samson, a pale-faced Columbia University student, who when asked if he had a registration card replied meekly: "I am only 20 years old," and Emma Goldman, the anarchist agitator, staged a mass meeting which they styled a "protest against the selective draft law by the Collegiate League for Peace and Harmony," at 10 West 114th Street last night, and by so doing made it possible for United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy to round up a number of men of conscript age who had defied the law by refusing to register last Tuesday. The round-up came at the end of the meeting and took the anarchists and their youthful dupes, among them a score of girls still in their teens, entirely by surprise. The result was a wild scramble for the exits, but at every door stood one or two policemen and several National Guardsmen. Every man who was of draft age had to show his card and those that could not were taken into custody.

In all thirty men were detained pending an investigation of their status by the proper Federal authorities. At midnight two had confessed that they had willfully disobeyed the law and were ordered locked up. The other twenty-eight, who during the meeting had shouted and applauded when President Wilson was sneered at, the Liberty Loan denounced, and the army and navy referred to in jeering terms, were meek as lambs and pitifully begged for permission to go home. Some said they had left their cards at home, others said they had lost them, while still others insisted that they had given them to relatives for safe keeping. Seventeen were finally let go, but eleven were detained until their cards are produced.

"We are sick and tired of these disloyal meetings in New York," said Marshal McCarthy as he surveyed the line of frightened men lined up in single file against the wall in the hall where the meeting at which all things American were denounced was held. "And, furthermore," the Marshal added, "I want it clearly understood that in the future we are not going to permit these unpatriotic and disloyal gatherings. We can't stop free speech as contemplated by the Constitution, but we can put an end to disloyalty, and we are going to do it.

"We would have been entirely justified in arresting every man who attended this meeting, and they can be thankful that we did not. The United States is at war, and the people who attend and applaud anti-American utterances are not good Americans. They are not friends of the United States. I have informed this Goldman woman that in the future we will not permit her to organize such meetings. If she does she will be arrested if I have to do it myself. This goes for all of her kind, too."

Hates "the American Kaiser."

The meeting place was a small hall on the second floor of Lenox Hall on 114th Street, near Lenox Avenue. Some other organization had used the hall for a meeting Sunday night, and those who attended happened to be of the kind who think the United States is a pretty good country and is worth fighting for, and they had put some American flags on the wall. The result was that the meeting was held under the Stars and Stripes, a fact that proved a matter of chagrin to those who applauded like wild Indians when Samson shouted that "as much as we hate the German Kaiser, we hate still more the American Kaiser." Everybody present realized whom he had in mind.

As was the case at the anarchist gathering in the Bronx, a week ago the police were prepared to handle any sort of a demonstration last night. The four little searchlight automobiles were on hand early. Two hundred uniformed men were in reserve nearby, while an equal number were scattered in and about the hall. The police lines were established a block on either side of the meeting place and inside those lines only authorized persons were permitted to go. The hall will hold 1,000 persons when crowded, but the police did not permit more than 500 to enter.

At 8 o'clock Samson, who was then defiant of attitude and utterance, arose to open the meeting. On one side of him sat a young man named Rabinovich, who said he represented the College of the City of New York. Charles Francis Phillips, the former Columbia student, who goes on trial tomorrow for conspiracy to dissuade men from registering, was listed among the speakers, but Phillips, who has had a change of heart, did not appear. Owen Cattell, son of Professor Cattell of Columbia, under indictment with Phillips, showed up, however, but he took the advice of the police and negotiated a speedy exit. Miss Grace Grumbecker of Hunter College was also scheduled for a speech, but she was not there or she did not make her presence known. Daniel Cooper of Harvard, the other speaker, also failed to make his scheduled utterance.

Samson, in his opening harangue, devoted much of his time to the Workmen's and Soldiers' Council of Russia. He announced that he was about to organize such a council to run things in the United States, and when he said that the young girls and the young men of conscript age applauded for a full

'SPY OR TRAITOR' GOT NAVY SECRETS, DANIELS CHARGES

ABOUT DEFECTIVE SHELLS

Senator Retorts and in Later Statement Says He Notified Daniels of Letters' Contents.

UPHOLDS UNKNOWN WRITER

Incident Stirs Senate Committee—Daniels to Ask Attorney General to Investigate.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Secretary Daniels caused a stir today before the Senate Committee on Naval Affairs by charging that "either a spy or a traitor" had stolen records from the navy's confidential file and communicated information taken from them to Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey. The Secretary stated that he would put the matter in the hands of the Department of Justice, and every effort would be made to discover his identity. The information divulged is supposed to relate to defective ammunition.

The name of Senator Frelinghuysen's informant was not divulged. Senator Frelinghuysen, who is a member of the Naval Committee, told the committee that he did not know the man's name. His informant, he said, had written a letter postmarked Detroit, and efforts to locate him had been futile. In a statement issued tonight he said that he had endeavored to produce facts, touching upon the administration of naval affairs that would be of advantage to this country and not to Germany. He remarked:

"In the words of Patrick Henry, I can only say to Mr. Daniels, 'if this is treason, make the most of it.'"

The Naval Committee resumed today its hearing on the Frelinghuysen resolution for an investigation into the death of two Red Cross nurses on the Mongolia and the premature explosion of shells on the St. Paul, St. Louis, and Philadelphia. The hearing had hardly begun when Senator Frelinghuysen, holding in his hand some typewritten papers, began to question Secretary Daniels.

The Secretary immediately leaned over and exclaimed:

"What you have there shows that a spy has been at work stealing records from the confidential files of the Navy Department. This is scandalous. It is something that will be investigated."

Senator Frelinghuysen replied that he knew nothing about any spy, but had allegations about ordnance matters on which he wanted enlightenment. Secretary Daniels retorted that whatever the Senator had was furnished to him by a spy.

"It is the work of either a spy or a traitor," he went on. "It is confidential information of the navy."

"Are you resentful because this matter is false or because it has been divulged?" asked Senator Phelan.

"Some of it is false and some of it is true," said Secretary Daniels. "I am resentful because the confidential files of the department have been revealed."

It then came out that Secretary Daniels had been informed by Senator Frelinghuysen of the information that had come to him from an anonymous source. The New Jersey Senator protested that he had no other idea in asking questions of the Secretary than to ascertain whether there was anything wrong with the management of the navy. He wanted it known that he was not spreading information, conveyed to him by a "spy or traitor."

Senator Swanson, Chairman of the committee, suggested that the matter appeared to be of such a serious character that the committee should go into executive session, and this followed. At its conclusion Senator Swanson said that the committee had discussed the question of revealing the information, imparted to Senator Frelinghuysen, but had decided not to do so for the present. The information, Senator Swanson said, touched too closely upon matters relating to the war.

Chairman Swanson said that the committee would endeavor to get the man's name and summon him to reveal all he knew.

Secretary Daniels said after the Senate hearing that he would arrange for the Department of Justice to make a complete investigation into the "theft" of records from the navy files. The Secretary seemed to think the unknown informant was some former employe of the Department.

Frelinghuysen's Statement.

Senator Frelinghuysen later gave out this statement:

"In one of the afternoon papers I find the following paragraph: 'Either a spy or traitor has been divulging confidential information of the Bureau of Ordnance, Secretary Daniels today told the Senate Naval Affairs Committee.'

"It had not been my intention to make public certain information, which has come into my possession, but the course which Secretary Daniels has pursued makes this necessary.

"On May 25, 1917, I submitted to the Senate a resolution providing for a 'careful and searching inquiry into the causes of the recent accidents on shipboard, due to defective ammunition or otherwise, with a view to preventing similar occurrences hereafter.' This resolution was adopted by the Senate May 28, 1917.

"In accordance therewith the Naval Affairs Committee held a session on June 2, 1917, and another today, with a view to performing the function assigned to it.

"Shortly after announcement was

MORE SUBMARINES AT WORK?

But British Food Conditions Are Better and Confidence in Victory Is General.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 12.—The Chronicle's Parliamentary correspondent says this morning:

"The optimism created by the marked diminution in our shipping losses in the last three weeks is not shared in informed circles. It is true that greater success is being achieved with our anti-submarine devices, but the falling off in sinkings disclosed in the recent official returns is chiefly due to the fact that fewer U-boats were operating during this period, as many had gone home to refit.

"This was admittedly a surmise, and its correctness is proved by the fact that our most recent losses are decidedly heavier than the averages for the previous four weeks."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—Opinion in well-informed circles here is largely but not entirely in accord with the views expressed by the Parliamentary correspondent of The London Daily Chronicle. It may be said that, while optimism has been produced by the lessened sinkings by U-boats, officials have reserved judgment. The feeling that headway was being made in the war against submarines was tempered by the thought that Germany might begin a more intensive campaign.

Some officials share the view expressed by The Chronicle writer that many submarines returned to port to refit for a resumption of operations. At the same time this suggests to observers here that the U-boat losses recently must have been heavy, as otherwise it would have been possible for many submarines to remain out and in active warfare.

While, therefore, not a few persons accept the theory that the lessening of sinkings was probably due to the withdrawal of U-boats to port to refit, many other officials hold that the improvement in the U-boat situation has been due to some extent to the arrival of American destroyers in European waters.

Information reaches here that the coming of American destroyers has had the effect of reviving the spirit of British destroyer crews and that a friendly rivalry has ensued that is having a good effect. It is also pointed out that soon after the arrival of Admiral Sims in London contact mines were distributed off German harbors, and it is reported that some submarines have been sunk by these.

The disposition is general here to suspend judgment as to the meaning of the decreased U-boat activity of the four weeks ending on June 3, but there is some optimism based on the belief that close co-operation between British, French, and American destroyers has been a considerable factor.

BRITAIN FEARS NO FAMINE.

Economy Has Conserved Supply So Far and Public Are Cheerful.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 11.—Changes in England are not startling in three months' time, but on the whole England is much more confident of victory than when I saw it in February.

People will not tell you how or when, but that the Allies will win they are unshakably certain.

Whereas three months ago both press and public had their doubts about President Wilson, they are now really un-British in their superlatives and generally accord him first place among the world's statesmen.

The first feeling noticed here is the relief over the submarine situation. England is as far from famine as on March 1. Whatever diminution in food supply has been caused by the submarines has been made good by general co-operation in economy. Signs in front windows of private houses announce that the dwellers are in honor bound to the rationing system.

General good faith has been practiced with the result that the food supply

URGE PRESIDENT TO PUSH FOOD BILL

Congress Must Grant Control by July or Be "Too Late," Labor Leaders Say.

WILSON IN HEARTY ACCORD

May Address Congress or Summon Statesmen — Food Control Measure Reported Out.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The campaign for sweeping war food legislation gathered fresh impetus today.

Representatives of organized labor, headed by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, went to the White House this afternoon and told President Wilson that there was danger of serious unrest among the workingmen of the country unless Congress, without further delay, adopted food administration legislation which would make possible an effective fight upon inflated war prices.

Meanwhile the Administration's Food Control bill, conferring such sweeping powers as to make the President virtually food dictator, was agreed to by the House Agricultural Committee by a vote of 12 to 3, an immediate report of the bill to the House being authorized. Chairman Lever expects that the House will pass this bill with less than two weeks' debate. The Administration's first food bill, which is designed to stimulate production, is now in conference.

At the White House conference Mr. Gompers, as spokesman, laid before the President reports received from many sections of the United States. With this information before him, the President was asked either to go before Congress and personally request speedy action or to call before him at the White House the leaders of both legislative bodies and use all of his influence to get the Food Control bill on the statute books at the earliest date possible. Full confidence was expressed in Herbert C. Hoover, selected by President Wilson to head the food administration.

President Wilson was informed that he would have the full backing of organized labor and that representatives in every part of the country would be asked to start a concerted drive on their Senators and Representatives. Action along the latter line was taken at a recent meeting of the labor union men and a dozen Congressmen, among them the members known as the "labor group," at the American Federation of Labor Building.

President "In Hearty Accord."

Just what action President Wilson would take in the matter was left open, pending developments. Before he received Mr. Gompers and the other members of the delegation he was in conference for nearly an hour with Mr. Hoover, and they went over the situation carefully. It was generally believed tonight that the President would go before Congress or invite a White House conference, if opposition threatening to delay action should develop in either house. It is expected that the crisis in the situation will be reached within the next few days.

At the close of the conference Mr. Gompers made the announcement that "we found the President in hearty accord." The members of the delegation were smiling and in high spirits as they left the White House grounds, but they would not discuss the deliberations in detail, having agreed that Mr. Gompers should act as spokesman. Here is what Mr. Gompers had to say:

"We laid before the President the fact that the people of the United States, as we have had an opportunity to learn, have made frequent protests and complaints against the high cost of living, and have expressed an immediate need for legislation to meet the situation.

"Their wages have remained practically stationary, and the cost of living has gone up from 100 to 200 per cent. Their tables are meagre and they are having to do the best they can under the circumstances. It was explained that many are doing without proper nourishment.

"It is needful that this legislation be passed immediately, lest there be discontent among the people that will be of the greatest injury. Unless this legislation is on the statute books by July 1 we may have to write above it, 'Too late,' as did England—'too late' because by that time contracts will have been made, and wheat, particularly, will already be moving.

"We found the President in hearty accord."

May Go Before Congress.

It is possible that the delegation of labor representatives, headed by Mr. Gompers, will go before Congress; none of the delegation would discuss the plans.

Among those who saw the President

TOTAL OF $650,000,000 HERE

Allotment to New York District Now Exceeded by $50,000,000.

NEW FIGURES A STIMULUS

Bankers Feel Sure High Mark Will Be Reached in the Time Specified.

SPEED UP SUBSCRIPTIONS

Huge Electric Dials in Times Square District Record Progress Daily.

Subscriptions to the Liberty Loan gathered by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York now exceed the $600,000,000 allotment for the district, made by Secretary McAdoo, by more than $50,000,000, but the total is still short of $1,000,000,000, the mark the bankers here set at the start. The New York district is the only one of the twelve which has received subscriptions in excess of the Secretary's theoretical allotment. The publication of figures for subscriptions actually in hand has acted as a stimulus, and yesterday banks reported that individuals had suddenly awakened to the fact that only three and a half days remained before the closing of the books, and that the campaign was gaining in momentum. The prospects for getting the $1,000,000,000, it was said, were encouraging.

The Liberty Loan Committee announced last night that the subscriptions received up to noon Saturday amounted to $616,000,000, compared with $588,000,000 in hand on Thursday night. Besides this increase of $28,000,000 over the totals mentioned in the Treasury Department's Sunday night statement, there were received yesterday in the mails more than $24,000,000, and local banks sent in additional applications for large amounts, the total for which will become available today. The clerical work required in tabulating the subscriptions is so extensive that the committee expects to be one day behind in its figures.

Regarding the subscription figures published in yesterday's Washington dispatches, the Liberty Loan Publicity Committee gave out the following statement:

Billion Mark Set at Beginning.

"Announcements from Washington indicate that New York has practically reached the total of $600,000,000 allotted to it by the Treasury Department on the basis of $2,000,000,000 proportionately divided among the twelve workers in this district. The Liberty Loan Committee desires to say with the greatest emphasis that it has never set before itself a mark below $1,000,000,000. In other words, this committee and the other committees throughout the Second Federal Reserve District have constantly refused to stop at the figures named by the Government, and have from the beginning worked to raise half the total sum required by the Government."

A number of subscribers announced yesterday the filing of additional applications, and it is expected that several of the big corporations, insurance companies, and wealthy individuals will double their original subscriptions.

According to the allotments made by the Liberty Loan Commitee, New York City proper is expected to take $717,000,000 of the $1,000,000,000 and the rest of the district, which includes the balance of New York State, twelve counties in New Jersey and one county in Connecticut, is expected to subscribe to the remaining $283,000,000. At the close of business Saturday, New York City had taken $550,000,000, or about 77 per cent. of its allotmen, while the rest of the district had to its credit $66,000,000, or a little over 23 per cent. of its allotment.

The First National Bank, it was announced yesterday, has collected subscriptions aggregating $81,000,000; the Bankers Trust Company has filed to date $45,000,000, and the Liberty National Bank reported a total of $10,000,000, part of which had previously been entered on the books of the Federal Reserve Bank, while part is new and therefore not included in the total given out by the committee. The New York Life Insurance Company yesterday doubled its subscription by applying for another block of $5,000,000, its total of $10,000,000 being exclusive of the $600,000 subscribed in behalf of employes. The Standard Oil Company of New York subscribed to an additional $1,000,000, and Eugene Meyer, Jr., & Co. announced a subscription of $1,500,000 filed through the Hanover National Bank. Carl H. Pforzheimer & Co. have applied for $1,100,000. The New York Trust Company filed an additional subscription of $2,000,000, making the total to date of $12,000,000.

Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank, and Charles V. Rich, one of the executive managers of the bank, subscribed $1,000,000 and $500,000, respectively, through the Women's Committee in appreciation of their excellent work.

Other subscriptions announced were William Salomon & Co., [illegible], of which $2,500,000 was for the firm's own account, and $1,000,000 for E. L. Doheny, President of the Mexican Petroleum Company; $1,000,000 for the Mexican Petroleum Company, $400,000 for the Advance-Rumely Company, $250,000 for the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico Railroad, and the balance spread among 881 individuals and corporations; Remick, Hodges & Co., $1,500,000; Captain J. R. De Lamar, $1,000,000; Dominick Brothers & Co., $600,000; Myron T. Herrick, $200,000; Bernard, Scholle & Co., $250,000 additional, making $1,250,000 thus far; N. Erlanger Blumgart & Co., $100,000; I. M. Stettenheim, $100,000; bond booth in the store of B. Altman & Co., has obtained subscriptions totaling more than $1,000,000; Sinclair & Valentine Company, $200,000; Schulz & Ruckgaber, $190,250, and Cyrus J. Lawrence & Son, $600,000. Messrs. Klaw & Erlanger, the theatrical men, subscribed for $125,000 bonds each.

$2,700,000 for Watertown.

R. F. Buck of Watertown, N. Y., appeared at the Federal Reserve Bank yesterday with a check for $2,700,000 as a subscription from the people of his town. He said he was very much grieved over the announcement that Watertown had contributed only $451 to the loan, compared with an allotment of $2,027,000, as announced in the Sunday newspapers. The $2,700,000 check represented the subscriptions of 4,454, giving the town a per capita subscription of $90.

The engineering firm of Cyrus Robinson & Co. have arranged for the purchase of Liberty bonds for their employes on a partial payment plan. The Crocker-Wheeler Company has subscribed to $50,000 worth of the bonds on behalf of their employes. In four days the Bethlehem Steel Corporation employes have subscribed to a total of $3,743,700. Of the 45,000 employes canvassed 87 per cent. have subscribed.

The Liberty Loan Publicity Committee gave out yesterday copies of the following telegram sent by J. P. Morgan to Louis Lipsitz, President of the Chamber of Commerce of Dallas, Texas, the first public utterance of the banker on the subject of the Liberty Loan:

> I am glad to learn that you are holding a meeting for the purpose of arousing additional interest in the Liberty Loan. This loan furnishes the soundest possible security to an investor. That provision of the loan which gives the holder the right to convert into any subsequent loan issued during the present war is sure to prevent any permanent decline in the market value of the present loan. But entirely apart from the question of security and yield, the one essential fact which all must remember is that every individual who buys a Liberty bond is helping this country to win the war.

The Hudson Trust Company and the Broadway Central Bank will remain open until midnight tonight for the purpose of receiving subscriptions.

Two great white dials to indicate the progress in purchases of Liberty Loan bonds were placed yesterday at two of the city's busiest corners, where thousands of persons pass daily and view the results of the nation's response. One of the enlarged clocks was placed on the Fifth Avenue side of the Astor Trust Building at Forty-second Street. The other was hung from the front of the Rialto Theatre Building, Times Square, At Seventh Avenue and Forty-second Street.

Clocks Fourteen Feet High.

That the figures might be seen distinctly by night as by day an electric flood light system was installed above each clock. The two clocks are of sheet metal and are the forerunners of twenty similar clocks painted on linoleum, which will be placed today in other well-traversed sections of New York City. The clocks are fourteen feet in diameter. There are forty units of figures about the circumference of the dial—each indicating a $50,000,000 subscription sale. The figures start at "$50,000,000" and are ended at "$2,000,000,000."

The two hands of the clock indicate the subscription totals from the New York district, which includes all of New York State, the northern part of New Jersey, and Fairfield County, Conn., and the totals of the country. The red indicator will show New York district's total while the black will serve as the country's total.

To give the clocks a proper "winding," there was a patriotic Liberty Bond Concert last night on the terrace of the Public Library, directly opposite the Astor Trust Building.

Not less than $1,500,000 subscription to Liberty Loan bonds by employes of automobile, tire and accessory dealers will be obtained in a three days' campaign, is the expectation of Horace De Lisser, Chairman of the special automobile dealers committee appointed to push the sale of the bonds. At a meeting at the Hotel Woodward yesterday afternoon the plans of the committee were laid before a large representation of dealers. The bonds will be offered to the employes on the basis of paying in fifty installments. Prichitt & Co., bankers, will carry the bonds for the dealers while the payments are being made.

Six hundred Boy Scouts set forth into the highways and byways of the city yesterday, seeking subscriptions to the Liberty Loan. They were speeded on their mission by speeches by Mayor Mitchel, Frank A. Vanderlip of the National City Bank, T. W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Mortimer L. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co. The Mayor lent a practical touch to their task, which is to last for four days, by buying a bond from one of the scouts before they left the assembly place at 50 Wall Street.

Mayor Encourages Scouts.

"You boys are doing a national service," said Mr. Mitchel; "you are helping to keep the soldiers in munitions. In a sense you are taking your places in the national army. Go out and sell bonds. Sell all you can. I hope from the bottom of my heart you contribute in a large degree to the success which is so vital. Go out and win."

Mr. Vanderlip told the boys that they should remember that their work was to make the world a better place for the generations to come.

"War is terrible," he said, "but it will be worth the cost if it brings closer to us the ideals upon which this Government was founded. You boys, as you camp together and train together and work together in the name of your country, are cultivating a spirit of devotion to the common interest which ought to, and I believe will, extend beyond the war service."

Mr. Lamont told the Scouts that they were on the firing line, that when they grew up they could tell their children and grandchildren that they "did their bit" by selling Liberty bonds. Mr. Schiff in his address referred to J. P. Morgan & Co. as the banking house which had done more than any other in this country to make the world safe for democracy.

The scouts were marshaled by James E. West, Chief Executive of the organization. They paraded up Wall Street after the speech making to Broad Street and reached Broadway by way of Exchange Place. The Columbia Park Boys' Band of San Francisco played the marching tunes, and the financial district was packed with men watching the youngsters go by. There were more than 400 scouts from Manhattan, 100 from Brooklyn, and 75 from Staten Island.

The scout troop at Irvington, N. Y., under the direction of Scout Master W. Rutter of the Stock Exchange firm of Rutter & Ream, brought in [illegible]8,000 worth of orders as the result of three days' toil, ended last Sunday.

Publication of the names of cities in the Federal Reserve district with their allotments and total subscriptions on Sunday stimulated returns yesterday. It apparently helped to hurry subscriptions also. Albany, for instance, gained [illegible]00,000 on Saturday and Sunday, bringing the total up to $4,361,000, compared with an allotment of $7,891,000. Rochester, Binghamton, Elmira, Syracuse, Buffalo, Stamford, Newark, and other cities were reported by the Loan Committee yesterday to be picking up in an encouraging manner. The towns of Millbrook, Sparkhill, and Winthrop in New York and Verona in New Jersey have fully subscribed their quota. Gloversville, on the other hand, with an allotment of more than $1,250,000, had not reported its subscriptions late yesterday afternoon, and [illegible] and Hempstead were two others in the same class. Wee[illegible] allotment is $753,000, without any returns to date. The Liberty Bond Committee of Railroads, headed by A. H. Smith of the New York Central, has sent out word that the lists will be closed June 13. So far [illegible] workers have subscribed for [illegible] of the bonds. Mr. Smith sent a telegram yesterday to all officials of the New York Central urging them to speed up the work in the final hours.

The International Typographical Union subscribed for $50,000 through the Loan Committee, and the combined subscriptions of the various locals amount to nearly $20,000 more.

[illegible] county employes in Manhattan have subscribed to more than $800,000 of the bonds. The Fire Department leads with $106,550, and the Police Department stands second with $80,400. On a percentage basis the License Department leads with $26,650, or 17 per cent. of its payroll subscribing. In the Queens Borough Hall 302 employes subscribed for $32,000 of the bonds yesterday, and a campaign was begun to make the total $50,000 before today noon.

Subscriptions for bonds made on blanks from the Rotogravure Section of THE TIMES were:

The Japanese Association of New York at a meeting yesterday at the Miako restaurant in Fifty-eighth Street passed resolutions urging the members to subscribe to the loan.

At a Liberty Loan street meeting at Ninety-sixth Street and Broadway last night, conducted by the Outdoor Speakers' Committee of the Liberty Loan Committee, $8,500 was subscribed by 11 o'clock, the average subscription being under $100. There were two subscriptions of $3,000 each. The figures were given out by Jerome A. Myers, Chairman of the Outdoor Committee. Other speakers besides Mr. Myers were J. N. Lotsch, Assistant Cashier of the Broadway Central Bank, and L. Adler, a committee speaker. There will be a similar meeting tonight at Thirty-ninth Street and Broadway.

A DAY'S WORK FOR THE LOAN.

New England Responds to Appeals —Subscriptions Elsewhere.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., June 11.—Unless the people of New England subscribe to $96,700,000 between tomorrow morning and Friday noon, this district will fail to reach its minimum quota of $240,000,000 of Liberty bonds. Thus far New England has been subscribing at the rate of $4,622,580.65 a day. Figures given out at the Federal Reserve Bank tonight show a grand total to date of $143,300,000 subscribed. Since the close of business on Friday night the records show that subscriptions approximating $8,300,000 have been received.

The average subscriptions a day during thirty-one days have been $4,622,580.65. Plans have been made in every city and town in all the New England States to try to raise the required quota before Friday. In Boston every newspaper, every billboard, every store window, every street car and hundreds of vehicles carry the legend "Buy your Liberty bond today." The motion picture houses are sending wagons through the streets announcing that one week's receipts will be devoted to the purchase of bonds.

Philadelphia Takes $18,000,000 More.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Vigorous efforts were made here today following the report from Washington that Philadelphia had accounted for but $61,000,000 out of its minimum quota of $140,000,000 of the Liberty Loan. The Washington report, according to the local campaign managers, represents the amount of subscriptions turned in officially through the Federal Reserve Bank, but falls far short of the actual total. Although the Federal Reserve Bank officials decline to give out figures as to the total received, unofficial estimates place the sum subscribed thus far as close to $160,000,000. It was known last week, days before the Treasury Department made its announcement, that the subscriptions had passed the $125,000,000 mark.

The Washington report of $61,000,000 subscribed was represented by the returns of 500 banks out of 1,040 such institutions in the whole district. Few Philadelphia banks have reported their subscriptions to Washington thus far. Similiarly, investment houses have withheld their subscriptions.

Today's subscriptions aggregated $18,000,000. The largest single subscription was that of employes of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation and subsidiary companies, amounting to $4,118,085. The Bethlehem plant alone took $1,612,000. The average subscription a man for the whole corporation amounted to $91.50. Of the Bethlehem employes 75.3 per cent. subscribed. Another large subscription received was $3,000,000 from the Reading Company. The Philadelphia National Bank, with more than $9,000,000, heads the list of banks reporting in full thus far.

Richmond Expects to Fill Quota.

Special to The New York Times.

RICHMOND, Va., June 11.—Bankers of Richmond held a special meeting this afternoon and discussed means for increasing subscriptions to the Liberty Loan in this district. Telegrams went forward to every part of the district urging renewed action. It is said that the amount actually subscribed in this district is $45,000,000 or more, but only $35,000,000 of the $80,000,000 quota has been reported.

Mercantile houses and other corporations are subscribing for bonds in large amounts and giving their employes eighteen months in which to pay for them. Local bankers feel confident that the district will subscribe the amount apportioned to it before the time expires.

McCord Assails Atlanta Slackers.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 11.—That well-to-do professional and business men of the Atlanta Reserve District are not measuring up to their duty in the matter of buying Liberty bonds, but are becoming the rankest sort of slackers, is one of the reasons assigned by Governor Joseph A. McCord of the Reserve Bank why the district is not nearer to its quota. Governor McCord said tonight that these men were buying $100 bonds, or none at all, when they were able to buy heavily.

The statement from Washington that the Atlanta Federal Reserve District has subscribed only $22,000,000 of the $60,000,000 allotted to this district was verified by Governor McCord today. These were the figures up to last Friday night. Since then numerous subscriptions have been received, but the district is still far behind in the subscriptions allotted to it. According to estimates, the subscriptions since last Friday up to tonight will not exceed $8,000,000 in the district, and are probably less. Governor McCord is disappointed at the lethargy of the well-to-do and fairly wealthy men of Atlanta and district.

"Big financial and business institutions and the little fellow with a salary are measuring up to the patriotic duty before them in fine shape," said Mr. McCord, "but the professional and business man with a comfortable income and a tidy fortune laid by is doing next to nothing.

"This sort of thing cannot be kept up indefinitely. Sooner or later the general public will know the kind of patriots these people are."

As for the big corporations with investments in the South who are investing in bonds in other centres where they have headquarters there appears no remedy. One corporation with tremendous investments not only in Atlanta but extending over the entire South has bought $5,000,000 of bonds in New York, which amount goes to the credit of the New York Federal Reserve Districts subscription. These conditions are placing a tremendous handicap upon the Atlanta Federal District, despite which Governor McCord believes the district will make a good showing. A great drive is being made this week in order to reach approximately the sum allotted to this district.

Chicago Subscribes $50,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 11.—Every time the clock ticks off an hour between now and noon on Friday, the Chicago Federal Reserve district must subscribe $1,000,000 to the Liberty Loan unless it desires to be recorded as a "slacker." Spurred on by the figures showing that the district had subscribed only 53 per cent. of its minimum allotment of $260,000,000, there was earnest work for the loan today. There were more $50 and $100 bond buyers in evidence than at any time since the subscription books were opened. Several great concerns doubled their previous subscriptions. Men of wealth came to the fore with increased purchases. The City Council authorized the Controller to purchase not to exceed $2,000,000 of the Liberty bonds, the money to be taken from special funds.

Levy Mayer increased his subscription from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. On June 6 Marshall Field & Co. and the Field estate subscribed $4,500,000, but Mr. Mayer is the largest individual subscriber. The First National Bank and First Trust and Savings Bank announced subscriptions of $10,000,000 jointly, while customers toook $12,000,000, a total of $22,000,000 for the two Forgan institutions.

William Salomon & Sons announced that they would enter subscriptions for $5,592,000 of the bonds, of which $2,500,000 was for the firm's own account and the remainder as follows: Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, $1,000,000; E. L. Doheny, $1,000,000; Advance Rumely Company, $400,000, (additional;) Mexico Railway Company, $250,000; Iroquois Iron Company, $50,000, and subscriptions from individuals, $392,000.

From Stockholm, Sweden, came a dispatch from Ira Nelson Morris, United States Minister to Sweden, to the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company ordering the purchase for him of $500,000 worth of Liberty bonds. The Armour Grain Company announced its subscription of $250,000, in addition to the $1,000,000 taken for the personal account of J. Ogden Armour and the subscriptions of the Armour Company and other Armour concerns.

President John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor announced a subscription of $100,000 by the Illinois United Mine Workrs and minor contributions of $500 and $300 by the Bridge Structural Iron Workers and Cigar Makers respectively, in addition to $10,000 by the American Federation of Labor. The Loop department stores reported heavy sales at their booths, Marshall Field & Co. now being in the lead with sales totaling $1,551,930.

The majority of the big financial institutions of Chicago have yet to announce their subscriptions. The same is true of several large Chicago corporations, whose purchases have not been made known.

Estimates of subscriptions from last Friday night to the close of business tonight are more or less a matter of speculation, since many of the outlying parts of this Federal Reserve district have not been heard from. In and around Chicago the subscriptions of Saturday and today are estimated at about $50,000,000, leaving $72,000,000 to be subscribed to cover this district's minimum allotment.

Cleveland Nears Its Goal.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, June 11.—Cleveland tonight was within $6,000,000 of the $180,000,000 goal set by the Government in its Liberty bond campaign, with the prospects good of reaching the goal by Friday, when the campaign ends. On Friday Cleveland was $27,000,000 behind its allotment in the sale of bonds, but by Saturday noon $7,000,000 had been subscribed, mostly by the large iron ore and shipping interests. On Saturday afternoon and today the subscriptions totaled $14,000,000, leaving $6,000,000 to be obtained between now and Friday.

A systematic house-to-house canvass by Boy Scouts and volunteer bond salesmen started early this morning and will be continued until Friday noon. The City Sinking Fund Commission invested $100,000 in bonds today, and almost all the large business concerns in the city received subscriptions from their employes. Mayor R. L. Ireland of Bratenahl, a suburb, made a canvass among wealthy residents today and obtained subscriptions of $2,000,000. More than 40,000 individuals have subscribed to the loan thus far, and it is expected that this number will be increased to 75,000 by Friday. Bond salesmen who volunteered their services this morning brought in $2,000,000 subscriptions from their house-to-house calls.

Northwest Is Speeding Up.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 11.—The deficit in the Ninth District's quota of subscriptions to the Liberty Loan began melting today, when 1,400 men throughout Minnesota, Wisconsin, the two Dakotas, and Montana began the final drive. On Friday the Ninth District was $30,000,000 short. The quota is $80,000,000.

It is estimated that approximately $10,000,000 in subscriptions has come in in two days. The shortage now is $20,000,000.

Canvassers in automobiles are touring the country districts in Minnesota under the direction of the Minnesota Bankers' Association. Minneapolis some time ago oversubscribed its quota. So did St. Paul and Duluth. But the country districts have been slow.

In North Dakota, where considerable apathy among the farmers was reported and where the Non-Partisan League, the farmers' political organization, has been accused of discouraging subscriptions to the loan, earnest efforts are being made.

L. B. Hanna, former Governor, returning to Fargo today after a long trip, said that the farmers were patriotic and would subscribe their quota. He explained that the poor crop last year and the late Spring had made some of them hesitant.

Montana takes the palm in the Ninth District. That State today reported that it had oversubscribed its quota by nearly $3,000,000. An additional $500,000 was subscribed today. This will be further increased when reports come in from the so-called "highline" counties on the Canadian border, where a very active campaign is in progress.

Governor Theodore Wold of the Ninth District Federal Reserve Bank today sent out an "S O S" call to citizens of the Northwestern States. He told them that there could be no such thing as failure in the campaign.

Kansas City Shows Improvement.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, June 11.—Estimating the flood of subscriptions received at Kansas City Liberty Loan headquarters today at a minimum of $5,000,000, the Tenth District thus far has subscribed at least $45,000,000 to the loan. This is an increase of $11,000,000 over the amount reported to the Treasury Department on Friday night. The process of putting small subscriptions through banking channels is causing delay. Information at headquarters is to the effect that a possible $10,000,000 in subscriptions from country banks will appear in the reports before the close of the campaign. Reserve cities, including Kansas City, it is conservatively estimated, will bring the total subscriptions up to $75,000,000.

Telegrams have been sent to the larger banks in the district urging a strenuous final campaign, and in Kansas City every effort is being made to cover thoroughly the same ground that was gone over once or twice previously by canvassers.

J. Z. Miller, Jr., Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank, said today that 65 per cent. of the business done in Kansas City was transacted through branch houses of Eastern industrial concerns which had bought their Liberty bonds largely in New York and Chicago. Packing houses, railroads, harvesting machinery and implement companies, and the motor car industry are included.

Dallas Subscribes $5,000,000 More.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, June 11.—It is estimated that at the close of business tonight the Eleventh Federal Reserve District was $15,000,000 short of its allotment for the Liberty Loan. Heavy subscriptions in Dallas have brought subscriptions since last Friday night up to approximately $25,000,000, an increase of $5,000,000.

A vigorous campaign of publicity and personal solicitation is being carried on throughout the district. Men and women of average means have responded more liberally than men of wealth in this district. Federal Reserve Bank officials are hopeful that the minimum allotment will be taken.

Big Campaign in San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—George K. Weeks, executive manager of the Twelfth District Liberty Loan Committee, estimates that 75 per cent. of the $140,000,000 allotted to the Twelfth Federal Reserve District has been subscribed. The $37,000,000 which Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo credits to the district is only the amount on which cash payments have been made, he says, and excludes pledges of many millions.

San Francisco had brought her total subscription to $30,000,000 out of an allotment of $42,000,000 at the close of business tonight. Approximately $6,000,000 of this has been subscribed since Friday night. A vigorous campaign to make up the full quota in this city by Friday noon is being carried on, with the realization that it will mean doubling the past daily subscriptions.

LOUISVILLE EXCEEDS QUOTA.

But McAdoo Urges City Not to Cease Its Efforts.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., July 11.—Appealing to business men today not to relax in their work for the Liberty Loan, Secretary McAdoo said that there were "slackers in this country just as there are in every other; and here, as everywhere else, the men of the highest courage and the largest patriotism must bear the greatest burdens." The Secretary had just been informed that Louisville, having oversubscribed its allotment of $5,000,000 by more than 40 per cent., the local campaign on behalf of the loan had been called off. After addressing the men who had taken part in the great campaign, Mr. McAdoo was the guest at luncheon of the Louisville Transportation Club, where he again spoke.

FARMERS BUYING BONDS.

Loan Committee Hears Encouraging Reports From Rural Districts.

The Liberty Loan Committee has canvassed the leading agricultural periodicals with the purpose of getting opinions on the reception accorded the bonds in rural communities. Here are some of the replies received by the committee by telegraph, and made public yesterday:

Holstein Friesian World, Syracuse.—We believe from reports received here, and from Worcester, Mass., where the annual meeting of the Holstein Friesian Association of America has just been held, that Holstein breeders throughout the United States are making substantial personal subscriptions to the Liberty Loan issue. The Holstein Friesian Association of America has just subscribed $100,000 to the issue. This association is the largest of its kind in the world, having 10,000 members, numbering the leading farmers in their communities. They can well afford to make personal contributions to the issue, and we believe they are responding generously.

New England Farms, Hartford, Conn.—The active farmers of New England see and read your appeals in full sympathy, but almost without exception are themselves snort of capital for their own patriotic plans to increase production in the face of 100 per cent. advance in all labor, feed, fertilizer, and seed costs. Thousands of acres of arable lands still lie pitifully idle in sight of hoarded capital withheld from both these good uses.

YALE BUREAU FOR PARIS.

Yale University has decided to establish a Yale Bureau in Paris for the period of the war. This will be a branch of the University Secretary's office. Professor George H. Nettleton of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale will act as Director, assisted by recent graduates.

The bureau is designed to meet, in cooperation with the Yale Alumni Association of Paris, the needs of Yale men, as European headquarters, and as a bureau of information, advice, and help. It will be of special service in enabling parents and friends to keep in touch with Yale men at the front; more than 100 Yale undergraduates are already in France in military service, and thousands of students and graduates are fitting themselves to go abroad later. Professor Nettleton will go abroad soon to arrange for starting the work.

minute. He said the time had come when "we are going to refuse to stand up and shoot down our brothers." The war, he declared, with great solemnity, is "a dollar war," and he reached his climax by prophesying a draft riot which, he added, would be more than a riot. "It's going to be a draft revolution," he said. It was about this time that he mentioned the "American Kaiser." He was careful not to mention President Wilson by name.

After him came Emma Goldman, who was so excited that her face looked like a prize red poppy at a flower show. She denounced everything in sight. She said the anarchists now on trial for conspiracy to defeat the purposes of the draft law are being rushed to prison "by perjured testimony." The Home Guard she dubbed "a lot of parasites and police scabs." The State is taking a census, she added, to draft men into the militia to shoot down the laboring men.

When the Goldman woman stopped speaking, as much from exhaustion as anything else, young Samson stood up and started a plea for funds. A tall, square shouldered man then walked down the aisle. He was Lieutenant Barnitz of the New York police force, who has devoted all of his time since the war started to running down and arresting persons who think more of Germany than the United States. Barnitz motioned Samson to stop speaking.

"How old are you?" demanded Barnitz. The young man's face turned as white as a newly laundered sheet.

"Twenty, only twenty," he murmured in a voice so low that only Barnitz heard it. Barnitz returned to the rear of the hall and had a conference with Marshal McCarthy, Assistant United States District Attorney Harold A. Content, and Inspector Ryan of the police.

"I don't know of a better place than this to begin the roundup of slackers," said Marshal McCarthy, as he looked about the room. Samson in the meantime was making a heroic effort to resume speaking, but he was very nervous, and his words were uttered with difficulty. Men turned in their seats and looked at the Federal officials in conference. Two or three started to leave.

"Return to your seats," said a policeman at the door.

"I want to go home, I promised my wife I would be back at 9:30 o'clock," one of the men said.

"Well, maybe you can telephone her that you are detained," the policeman answered, and the men sheepishly returned to their seats.

"The meeting's over," shouted Samson suddenly and the crowd started for the exits.

"Women and girls may go, but all men of conscript age must show their registration cards," Marshal McCarthy announced. A young fellow tried to edge himself out between two girls. A guardsman pulled him back.

"Where's your card?" the guardsmen asked.

"I haven't got it now, my mother's keeping it for me," the frightened man answered. He was escorted to a deserted corner of the room. More than 100 men were in that corner by the time the room had been cleared. Just one woman remained, Emma Goldman. Marshal McCarthy ordered her put out. She shouted her defiance, but policemen got behind her and gave her a push. A guardsman gave her another, and she went out at express speed. Then began the census of the prisoners.

Samson was among those detained. He is said to have admitted being in doubt as to how old he is, but the police mean to be sure about it.

Herman Woskow, 21 years old, of 128 Second Avenue, said he was born in Russia, and had taken out citizen papers, but added that he had no intention of registering. He will be arraigned in the Federal Building this morning. Philip Levine, 2 years old, of 79 Division Street, also admitted he had not registered and said he had no intention of doing so. He will be arraigned with Woskow.

Hyman Bessner of 1,062 Southern Boulevard, had a card unlike any other seen by Marshal McCarthy. He said he received it from the official registrar last Tuesday, and is held while his story is investigated.

The anarchists announced last night that they will hold a mass meeting in Madison Square Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. There is reason to believe that the meeting will not take place.

DANIELS URGES NAVY TO TAKE BONDS

Exhorts Officers and Men to Support the Federal Loan Liberally.

WOMEN ISSUE AN APPEAL

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Every effort is being made by the Treasury Department to overcome the announced shortage of $700,000,000 in subscriptions to the first issue of $2,000,000,000 of the $5,000,000,000 war loan authorized by Congress. The telegrams and letters to the committee from all parts of the country indicate a quickened interest in the bonds.

Secretary Daniels sent the following message today to every ship and station:

> Subscriptions for Liberty bonds close at noon June 15. Bring matter to attention of every officer, enlisted man, and civil employe in the naval establishment. All who subscribe need pay only 10 per cent. with application and balance in nine monthly installments. Call this patriotic duty to attention of every one in the naval service.
> I earnestly hope that every one in the active and reserve service will subscribe. The navy should be the first line of defense in subscribing to the Liberty Loan as well as it was in sending its destroyers to Europe. The country will be cheered if on the 15th we can announce subscriptions from all who uphold the reputation of the navy.

The Women's Liberty Loan Committee, of which Mrs. W. G. McAdoo is the head, sent today to the 25,000 women who are affiliated with the committee an appeal for redoubled efforts in the next four days to swell the volume of bond subscriptions. The appeal follows:

> In view of the fact that the Secretary of the Treasury has announced a shortage of $700,000,000 in the subscriptions to the Liberty Loan, which will close at noon on Friday, June 15, it becomes the task of the women of America to supplement the work of the men by devoting their individual efforts to the purchase and promotion of Liberty bonds. Every woman in the United States who is able should, as a patriotic duty and as an excellent investment for herself, buy a Liberty Bond.
> Any woman who has $1 before noon of Friday, June 15, and who can secure $9 by June 28, $10 by July 30, $15 by Aug. 15, and $15 more by Aug. 30 should buy a $50 Liberty Bond.
> Every woman who can not make this arrangement, but can get in touch with the thousands of agencies throughout the country which will sell Liberty bonds on the installment plan, should buy a Liberty bond at once.
> Every single $50 or $100 Liberty bond purchased is certain of its allotment, whether or not it is bought on the installment plan. The Secretary of the Treasury has made this positively clear.
> Any woman who has a savings account need not lose by the purchase of a Liberty bond the interest on the money which she may wish to draw out on June 28 for the payment of the second installment on her bond. The Secretary of the Treasury has provided an arrangement whereby, for individual allotments not exceeding $500 of bonds, the money to pay for such bonds on June 28 will not lose the interest due on July 1. Many of the savings banks of the United States have made the arrangement directly. All that any depositor need do to secure the midyearly interest on the amount of money needed to meet the second payment of the Liberty bond is to show proof of subscription for the bond. Where the bank has not made this arrangement the depositor has only to give to the Federal Reserve Bank of her district an order for the money, which will not be presented until after the savings bank
> The women of the United States are hereby informed that every purchaser of Liberty bonds will be given, upon payment of the first installment for purchase, a receipt which will show her subscription to the Liberty Loan. She will receive receipts for each payment made on June 28, on July 30, on Aug. 15, and on Aug. 30. On Aug. 30, when the final payment is made, she will turn in these receipts and receive her Liberty bond. These receipts, until turned in for the bond, are as secure as the bond itself, and a Liberty bond, being a United States Government bond, is the best security any woman can ask for.
> The woman who buys a $50 Liberty bond is buying a security on which she can raise money at any time. Besides that, she is serving her country by helping to raise a fund that will feed, clothe, and provide munitions for the soldiers and sailors of the United States. The men of America are going to give their lives to put an end to an unrighteous war forced upon the world by autocracy. Will the women of America fail to protect them to the best of their power? By their subscription to the Liberty Loan, by their purchase of Liberty bonds, they will give their answer.
> In order that the women of America may prove to their country and to the world their appreciation of the blessings of American womanhood, the Woman's Liberty Loan Committee urges your organization to use every means at its command to present these facts to American women before the closing of the Liberty Loan issue at noon of Friday, June 15.

Archbishop G. W. Mundelein of Chicago, in addition to subscribing personally for $10,000 of Liberty Loan bonds, at a conference of the priests of his archdiocese said:

"I recommend that every congregation of this diocese take at least $100 worth of bonds. If you have not the money in your treasury, borrow it. I have also decided to accept donations for religious purposes in the shape of Liberty bonds at a value of 102, so that the donor of $1,000 will be given credit for $20.

"I want to demonstrate to the people of Chicago, and especially to the Catholics, that the Church considers it a positive duty to assist this nation in every way possible in gratitude for the peace and liberty which the Church has ever enjoyed in the United States. I state this because I want to fulfill the promise which I made when we entered the war, that we will render every assistance and give every support to our country."

The investment of municipal funds in Liberty bonds has been decided upon by Mayor Hosey of Fort Wayne, Ind. The amount so invested is $180,000.

A resolution by Senator Ashurst of Arizona, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to invest in Liberty Loan bonds millions of dollars of Indians' tribal moneys, was passed today by the Senate. At least $11,000,000 of such funds now lie idle, drawing no interest, or less than that of the Liberty bonds.

Jackson Barnett, reputed to be the wealthiest Indian in the United States, today subscribed $640,000 to Liberty Loan bonds through his guardian, Carl J. O'Hornett of Henryetta, Okla. Secretary Lane's ruling that Barnett, who is a ward of the Government, might do this opens the way to many Indian subscriptions.

Barnett, son of a Creek chieftain, derived his wealth from oil lands near Tulsa, Okla., which he at first indignantly rejected, declaring the tract fit only for coyotes and jackrabbits and in no wise suited to an Indian who merely wanted to fish and hunt as he pleased. The discovery of oil and the lease of Barnett's land made the Indian a millionaire—he had $755,895 cash on deposit May 1 last—but he was unable to handle his financial affairs, and a guardian was appointed for him. Barnett has never accepted more than $125 a month of his income, and shows little interest in the size of his fortune. Last year he paid an income tax estimated at $50,000.

URGES THRIFT TO AID LOAN.

Campaign Among Industrial Workers Discussed at Bankers' Club.

A discussion of saving among men in industry and how thrift of industrial workers could aid in the Liberty Loan campaign was held at a luncheon given in the Bankers' Club yesterday by Adolph Lewisohn, Newcomb Carlton, and B. H. Fancher. Representatives of the Young Men's Christian Association told of the success of their "thrift campaign" in all parts of the country.

It was urged by Mr. Lewisohn that the success of the Liberty Loan campaign would be aided greatly by a campaign throughout the country urging and teaching thrift. John Sherman Hoyt, Chairman of the Industrial Department of the Y. M. C. A., said that a sub-committee of six or eight men, working with the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A. could carry on such a campaign with the Y. M. C. A. by spending only $10,000.

Present at the luncheon were Colgate Hoyt, William Loeb, Jr., Edward C. Delafield, Samuel S. Lewisohn, Jesse I. Straus and several other business men and officers of the Y. M. C. A.

BACKS PRESIDENT IN NOTE TO RUSSIA

"application of them to the present situation in Russia almost startles by its boldness and blunt downrightness." The Guardian concludes:

"It is a powerful piece of analysis, and if it is read and understood in Russia it will settle the future not only of Russian liberty, but of the world's."

British Note Pleases Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—As a result of the statement of America's objects and ideals in entering the war against the Prussian autocracy there is likely to be a restatement of the aims of the allied nations in the great European struggle. While the fact is not officially confirmed, it is evident that, taking its cue from the statement of President Wilson, the Russian Provisional Government has asked her partners in the war to indicate clearly what they hope to attain out of the world conflagration.

As an evidence of good faith Russia has made a statement of her own aims which in addition to announcing an intention to liberate both Russian and German Poland gives general acceptance of the principles laid down by President Wilson in the note to the Provisional Government made public simultaneously in Russia and the United States on Saturday and published in newspapers in both countries on Sunday.

It is believed here that a tremendous impetus to the war aims and ideals voiced by the President will be the outcome of their indorsement by the Governments of Great Britain and Russia. It is felt that nothing could be more generous and whole-hearted than the manner in which the British Government has indorsed what was said by the President in his note to Russia, as for example the willingness if the Russian Government so desires to examine and if need be revise the agreements between the Allies made in conformity with the standards laid down by the President. This tremendous compliment to President Wilson is bound to have an excellent effect on the relations between the Allies, including Russia.

To those on the inside the hearty indorsement of the President's principles is no surprise. Before he left Washington Mr. Balfour, who, as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, probably wrote the British note to Russia, made public today, read the statement of President Wilson to the Russian Provisional Government. This statement has very generally been approved by representatives of friendly foreign nations to whom the opportunity of reading it was given before its presentation to the public and there is every indication that among Governments at least it has had a markedly favorable effect.

NOTE STARTLES GERMANS.

Newspapers Await Instructions Before Commenting on It.

THE HAGUE, June 11.—President Wilson's note to Russia was published today in Germany. The newspapers made no comment on it, as the Foreign Office had given instructions that comment should be postponed until tomorrow.

The document is reported to have caused a sensation in Germany.

GORKY ASSAILS ALLIES.

Says It Is Useless Further to Parley with Them.

PETROGRAD, June 11.—Commenting on the French and British notes to the Russian Government, Maxim Gorky's newspaper, Novaia Zhizn, argues that further pourparlers with the French and British diplomatic representatives would be useless, and says:

"The French Government presents as a basis for agreement with democratic Russia all the fundamental points of an imperialistic program, with an emphatic and, some say, provocative clarity. Here are indemnities and guarantees permanently enfeebling the enemy, and the military retention of Alsace-Lorraine."

Enemy-Trading Bill Reported.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Administration Trading-with-the-Enemy bill was favorably reported to the House today by unanimous vote of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. It would penalize by heavy fine and imprisonment trading with an enemy or enemy ally, provides for the administration of enemy property where necessary, and authorizes the use of patents held by enemies.

Senate Sends Deficiency Bill Back to Conference on Martin's Assurance.

PRICE ROUNDLY ATTACKED

Rumored That Excessive Terms Are Being Urged on Government for Exposition Grounds, Borah Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Urgent Deficiency bill, carrying $3,340,000,000, was sent back by the Senate today to have the conferees reinsert a provision for the purchase of the Jamestown Exposition grounds as a naval base. Such a provision the House eliminated last week on the ground that the purchase price, $1,500,000, was excessive.

The Senate's action came after a sharp debate, in which Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, defended the proposed purchase of the Exposition grounds. The opposition was led by Senator Smith of Michigan, who attacked Senator Martin for delaying the bill until "the Senator from Virginia is able to get the pet scheme for his home State favorably voted on." Senator Borah of Idaho charged that, according to rumors, persons interested in the properties involved in the purchase were in Washington trying to force excessive terms on the Government. Senator Martin said he would offer a compromise.

The debate was started by Senator Smith, who wanted to know about the status of the bill.

"What has happened to it?" he demanded. "The Senate passed it some time ago, and we were led to believe that its passage was urgent. It provides for the appropriation of money that, we were told, was at once needed for the naval and military requirements."

Senator Martin explained that the bill had been "held up by the House" because of the provision to purchase the naval base at Hampton Roads.

"Is it not a fact," demanded Senator Smith, "that no pay has yet been given, although pay day has passed for the officers' training camp, and that much of our needed expenditure is being delayed because of this disagreement between the two houses?"

"I am not advised of any such condition," replied Senator Martin. "I have not had the head of a single department say to me that there was any injury or inconvenience suffered because of the delay on this bill."

"There are ugly rumors floating about," interposed Senator Borah, "to the effect that several gentlemen have a contract for the purchase of this land, that they have been peddling it around the country and that they are even now in Washington trying to sell it to the Government at five or six times its value. There has not been a particle of evidence before this body upon which any reasonable man could come to a conclusion as to the value of this property. There has been no testimony taken and no report upon which we can pass judgment."

Senator Borah said he would try to get evidence to substantiate his statements, so Congress might have it before final action was taken on the bill.

Senator Martin said he would offer a compromise section for the one in controversy, if the bill went back to conference. He wanted the bill expedited and was willing to meet the opposition half way. On this assurance the Senate voted 48 to 22 to send the bill back to conference.

PARIS LIMITS USE OF GAS.

No Hot Water Permitted Except on Saturdays and Sundays.

PARIS, June 11.—Maurice Violette, Minister of Subsistence, has issued a decree suspending the distribution of gas to private consumers after 9 o'clock at night and during several periods of the daylight hours, aggregating a suspension of thirteen hours in the supply of gas daily.

The decree also suspends the use of hot water in hotels and private houses except on Saturdays and Sundays.

PERSHING KEPT BUSY BY BRITISH HOSTS

Takes Luncheon with King and Queen, Besides Holding Conferences at War Office.

MEETS CABINET IN EVENING

Some of His Staff Are Already in Paris to Make Plans for Coming Army.

LONDON, June 11.—Business and social events mingled in the busy day of Major Gen. Pershing and his staff today.

The American General and Ambassador Page took luncheon with King George and Queen Mary, spending nearly two hours at Buckingham Palace. After luncheon the King and Queen showed the visitors through the historic rooms and about the palace grounds.

From the palace General Pershing went to the War Office, where members of his personal staff had been in conference for several hours with representatives of their corresponding departments in the British Army. The officer who represents the American military air service devoted two hours to discussing plans for co-operation with the British service.

In the afternoon General Pershing visited the House of Commons. He sat in the Distinguished Visitors' Gallery for a time, and later took tea on the Terrace as a guest of members.

This evening General Pershing took dinner with Ambassador Page at his residence to meet members of the British Cabinet and naval and military officers. Among the guests were Premier Lloyd George, Arthur J. Balfour, Lord Derby, Lord Robert Cecil, Viscount French, Admiral Sir John R. Jellicoe, Vice Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., and General Jan Smuts.

Mr. Balfour was the centre of an animated group throughout the evening, everybody desiring to hear about his American trip. Mr. Balfour and General Pershing had a long talk, and later General Smuts, the Boer leader, held the American General's attention nearly half an hour.

Mr. Lloyd George enjoyed immensely the evening's social diversion. He remained until nearly 11 o'clock, and during that time talked with virtually every member of Pershing's staff and also had a long chat with the General himself.

Ambassador Page received many congratulations from his British guests on the high quality of the two men that his country had put at the head of military and naval affairs on this side of the ocean.

Tomorrow morning General Pershing and his staff will visit a big training camp. In the afternoon they will take luncheon with the Earl of Derby, Secretary of State for War, and in the evening they will be the guests of Premier Lloyd George and other members of the Cabinet at Lancaster House.

People Cheer American Engineers.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 11.—The officers of Pershing's staff and the enlisted men are giving themselves up to sightseeing and enjoying themselves on the last holiday that they will have before work in France begins. Everywhere their reception has been most cordial.

The officers are overwhelmed with offers of private hospitality, most of which have been declined. What with official dinners and calls on military officials here, their time is fully occupied.

ITALIANS STRIKE IN THE TRENTINO

TAKE 512 PRISONERS ALSO

Drive Started Simultaneously in Upper Chiesa Valley and Tonale Pass, Northwest of Trent.

ROME, June 11.—The Italians have begun an offensive in the region southeast of Trent and have captured two important points of vantage from the Austrians, according to the official communication issued today. Monte Ortigara, east of Cima Undice, and the Agnello Pass, both were taken, in addition to more than 500 prisoners. The statement reads:

Throughout the whole of the mountain zone of operations there was more fighting than usual yesterday, especially between the Adige and Brenta Rivers. Last night the enemy was driven back and followed up at the Tonale Pass, in the Upper Chiesa Valley, on the slope of Dosso Casina and in the Posina Valley.

On the Asiago plateau our artillery destroyed the enemy's complex system of defenses at several points. Our infantry, attacking during a violent storm in the direction of Mounts Zebio and Forno, carried the pass of Agnello and captured nearly the whole of Monte Ortigara, (6,924 feet high,) east of Cima Undice. This surprise attack, which was strongly pushed home, left 512 prisoners, including seven officers, in our hands.

Our aircraft at the same time, notwithstanding adverse atmospheric conditions, successfully bombed the enemy's areas in the rear and his heavy batteries in the upper valleys of the Astico and Assa. All our machines returned safely.

On the remainder of the front there were desultory concentrations of fire on the part of the enemy to which we replied. On the Carso attacks on our line south of Castagnevizza were completely repelled. We took some prisoners.

CARSO VICTORY COMPLETE.

150,000 Troops, with 2,000 Guns, Fail to Recover Lost Positions.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ITALIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS, June 11.—General Boroevic, commanding the Austrian Army on the Carso front, massed there 150,000 rifles and 2,000 cannon, but his counteroffensive has broken down completely. The recent Italian offensive, which attained all its objectives, deprived him of formidable fortifications on the middle Isonzo and the Carso, and his failure to recover them will, it is believed here, have a far reaching effect in Austria-Hungary.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Austrian counteroffensive has broken down completely, according to official advices received here today from a member of the Italian Cabinet. The positions at Faite and Jamiano, captured by the Italians in their offense, have been successfully held against the extremely heavy counterattacks of the Austrians, the dispatches report. In the Carso alone 150,000 troops and 2,000 big guns were used by the Austrians in their attacks.

The Italians have adopted a new system of machine gun warfare that was used to great advantage in the recent fighting. The machine guns have been detached from infantry regiments and organized as independent commands, giving them a mobility in mountainous terrain heretofore impossible.

"The Austrian counteroffensive on the Carso has been broken," the dispatches read. "The furious attacks against our defenses at Faite and Jamiano have been repulsed with heavy losses and the advance of the enemy was stopped at the banks of the Timavo River.

"The brave defenders of our brilliantly won advanced positions held with the utmost tenacity despite the fact that on the Carso front alone the Austrians hurled 150,000 troops and the concentrated fire from 2,000 big guns against us. The counteroffensive was directed by the Austrian General Boroevic.

"The Austrian counteroffensive on the Middle Isonzo and the Carso, although having reached an extremely violent stage, failed miserably. In every sector the Austrians failed to reach their objective.

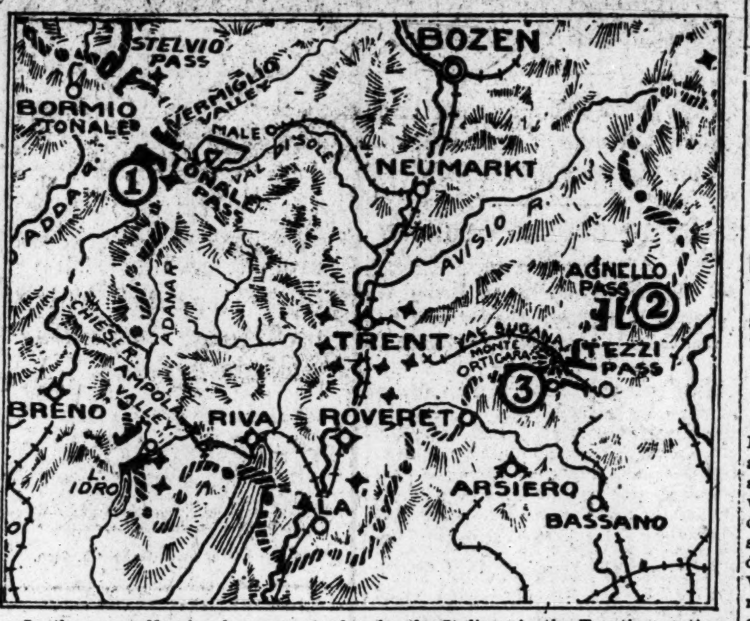
"The Austrian counteroffensive was ordered for the purpose of overcoming the political and financial effect of the Italian advance.

"From a military point of view the Austrian counterattack proved abortive. Even Austrian writers on the war now admit that the Italian offensive succeeded in its objective and that the efforts of the Italian arms deserve the highest admiration.

"The correspondent of the Kölnische Zeitung, writing from the Austrian Great Headquarters, says that after two years of fighting the Italian army has reached its highest state of efficiency. Only such an army, with the necessary equipment, could have gained the results achieved during the offensive—a struggle that perhaps the army of no other great nation has had to make.

"Machine gun companies, acting independent of other units, played an important part in the Italian offensive, the Austrian correspondent continues. The added mobility of these troops, the writer says, enables them to perform the work of four companies of infantry in mountain fighting."

Theatre of New Italian Offensive



In the new offensive begun yesterday by the Italians in the Trentino section of the front a blow was struck successfully in three places—in the region of Tonale Pass, (1,) where the Austrians were driven back; at Agnello Pass, (2,) which was captured, and on the Asiego Plateau, at Monte Ortigara, which is 6,924 feet high, almost the whole of which was taken.

CRISIS IN ROME CABINET.

Question of Albanian Independence Brings Old Quarrel to a Head.

ROME, June 11, (via Paris.)—A crisis in the Italian Cabinet has developed when least expected, only a few days before the reopening of Parliament, which is fixed for June 14. For some time a disagreement between the members of the Cabinet has been known to exist, especially between Baron Sonnino, Minister of Foreign Affairs, and the other Ministers.

The friction reached a climax when the members of the Italian mission had to be selected. Then Baron Sonnino put his veto on the appointment of several persons whom the other Ministers considered most suitable for the task, and declared that he would resign if their appointment was insisted upon. Wishing to avoid a crisis in such a grave moment of the nation's history, the Cabinet ceded to Sonnino's opinion.

This was one of the chief causes of delay in appointing the mission, in addition to the refusal of the Duke of the Abruzzi to return to America for personal reasons. The life of the Cabinet, however, seemed assured, particularly after the recent successes on the Carso front, when suddenly a proclamation was published announcing the independence of Albania under an Italian protectorate.

As the Foreign Minister has admitted that it would perhaps have been better to submit the proclamation of Albanian independence to the Council of Ministers before publishing it, hopes are entertained that an agreement will be reached before the reopening of the Chamber. Naturally those already strongly antagonistic to the Premier are desirous of a discussion in the Chamber and Senate with a view of giving some indication to the King of the best means to solve the crisis. Some still trust that the influence of the King and the patriotism of Premier Boselli and the other Ministers may be strong enough to keep the Ministry in office. The King has arrived in Rome from the front and will take the situation in hand.

Among those Ministers who have threatened to resign are Leonida Bissolati, leader of the Reformist Socialists; Signor Bonomi, also a Reformist Socialist and Minister of Public Works; Signor Comandini, Republican, and Signor Fera, Minister of Posts.

NORTHCLIFFE HERE AS MISSION'S HEAD

Says His Task Will Be to Coordinate the Work of British Agencies.

NO TIME FOR SOCIAL EVENTS

Sailed 33 Hours After He Accepted Appointment — Pleased to Return to America.

Lord Northcliffe, proprietor of The London Times, The London Daily Mail, and forty other English publications, arrived in New York yesterday on his way to Washington to take up his duties as head of the British Commission in the United States. He will divide his time between this city and Washington. Lord Northcliffe announced at once on his arrival that, owing to the pressure of work for his Government, he would not be able to attend any social entertainments. He courteously declined to comment on the war, the censorship, and similar topics which were suggested to him.

From the time the post was offered to him by Premier Lloyd George until he sailed for America only thirty-three hours elapsed. His office staff will arrive in a few days.

After going to a hotel Lord Northcliffe met some of the members of the British Commission stationed in New York and afterward went for a walk in Central Park. When asked for an interview he gave out a statement which he had prepared on the voyage, which he declined to amplify. The statement reads:

"The War Cabinet has designated me head of the British War Mission to the United States, and I have been instructed to try to co-ordinate the work of the various admirable British organizations already established here. These are charged with the task of supplying our war and other needs. Until I present my credentials at Washington it is impossible, of course, for me to make any further statement.

"I can, however, express my very great personal pleasure at being again in America, which I have so often visited and which has many delightful associations and friendships for me; nor is it saying too much when I add that the whole British people have a profound sense of grateful appreciation of the magnificent welcome accorded Mr. Balfour and his associates and the complete success of his mission.

The new head of the British commission appeared to be in the best of health and full of vigor. He wore a blue serge suit, soft gray hat and red-checked tie, and carried a Malacca cane. Golf and motoring will be his recreations, when he takes any, during his stay in this country. He brought his golf outfit on the ship.

It is understood that the special mission of Lord Northcliffe will be to see that the British sub-commissions in the United States on ammunition, food, aviation and other branches of war needs shall co-operate, not only among themselves, but with the other commissions of the Allies in this country.

FRENCH REPULSE ATTACKS.

Germans Attempt Two Surprise Enterprises North of the Aisne.

PARIS, June 11.—The official communication issued by the War Office tonight reads:

Two enemy surprise attacks on our outposts near Courcy met with no success.

There was intermittent cannonading over the greater part of the front, but in the region of Mont Carnillet the artillery of both sides was very active.

The afternoon announcement follows:

There was rather unusual activity of the artillery on both sides north of the Somme and in the region of Cerny. To the west of the village the enemy attempted a new surprise attack and was repulsed.

Patrol encounters occurred near Hill 304 and in the Woevre. The night was calm on the remainder of the front.

CANADIAN LOSSES 65,549.

OTTAWA, June 11.—Canadian casualties at the French front between June 30, 1916, and June 5, 1917, totaled 65,549, it was announced here tonight. The number of recruits secured during that period totaled 74,510. Casualties from Feb. 1, 1917, to April 30, 1917, were 17,645, and enlistments during that period were 19,584.

Of the 65,549 casualties during the last year 12,064 were killed in action, 3,810 died of wounds, 911 died of sickness, 1,328 are presumed to be dead, 603 are missing, 45,825 were wounded, and 1,010 are prisoners of war.

Of the 17,545 casualties during February, March, and April, 3,071 were killed in action, 842 died of wounds, 502 died of sickness, 426 are presumed to be dead, 12,248 were wounded, 490 are missing, and 61 are prisoners of war.

WAR COSTS BRITAIN $39,420,000 A DAY

Bonar Law Tells Commons We Have Lent England $2,000,000,000 Since 1914.

LONDON, June 11.—Andrew Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that the average daily expenditure of the Government in the first nine weeks of the fiscal year worked out as $39,420,000.

In reply to a question Bonar Law announced that since the beginning of the war Great Britain had borrowed from the United States a total of $2,000,000,000.

KRONSTADT REBELS AGAIN DEFY CABINET

Henderson Tells Petrograd Council the Kind of Peace British Labor Wants.

By HAROLD WILLIAMS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, June 10.—The conflict with Kronstadt has again become acute. After the visit of Ministers Tseretelli and Skobeleff to the refractory islanders a compromise was patched up in the shape of a formal recognition by the Kronstadt Council of the authority of the Provisional Government. The recognition was a very limping one, and contained a wholly unsatisfactory clause to the effect that Kronstadt should have the right to elect a representative or Governor in the island.

This tottering settlement lasted only one day. As soon as the Ministers had left the Maximalist agitators got to work, the decision of the local council general was reversed, and on Thursday evening a delegation came to inform the Provisional Government that the declaration of independence still remained in force.

Meantime very strong feeling had been rising in Petrograd against Kronstadt and even from the distant province of Saratoff a meeting of peasants telegraphed a protest against the laxity of the Government in permitting such open defiance of authority. The Provisional Government decided on Thursday night to take strong measures and on Friday at a full meeting of the Petrograd Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates it was resolved to sharply condemn the Kronstadt Council and to demand immediate and complete submission to the Provisional Government.

On Saturday the Provisional Government issued a strongly worded order for submission, and this firm display of authority, supported energetically and without reserve by the Petrograd Council, had a greatly bracing effect here, whatever the result may be in Kronstadt.

So far the country has hardly had an opportunity to realize that the humane and amiable men who form the Russian executive are actually a Government. The Kronstadt incident is both stupid and dangerous, but it is a good test case, and if the Government is able to act firmly here it means that the principle of authority is beginning to take root in revolutionary Russia.

The very fact that the Government feels itself able to adopt a stern tone and that it received complete support from the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Delegates is a recognition of the definite trend of public opinion. Public sentiment, for all its chaotic character, does most obviously, apart from a small but noisy minority, demand one thing, and that is authority and order.

Up till Saturday evening the stern order of the Government had not disturbed the normal course of life in Kronstadt. It is rumored that probably the ships will obey orders, but the attitude of the garrison is still undetermined. In the meantime the rebel local council ejected the Government Commissioner and has taken the administration of the town into its own hands.

Yesterday afternoon Arthur Henderson by invitation had a long interview with the Executive Committee of the Petrograd Council of Delegates, and many questions were considered, including the organization of labor in England industrially and politically. The conditions of the conference of allied Socialists which the Labor Party has decided to hold in London engaged serious attention, as also did the international congress convoked by the council. The committee decided to consider the question as to whether the Petrograd or London conference might be regarded as preliminary to the international conference.

Henderson described the kind of peace considered desirable by the British democracy. "It must be a real peace, such a peace as would prevent the possibility of ourselves or our children being ruled by brute force," he said. Members of the committee asked other questions, to which Henderson gave exhaustive answers that seemed to satisfy the majority of the committee.

CONSCRIPTION BILL OFFERED IN CANADA

OTTAWA, June 11.—A bill for compulsory military service by Canadians between the ages of 20 and 45 years was presented in the House of Commons today by Sir Robert Borden.

The Premier said that on Jan. 1, 1915, he had authorized the enlistment of 500,000 men for overseas service and the offer was taken as a pledge that the number would be raised. Under the voluntary system, he declared, more than 400,000 men had been raised and their services had brought cheer to the British and glory to Canada.

Lately the number of men volunteering had fallen off while the demand for men increased, Sir Robert explained. To date Canadians had suffered casualties to the number of 99,000. In April and May last 11,790 men had been enlisted in Canada, while there had been 17,322 casualties among Canadians at the front. There were under arms enough Canadians to supply reinforcements for some time to come, but for military reasons he could not say how long.

But during the next seven months, to keep four Canadian army divisions in the field the enlistment of 70,000 men was needed and to keep five divisions in the field 84,000 men were needed, he pointed out; there was a greater number of suitable men in Canada. It had been decided that they should be brought to arms by compulsion. All Canadians under a law which had been on the statute books for forty-nine years, were liable for the defense of the country and liable to be sent abroad if the Government decided that in defending the country they should fight beyond its boundaries. Today the first line of Canadian defense was in the North Sea with the British fleet and in the trenches of France with the Canadian divisions. When the Canadians at Ypres barred the Germans from Calais on April 22, 1916, they barred the way also to London, to Halifax and to Montreal.

REFUSES TO CANCEL SOCIALISTS' PASSPORTS

British Government Acting on Advice of Henderson and Ambassador to Russia.

LONDON, June 11.—The Government has declined to cancel the passports of James Ramsay MacDonald and Frederick W. Jowett, who have been prevented from sailing for Petrograd to meet Russian Socialists by the National Seamen's and Firemen's Union. The Government explained that they were issued in response to the request of the Russian Government upon the advice of Arthur Henderson, member of the War Council and representative of labor, who is now in Russia, and the British Ambassador, Sir George Buchanan.

A motion to adjourn the House tonight as a protest against the granting of the passports was defeated without division after Mr. Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had made the foregoing explanation.

The position of MacDonald and Jowett is still uncertain. They are still at the port from which they intended to depart, with George H. Roberts, the Labor Whip, who considered it inadvisable to proceed while others were detained. But Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst and some of the other delegates sailed.

According to a Central News report MacDonald and Jowett have signed an acceptance of a guarantee that they would insist upon restitutions to allied merchant seamen for the murder and destruction committed by German submarines, which would mean that the Seamen's and Firemen's Union would withdraw their embargo. This, however, is not confirmed officially.

The British Seafarers' Union of Glasgow has offered to supply a crew to take them to Russia.

The National Seamen's and Firemen's Union has asked the American union to prevent the departure of pacifists who may attempt to leave American ports. The union offered no opposition to the departure of Mrs. Pankhurst and Mr. Roberts.

CZAR'S PALACE FOR ROOT.

American Mission Expected to Reach Petrograd Today.

PETROGRAD, June 11.—The special train which is bringing Elihu Root and the American Commissioners to Petrograd is due here tomorrow evening. Representatives of the Russian Government and the entire staff of the American Embassy will meet the commission at the station. The commission will be conducted immediately to quarters arranged for them in the Winter Palace, which will be thrown open for the first time since the revolutionary flag replaced the insignia of the old empire.

The Commissioners were met at Perm last night by Barone Lamzai, representing the Russian War Office, and Basil Miles, special representative of the State Department at Petrograd. Baron Lamzia and a Captain representing the navy will be attached to the commission during its stay in Petrograd.

The arrival in Petrograd of the Americans will be in the nature of a surprise, as the journey of the commission has been conducted with such expedition and secrecy that the press and public have not yet been even informed that they have left Vladivostok.

The Foreign Office declared today that it expected great results from American co-operation.

"America has shown us since the revolution greater friendship and sympathy than any other nation," said a Foreign Office official. "She was the first to recognize the new Government and she has shown her willingness to assist us in many ways. We are eager to receive the American Commission, and regard its visit here as a still further symbol of the proof of the bonds of friendship and understanding which unite the two countries."

as members of the delegation were Representatives Nolan, Zeihlman, Keating, Van Dyke, London, Hamilton, and Sullivan; Frank Morrison, Secretary of the American Federation of Labor; Albert J. Perres, Secretary of the Metal Trades Council; P. J. McNamara, Vice President and National Legislative Representative of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen; W. N. Doak, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; W. M. Clark, Vice President and National Legislative Representative of the Brotherhod of Railroad Conductors, and Thomas Flaherty, Secretary of the National Federation of Postal Clerks.

The task of collecting data from all over the country concerning living conditions has been going on for weeks.

These data are in shape to place before Senate and House. Organized labor, as represented by its leaders here, feels that the best result can be obtained by the adoption of the food legislation with as little debate as possible. They feel that the great mass of workers are ready to co-operate if Congress approaches the problem in the same spirit. Agitation, they feel, is dangerous to the best interests of the country.

President Wilson, it was said tonight, was particularly pleased with the spirit indicated by the labor leaders at the conference, and felt that the display of such a spirit was a long step toward the solution of the problem.

Right of Way for Food Bill.

The Food Control bill, which, as reported by the committee, makes the President a virtual food and fuel dictator so far as the United States is concerned, will have the right of way in the House following completion of consideration of the River and Harbor bill.

Chairman Lever said if a filibuster should develop over the waterway bill he would seek to displace that measure with the food measure.

The Food bill gives the President sweeping powers to regulate the transportation, storage, distribution, and sale of foodstuffs and to fix minimum prices if minimum guarantees are deemed necessary to stimulate production. The committee, as already announced, struck from the bill the proposed maximum price provision. This action, it is understood, was partly on the advice of Herbert C. Hoover, who will be the President's food administrator. The administration, it is understood, believes that the purpose of this clause can be accomplished under the hoarding clause.

One of the far-reaching authorizations in the bill is that giving the President authority to regulate, or to suspend entirely, operations on exchanges and boards of trade if the President believes that speculation in foodstuffs is creating artificial prices and is interfering with the orderly and proper distribution of foodstuffs.

The committee retained the section which gives the President power to limit, or to prevent entirely, the use of foodstuffs for the manufacture of alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages.

The wilful destruction and the hoarding of food are forbidden under penalty of fine and imprisonment, and the President is empowered to take over storage houses, mines and factories to meet any food crisis.

The committee included fuels in the bill, but eliminated "shoes, clothing and other necessities of life."

Control of Storage Warehouses.

The President is authorized "to purchase and provide for the production or manufacture of necessaries; to store them and provide storage facilities for them by construction, purchase, lease, or otherwise; to sell them; and to require any person having the control of any necessaries to furnish the whole or any part of such necessaries or storage space to the Government in such quantities, at such times and at such prices as shall be determined by the President to be reasonable."

It is provided that if the President commandeers storage places, mines, or manufactories, and the price set by him is not satisfactory to the owner, the later may sue in the Federal Courts for the difference claimed.

The President is authorized to requisition and take over for the Government any factory, mine, or other plant "whenever the President shall find that it is impossible by license or voluntary arrangement or agreement to assume an adequate and continuous supply of necessaries."

Should the President establish regulations for the conduct of exchanges and boards of trade, or clearing houses in conjunction therewith, persons who violate such regulations are subject to a fine of not more than $10,000 or imprisonment of not more than four years, or both. A fine of not more than $5,000, or imprisonment not more than two years, or both, is provided for persons who violate regulations which the President may issue regarding the use of foods and food materials in the manufacture of alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages.

stantly by an enormous shell fire directed by the new observation the British gained at Messines, and during the past twenty-four hours, up to the time I write, he shows no further sign of asking for trouble, but is obviously engaged in reorganizing his forces demoralized by defeat and getting his guns into safer positions.

Many of his guns lie battered and buried about the battlefield and some of his batteries, put out of action by the British bombardment, remain between the new lines and his, but are so covered by the British fire that he has a poor chance of getting them away. His loss in guns, trench mortars, and machine guns is most alarming to him, for I have no doubt at all, after seeing the frightful effect of the bombardment, that these were destroyed on a large scale, so that the number of trophies will not at all represent his actual loss in weapons and material of war.

More terrible to the unfortunate soldiers of the German Army is the devilish punishment inflicted upon them during the past ten days, culminating on that day of the battle when every weapon for the slaughter of men, from the heaviest of high explosives to boiling oil and gas shells, was let loose upon them in one great tempest of destruction, which blew them out of the earth and off the earth, and frizzled them, and blinded them, and choked them, and mutilated them, and made them mad.

Many Prisoners Stark Mad.

One German boy of not more than 15 years of age was found yesterday lying in a shell hole by the side of a dead man who had been shot through the temple, and he was a gibbering idiot through fear. Not the only one. German officers say many of their men went raving mad under the strain of the British bombardment and tried to kill their comrades or themselves or fell into an ague of terror, clawing their mouths with all the symptoms of the worst shell shock.

Many prisoners believe they were betrayed and were sacrificed coldly and deliberately by their higher command. Before the battle an order of the day was issued to them telling them to hold out if surrounded and to fight their way back with the bayonet because behind them would be fresh divisions ready to support immediate counterattacks. Those fresh divisions never appeared. They had no chance of getting near the British lines because of the far-reaching fire and the activity of the aircraft—and the men of Messines and Wytschaete and all the ground south of St. Eloi were cut off and captured if they didn't die.

After the first British assaults the enemy, panic-stricken, were more concerned in getting away their guns than in protecting their troops, and they were left to the mercy of the British. Walking about those monstrous mine craters which were torn out of the earth at dawn on June 7 and across the old German lines beyond St. Eloi on the left of the attack southward by Wytschaete and the lower slopes of Messines today as after the morning of the battle I pitied any human souls who had to suffer what these German soldiers must have suffered in the agony of fear before death came to many of them. All this great stretch of country is blasted and harrowed and holed with monstrous pits.

There was at least one great shell to every nine yards, and at 200 yards its flying steel has killing power. No idea of it can be conveyed by words describing this upheaval of sand bags and barricades and trenches and redoubts and this sieve of earth, pitted by countless shell craters. All the woods where the Germans lived—Oaten Wood and Dam Strasse Wood and Ravine Wood down to Wytschaete Wood and Hell Wood—are but gaunt stumps sticking out of ash-gray heaps of earth.

The German dead lie here and there in batches or in rows as they were shot down by enfilade fire, but I have seen very few bodies, for most of them were buried in the upheaved earth, as one can tell by the foul vapors which creep out from the smashed trenches, where great dugouts have collapsed and tunnels fallen in, so that all this battleground is a graveyard of men buried as they died or before they died.

Three men escaped by some wild freak of chance from a mine crater under the mound of St. Eloi. I stood on the lip of it today, high above its shelving sides, and found it hard to believe any living thing could have escaped from its upheaval. But the Germans had many dugouts in the old craters which existed here before this last one was blown and after that ferocious fighting a year ago when we lost this ground. One of those dugouts remained firm when a British mine was touched off four days ago, and out of its mouth crept two days later three haggard men, still shaking and dazed, who had been deep in the ground when all about them the earth was hurled sky-high with a rush of gas and flame and monstrous uproar. They were unscathed except in their souls, where terror lived.

By my side today as I looked down into this pit of hell stood a man who had worked for a year in the making of it, an Australian officer of engineers. He stood smoking a pipe on the edge of the shell crater and said in a cheerful way:

"It is good to be in the fresh air again."

The fresh air did not seem to me very good there this morning. It was filled with abominable noises which are the menace of death—the savage whine of German shrapnel flung about between the Bluff and St. Eloi in a haphazard way and heavy crumps searching for the British batteries in their new positions and British shells whistling over in long flights, hideous sounds in the ghastly scene which filled me with nausea, but I understood this Australian's craving for an open air life, even such open air as this, when he told me he had been working underground for nearly two years, in dark saps pierced under the German lines and running very close to German saps, nosing out of the way and sometimes breaking through to the British saps so that the men clawed at each others' throats in these tunnels and beat each other to death with picks and shovels or were blown to bits by mine explosions.

Buried for 48 Hours Alive.

It is always a race for time to blow up the charges, and sometimes the enemy was first and sometimes the British, and once the enemy in a great attack against the Canadians got in and blew up their shafts and sapheads and cut off the British tunnellers. That Australian officer was one of those. For forty-eight hours he was buried alive, and had to dig his way out, so now, after his job is done, he likes the open-air life.

"No more underground work for me after this war," he said. "I've had enough of it."

The German ground hereabouts was taken by those troops whose fighting across the Dam Strasse and in Ravine Wood I described yesterday. Through them went another body of troops, whose fortunes I described in other battles, including some Irish lads, who have a padre for a hero, and English country troops, who knew the look of Vimy Ridge before the Canadians reached the crest of it. They had to make the final assault to the furthest line of attack, passing through the masses of men who had taken the first lines. All this was rehearsed in the field behind the battle ground so thoroughly that the men could have gone forward blindfolded.

It all went like clockwork, and although the enemy fought hard on that last line beyond Dam Strasse by Rose Wood and Bug Wood, one post holding out with machine guns, the men captured it with few casualties. They took 300 prisoners that day, with six field guns and their spirit is high after the victory. Next morning the Irish padre was seen sitting outside a shell hole with a clean white collar and white socks, with his boots off. "Well done, boys!" he said, and they were glad to see him there.

All the men were wonderfully inspired by belief in their guns, so that they walked close behind the frightful barrage. Each body of troops vied with other regiments in friendly rivalry. There was a race between the South and North Irish as to whether the green flag or the orange should be placed first above the ruins of Wytschaete. I don't know which won, but both flags flew there when the crest had been gained.

BULGARIAN PREMIER CONFERS WITH KAISER

Radoslavoff Predicts the Eventual Success of Peace Negotiations with Russia.

AMSTERDAM, June 11, (via London.)—Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria was summoned to Homburg Castle on Saturday night, after his arrival in Berlin, and spent Sunday in conference with the German Emperor and Field Marshal von Hindenburg. Later he departed for Vienna.

The Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger reports that its Saturday evening issue was suppressed for publishing a report that a peace deputation from the Austrian Army had arrived at Petrograd. The report was taken from Petrograd dispatches to English newspapers.

COPENHAGEN, June 11, (via London.)—The unsuccessful attempt made recently by M. Rizow, Bulgarian Minister to Germany, to open negotiations for a separate peace with Russia through letters to Maxim Gorky and the Russian Ministers at Christiania and Stockholm, is publicly approved by Premier Radoslavoff of Bulgaria in an interview in the Vossische Zeitung of Berlin. M. Radoslavoff expresses the conviction that in time the efforts will be successful.

BERLIN, June 11, (via London.)—Bulgaria has no intention of trying to carry the war into Greece, according to a statement made by the Bulgarian Premier in an interview given to the Berlin newspapers on Saturday. M. Radoslavoff said that the Bulgarians were in a position successfully to assume the offensive against General Sarrail's army, but added:

"It is not in the direction of our politics, however, to carry the war into Greece.

The Minister declared that the political and economic situation in Bulgaria was wholly satisfactory. He said that the crops, both in Bulgaria and Serbia, promised to be the best in recent years.

U-BOAT SINKINGS ARE RISING AGAIN

has been conserved. Potatoes were unobtainable for a while, but now the use of seed potatoes only is prohibited and a new crop is available, the only question being the price.

At Ranelagh Club on Saturday they gave the American Ambassador, a guest, only three tiny lumps of sugar for two portions of tea. People are learning to use less sugar, and to their own advantage. The bread ration of three pounds a week is made by a Government recipe. It is a great improvement on the former bread and saves white flour, whole wheat being utilized.

Vegetables and fruits are dear but comparatively plentiful, and there is enough meat for everybody if used in moderation. Owing to the general and profitable employment, the high prices are not burdensome. A greater area of land was planted, but there is much fallow land. Owing to labor shortage numbers of women are working the land. If the danger of a reduction of England by the submarine exists, one encounters no sign of it anywhere.

Just now there is considerable buoyancy on account of the Messines victory, but even aside from that conditions are cheerful. The streets are crowded, trade is good, the darkening of cities has been modified, and what remains is no longer depressing, as it is daylight until 10 o'clock.

The Lloyd George Government is somewhat less popular, but still invulnerably strong.

Lord Northcliffe's absence creates a relaxing atmosphere. One imagines that there is less bite in that portion of the press. I learn that he was most reluctant to drop the reins and accept the mission offered him, much as he enjoys visiting America.

General Pershing and his staff are getting a typical British welcome, just the sort the General himself likes for its quietness and restraint. To compare the Pershing demonstration here to the welcomes to Joffre and Balfour in New York is to liken a Summer zephyr to a Kansas cyclone. Everybody, from the King down, has saluted General Pershing and his party with becoming and appropriate courtesy, but the fact is that the English do no know how to yell.

A like comment applies to Mr. Balfour's return. No popular demonstration awaited him. The papers all gave him editorial approval for the success of his mission and about sticks of matter under a two-line head in the news columns.

STRONGLY OBJECT TO ADVERTISING TAX

WOULD SHARE WAR BURDENS

But Ask Senate Committee to Consider Those Under Which They Already Labor.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A protest against the 2 per cent. special advertising tax tentatively written into the War Tax bill by the Senate Finance Committee was made today in a statement by Urey Woodson of Kentucky, representing the Inland Daily Press Association, comprising newspapers published in cities of 10,000 to 50,000 population in ten Central Western States.

The committee is reconsidering its decision to substitute the flat advertising tax for the zone system increases in second-class mail rates of the bill as it passed the House.

Mr. Woodson's statement says:

"We have learned with deepest concern of proposals to put upon the newspapers a tax which would be almost destructive of our property in view of the recent increase in the cost of newsprint paper, amounting to 100 per cent. or more to many publishers. We are here to earnestly appeal to the committees of Congress not to put this crippling burden upon our business. The proposed tax on advertising receipts would be a tax upon gross sales. Advertising space is the only commodity that a newspaper has for sale, receipts from circulation being, as is well known, more than absorbed by the cost of materials alone. Even if the newspaper business could bear this burden, we are unable to see why this business should be taxed on its gross sales unless the tax is equitably distributed by a similar levy upon all other business.

"It is very well known that in times of business depression the merchant's first thought of economy is to cut down his advertising. He cannot get his rent reduced, nor his heat, light, or power, nor can he discharge his clerks; but when business is dull he feels he must drop out his advertising. Thus, a tax on gross advertising receipts would be especially dangerous and harmful. Why should advertising, the greatest promoter of business in all lines, be thus penalized? The press of this country could not submit to this dangerous precedent without the most earnest protest. If a 2 per cent. tax should be placed upon our gross advertising now, why not 4 per cent., or even 10 per cent., a year from now, when the country's war obligations may be quadrupled?

"Newspaper publishers emphatically subscribe themselves as not only willing but anxious to bear their just and full share of the burden of war financing. They do not believe that they should bear an unjust burden, or that the life of their business should be threatened as it now is and has been for many months by the unparalleled combination of the paper mills, and with this proposed Congressional action as a final blow which the weaker ones cannot stand."

INCOME TAX SECTION RADICALLY CHANGED

Senate Committee Strikes Out Retroactive Levy—Alters Corporation Profits Provision.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Radical changes in the income tax section of the House War Tax bill, previously agreed to tentatively, were finally approved today by the Senate Finance Committee. The retroactive tax on 1916 incomes, designed to raise $108,000,000, and the so-called Lenroot amendments increasing surtaxes on incomes of more than $40,000 to bring in about $66,000,000, were stricken out.

The committee spent the entire day on the income section, and at adjournment a proposal by Senators Penrose and Lodge for further reduction of surtaxes on incomes exceeding $40,000 was pending.

Important amendments regarding income taxation of corporations' stock dividends and receipts from subsidiary corporations were adopted. Stock dividends, the committee proposes, shall be taxed on the amount of earnings or profits so distributed, in accordance with the present Treasury Department practice.

To prevent double income taxation of corporation profits, it was decided to exempt from taxation income received by a holding or other corporation from another corporation upon which the income tax has once been paid. This change has been urgently advocated by representatives of corporations.

Formal approval was given on amendment to repeal the present special tax of 12½ per cent. on war munitions. This had been informally agreed to on the ground that munitions manufacturers must pay the proposed increased income and excess profits taxes.

Most of the day's debate centred upon the Penrose-Lodge proposal further to reduce surtaxes on incomes of more than $40,000. It is understood that Senators La Follette, Gore, Thomas, McCumber and others vigorously opposed any further reduction in view of the committee's action in rejecting the Lenroot amendments. The present House surtaxes on such incomes range from 8 per cent. on those between $40,000 and $60,000 to 33 per cent. on incomes of more than $500,000. The amendments proposed would reduce the minimum and maximum rates to 7 and 20 per cent. respectively, with corresponding reductions in intermediate grades.

The committee plans to conclude the income tax section tomorrow and proceed to settle the rate on excess profits, with an increase from the House rate of 16 per cent. to at least 20 per cent. generally predicted. Settlement of the tax on newspapers, magazines, and other publications, it was indicated tonight, might be delayed several days.

GERMANS HINT BRITISH MAY INVADE HOLLAND

"Inspired" Writers Discuss the Possibility of an Attack from That Direction.

COPENHAGEN, June 11.—The German writers are now turning their attention with remarkable unanimity to the question of Holland's neutrality, picturing the possibility of a British attempt to violate this in order to turn the flank of the Germans, and inferentially the necessity of German countermeasures.

Count von Reventlow, chief editorial writer of the Tageszeitung; Captain von Salzmann, military critic of the Vossische Zeitung, and Lieut. Gen. Baron von Ardenne, military expert of the Tageblatt, are among those following the lead of the military press authorities in this respect, which obviously is intended as a threat and warning to the Netherlands. The question is coupled with an interesting discussion of the possibility that events will force another and decisive meeting of the German and British fleets.

Germany's War Press Bureau continues to turn out long reports and discussions of the military operations in the Wytschaete sector of Belgium to prove that the result of them was really a German success. It dilates upon the tremendous losses which it is sure the British must have had, despite Field Marshal Haig's report to the contrary, and upon the "swampy and indefensible nature" of the country abandoned, ignoring the fact that the German positions ran along the Wytschaete-Messines Ridge, the only high ground in the vicinity.

Most of the ostensible military critics follow the explanations given out by the Press Bureau, but Major Moraht, who, despite his recent transfer from the Berliner Tageblatt to the Deutsche Tageszeitung, continues to be the only Berlin military writer indulging in independent criticism, declares frankly that the British attained a tactical success, and, although citing semi-official assurances that the German front stands absolutely fast, says it is necessary to wait and see what will be the further results of these struggles in Flanders.

Major Moraht refers to Germany's submarine campaign as yet having shown no effect on the munitions supplies to the armies in France, and declares that as far as the effect upon the home population in France and England is concerned the reports in Germany's newspapers about a ferment among the laboring classes can scarcely be relied upon—that the wish in many cases is father to the thought, and that the respective allied Governments have the situation well in hand. Major Moraht also refers to the possibility of France undertaking an offensive in the Vosges Mountains and south of that region.

'SPY OR TRAITOR' GOT NAVY SECRETS

made in the public press of the introduction of my resolution, I received a communication under the date line of Detroit, Mich., purporting to give certain data concerning defective ammunition, and the inspection and testing thereof. Other communications followed from the same source.

"I did not then know the identity of the writer, nor do I now. As his charges against the Navy Department were serious, I finally, last Friday, sent him a telegram at Detroit, asking him to reveal his identity and source of information.

"The Western Union Telegraph Company advised me that the party addressed could not be located in Detroit.

"The next day I addressed the following letter to the Secretary of the Navy:

Dear Mr. Secretary:

I inclose herewith copies of three letters which I have received from a person in another city who desires his name withheld.

Inasmuch as the person makes certain charges and claims to give certain information of grave moment I feel in all fairness that you should be informed. I have neither instigated nor inspired these letters. I do not know the person who has written them. However, I feel that the correspondence he mentioned should be produced. I did not attach any importance to the letters until the last one was received, when I thought it well to bring all three to your attention.

"With my letter to Mr. Daniels I submitted copies of the communications I had received. Thus I made him fully acquainted in advance with the charges made against the efficiency of his department, that he might be equipped to answer them at the hearing before the Naval Affairs Committee today. In other words, I did not care to take snap judgment against him, preferring to treat him with a degree of generosity which I would like to have shown myself under similar circumstances.

"At today's hearing I presented the letters in question at an executive session of the committee.

"Mr. Daniels, it seems, has given publicity to the matter, and has denounced as 'either a spy or traitor' the writer of these letters. This is a remarkable use of the words 'spy' and 'traitor.' Whether or not the information given by the party in question is correct or incorrect, significant or insignificant, is a matter to be determined by the Committee on Naval Affairs.

"One thing seems perfectly clear, however: The object sought to be obtained by the writer of these letters, whoever he may be, has been the welfare of the country, to the end that no more Red Cross nurses shall be killed by dangerous ammunition, and that there shall be no repetition of the St. Louis fiasco, where 25 per cent. of the shells fired proved defective, or of the Philadelphia affair, where 60 per cent. of the shells fired exploded prematurely.

"Whoever the writer of these letters may be, his purpose is to aid the American and not the German cause. In the words of Patrick Henry, I can only say to Mr. Daniels, 'If this be treason, make the most of it.'

"These letters were written to me in confidence. I sent copies to the Secretary in confidence. They were submitted to the committee today in confidence. Upon Mr. Daniels rests the responsibility of giving publicity to the affair."

Following the "spy" incident, Admiral Earle, Chief of the Naval Ordnance Bureau, repeated, before the committee, evidence he gave at the previous hearing, when he said that defective mouth cups on the 6-inch shells used in the guns on the Mongolia, St. Paul, Philadelphia and St. Louis, were responsible for the accidents on those ships.

"Are you still using the brass cups on the 6-inch shells"? asked Senator Poindexter.

"Oh, no, we've abandoned them," was the reply. "Naturally, we wouldn't use them after learning that they were liable to cause premature explosions."

Senator Frelinghuysen read from a report of the Lieutenant in command of guns on the St. Louis telling of the explosion of three shells in the guns of the ship during her first trip to Europe. The Lieutenant reported that the lining of the guns was "gouged out." Senator Frelinghuysen wanted to know why the guns had not been removed if they were disabled.

"The guns were not put out of commission," replied Admiral Earle. "Nearly every day we fire guns whose rifling has been gouged out. It doesn't mean that they are disabled."

Senator Frelinghuysen offered a report of Lieutenant King of the Philadelphia, telling of premature explosion of five shells out of nine fired during a trip in May, the Lieutenant urging that, as the Philadelphia was a mail ship and often carried besides naval officers officials of the Diplomatic Service of this country and its allies, it ought to be provided with perfect ammunition. The Lieutenant referred to the gun batteries as damaged.

"That's right," assented Admiral Earle, "and we removed those guns as soon as we got the report. They will be relined before they are issued for service again."

Senator Poindexter remarked that Admiral Earle disagreed with the reports of the Lieutenants in command of gun squads on the vessels that the guns were not disabled.

"I say the guns could be used afterward, even though the rifling had been damaged," insisted the Admiral.

Admiral Earle said he knew of no other premature explosions on American ships than those mentioned, but he had heard of one on a French liner recently, in which parts of the brass cup flew back to the liner's deck.

"I do not think there ever was another accident aboard ship such as that on the Mongolia and the French ship," he added.

The Admiral, in reply to Senator Poindexter, said the navy had put guns on 365 ships since April 1, these being: Liners, 53; coastguard vessels, 7; yachts, 17; auxiliaries, 5; tugs, 13; patrol vessels, 231; merchantmen, 14; lighthouse tenders, 4; British merchant ships, 12; Russian vessels, 10.

None of the merchantmen had been equipped with 6-inch guns, he said, since the experience with them on the four steamers.

Admiral Earle thought the accident aboard the Mongolia was not "such an unusual one," even if it had not happened before. A brass cup might boomerang at any time, he said, although it usually would go straight out from the mouth of the gun and do no harm.

WOMEN TO RAISE BUDGET.

Propose to Supply $50,000 Needed for Defense Work.

Mrs. Willard Straight presided at the meeting of the Mayor's Committee of Women on National Defense in the City Hall yesterday afternoon, as Miss Ruth Morgan, Chairman, was ill. Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, Chairman of the Committee on Finance, suggested that the women should not only do their work but support it by supplying their own budget of $50,000. There was general expression of approval and the matter was referred to the Executive Committee with power to act.

Miss Virginia Gildersleeve, Dean of Barnard College and Chairman of the Committee on Agriculture, said farmers must be made to see the value of women's service on the farm. She said that when they accepted the women it was usually found that they wished them to assist with the kitchen work, which they all strenuously refused to do. The General Committee will form a home guard of women to act as chaperons at dances and entertainments which may be given when large numbers of the soldiers are in the city. Miss Anne W. Goodrich said there had been a favorable report from nurses' training schools, which had been asked to cut down their three years of training to two—which is the time required by the State—to obtain a supply of nurses more quickly.

DRAFT SLACKERS ORDERED ARRESTED

Period of Leniency Ends and Gen. Crowder Takes Steps for Vigorous Prosecution.

DRAGNET COVERS COUNTRY

All Governors Wired to Bring to Justice Men Who Evaded Registration—Ohio Leads Enrollment.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The period of leniencey ended tonight for men between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, who failed to register for the war army last Tuesday. Provost Marshal General Crowder sent to the Governors of all the States a message asking them "to inaugurate from tomorrow a vigorous, aggressive and effective enforcement of the penal clause of the selective service law against all who have by their failure to register brought themselves under these provisions."

The penalty for failure to register on June 5 is imprisonment for a year and enforced registration, but General Crowder immediately after registration day recommended that local registration boards provide further opportunity for delinquents.

The Department of Justice today notified United States attorneys to release those already arrested for failure to register, provided they have now registered.

General Crowder has nearly completed a draft of regulations to govern exemptions and exemption boards and expects to lay it before Secretary Baker in a few days for approval. The General believes that no class should be exempted as such, but that local boards should decide on the circumstances in each individual case. He favors use of some device, such as a jury wheel, for drawing the names of those to be examined by the exemption boards. The regulations will be made public in detail after Secretary Baker and President Wilson approve them.

When the Provost Marshal General's office closed tonight thirty-three States had sent in complete returns. They showed a total registration of 6,358,388, compared with census allotments totaling 7,063,482. The returns during the day about kept up the percentage of previous reports, and prediction as to the grand total that would be shown by all the States ranged today from 9,000,000 to 9,250,000.

In the thirty-three States reporting the white registrations were 4,817,980, colored 830,586, aliens 482,439, and enemy aliens 58,304. The possible exemptions indicated were 3,489,527.

Among States reporting so far, Ohio stands first in the proportion of registration to the census estimate, with 113 per cent. Illinois has 104.7 per cent., Wisconsin 104.6 per cent., New Hampshire 102.9 per cent., North Carolina 103 per cent., Iowa 101.3 per cent., and Connecticut 100.9 per cent. Washington is the lowest State, with 50.9 per cent.

A request that labor men be appointed to all exemption boards has been presented to the Provost Marshal General's office by Samuel Gompers.

Whitman Orders Aggressive Action.

ALBANY, June 11.—District Attorneys and Sheriffs of New York State were called upon tonight by Governor Whitman to exercise their full duties in an aggressive campaign to detect and arrest persons subject to the Federal registration of June 5, but who did not register. The Governor directed the officers to bring each case promptly to the attention of the nearest representative of the Federal Department of Justice.

Another McCoy Arrested.

ROANOKE, Va., June 11.—The Federal net sweeping the feud districts of the mountain country for anti-draft conspirators today brought in Calvin McCoy, a relative of William V. McCoy, already under arrest and charged with being at the head of the "revolution" which was to have murdered all the landed people of the vicinity and taken their property.

101 IRISH LEADERS TO FORM CONVENTION

Lloyd George Tells Commons of Plans and Carson Promises His Full Support.

ALL FACTIONS TO ATTEND

Ulster Leader Eulogizes William Redmond and Hopes to See Vexing Problem Solved.

LONDON, June 11.—One hundred and one men, representing every faction in Ireland and every walk of life, will compose the convention to be convoked to settle the vexing Irish problem. It will be presided over by a Chairman of its own selection, or, failing that, by a man chosen by the Government.

The convention will be a purely Irish assemblage. County, borough, and urban district councils will select their own representatives. The churches will be represented by their Bishops, or, in the case of the Presbyterians, by their Moderator, while the Chambers of Commerce of Dublin, Belfast, and Cork will name their own delegates, as will each political party. There will be five labor representatives.

In announcing the composition of the convention this afternoon in the House of Commons, Premier Lloyd George said that the Government had planned to make it representative of every-day life in Ireland, and so had invited the county councils and had asked each of the borough councils to send its Chairman. The urban councils had been invited to send two representatives each.

John Redmond, the Nationalist leader, would be invited to nominate five members of the Irish convention; Sir John Lonsdale would be invited also to nominate five members, and William O'Brien two members. There would be ten Irish reprsentative peers, five members of the Irish Unionist Alliance, five Sinn Feiners, and fifteen members nominated by the Government. The Irish Unionist Alliance represents the Unionists of the South of Ireland.

The fifteen members to be nominated by the Government, said the Premier, would be taken from among leading Irishmen of all sections. The Government, he added, would prefer that the convention nominate its own Chairman, but the Government was prepared to nominate one if necessary, and submit his name to the King.

The prelates in the convention would include four Catholic Bishops, the Primate and Archbishop of Dublin, representing Protestants, and the Rev. Dr. John Irwin, Moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly.

Mr. Lloyd George eulogized William Redmond, whose death from a wound, received at the front, was announced Friday. He said that Mr. Redmond was above all Irish, and felt that the war was Ireland's great opportunity for winning liberty for herself by fighting side by side with Great Britain in the world struggle for freedom.

Mr. Asquith associated himself with the Premier's tribute, and Joseph Devlin, Nationalist, thanked them for the references they had made.

Sir Edward Carson, First Lord of the Admiralty, in adding his tribute to that of the Premier, said he had never had a bitter word with Mr. Redmond in public or private.

He mentioned the fact that he had just returned from the Ulster conference and had strongly advised its members to enter the Irish convention. They could not disconnect in their minds, he continued, the calling of the convention and some incidents which had taken place, of which Mr. Redmond's death was one.

The Premier had told, said Sir Edward, how Mr. Redmond had been cared for and treated by Ulstermen on the battlefield.

"If in the trenches they could fight side by side in the common cause of liberty," added the speaker, "certainly so far as I am concerned I will do all in my power to assist in some solution of the Irish question which will meet the ideals of liberty of all parties in Ireland."

KILLED IN SINN FEIN RIOT.

Police Inspector at Dublin Receives Fatal Blow After Arrests.

DUBLIN, June 11.—Police Inspector Mills was injured last night while preventing the holding of a meeting called to protest against the imprisonment of Irish rebels and died early this morning.

Lieut. Gen. Mahon, commander of the British forces in Ireland, had forbidden the holding of the meeting, but in spite of his order 2,000 persons gathered opposite Liberty Hall. Count Plunkett, member of Parliament and Sinn Feiner, who was arrested in connection with the revolt of last year, and other defiant members of the Sinn Fein, attended the meeting with the intention of speaking.

Count Plunkett, Cathal Brughet, James Kenny, Rody Kelly, and Martin Welsn were arrested. While taking them to jail Inspector Mills was struck with a stick or stone and knocked down. His assailant has not been arrested.

PRESIDENT PLANNING AN IMPORTANT SPEECH

MISS BURDEN ENTERS PLEA.

Her Bail Fixed at $1,500 on Charge of Customs Law Violation.

Miss Evelyn Byrd Burden, sister of I. Townsend Burden, appeared before Judge Howe of the Federal District Court yesterday and pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging her with having violated the customs laws by taking part in a plan to bring into this country foreign-made goods without paying the duty. Bail was fixed at $1,500. The indictment of Miss Burden is another phase of the long continued inquiry into the charge against Mrs. Charlotte A. Warren, wife of Whitney Warren, of having placed a value of only $1,500 on goods brought by her from France in November, 1915, which were declared to be really worth $11,607.

The indictment charges Miss Burden, who came home with Mrs. Warren, with having declared that part of the wearing apparel belonging to Mrs. Warren which was seized by the customs officers was made in this country. It is charged that when she made this statement she "well knew said article of apparel was not of American origin and manufacturer," and was subject to duty. The trial of Mrs. Warren, which was to have been begun last week, has been again delayed because several of the important witnesses are abroad.

ACCUSED OF SLAYING KIDNAPPED BABY

Warrant Issued for Dick Carter and Nation-Wide Search Is Begun for Him.

WAS NEAR SCENE OF CRIME

10,000 Turn Out in Springfield to Witness Burial of the Murdered Child.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., June 11.—Baby Lloyd Keet, who was drowned in a well by the persons who stole him from a carriage in front of his home two weeks ago, was buried today. Thousands of Springfield citizens were at St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, where the services were held, and in the cortèges that followed the little white casket to Maple Park Cemetery. Grief for the stricken father and mother had overcome the lust for vengeance which manifested itself Saturday night and Sunday morning, when 10,000 persons, parading the streets, demanded the lives of the six persons suspected of complicity in the crime.

J. Holland Keet, the father, and his wife bore up bravely through the ordeal of the afternoon. The baby's grandmother, Mrs. Kate Keet, was unable to attend.

The services were simple. Several hymns were sung and prayer was offered. The body was then taken to the cemetery.

But the holding of the funeral did not stop the authorities from going ahead with the search for those who threw little Lloyd into the old well on the deserted Crenshaw farm, eight miles southwest of here. Paul O'Day, Prosecuting Attorney of this county, announced the issuance of the first warrant charging direct complicity in the death. It named Dick Carter, 26 years of age, of Springfield, as having suffocated Lloyd by wrapping blankets around the body until the baby was smothered. The warrant was issued late Saturday night.

The warrant against Carter was sworn out, authorities said, after statements had been made to them by W. L. Warner of Everton, Mo., who said that on the day after the baby's disappearance he looked into one of the windows of the deserted house on the Crenshaw farm where the body was found, and saw two men, one crouched on the floor, while the other, peering from behind a door, demanded of Warner what he wanted. Warner excused himself and departed. Complete descriptions of the men seen in the house were given to the authorities.

Private detectives, Federal agents, and the police of more than 100 cities have been asked to aid in capturing Carter.

Four of the six suspects, whom a mob surrounded at Stockton, Mo., early yesterday and threatened with death, still were in jail at the little Cedar County town. Two others—C. J. Piersol and Cletus Adams—were in jail at Kansas City, Mo., and again were subjected to questioning by Judge Johnson of the Greene County Criminal Court.

The departure of Federal agents from here to Kansas City was thought possibly to foreshadow developments in the case there. Little yet has come to the surface to show the reason for the activities of the Federal agents except the allegations that Piersol and others of the prisoners had discussed the abduction of a St. Louis munitions maker as part of a German plot to thwart traffic in war materials to the Allies.

At least one person whose name has not yet been announced is being sought by the authorities.

The letters sent to Mr. Keet after the baby's disappearance were made available today. While the context of the first letter had become generally known, Mr. Keet, following the abductor's instructions, had kept the last two letters secret. The first letter, received the day after Lloyd was stolen and which sent the father on a drive over the Ozark hills, instructed him minutely as to the composition of the $6,000 he was to pay over the return of the infant.

'SNOWBALL' ROLLS FOR MARINE CORPS

SERGEANT AND PRIVATE GO

They Will Pick Up All Who Will Follow, and Hope to Lead Hundreds to League Island.

For the first time in this country the Australian "snowball" method of recruiting was yesterday put to an actual test when Major Frank Evans, in charge of marine recruiting for the New York district, sent two members of the United States Marine Corps on a hike to Philadelphia to pick up along the way as many recruits as would be willing to follow them. The "snowball," made up of Sergeant Ray Trulock and Private Henry J. Clifford, rolled out of New York at 9 A. M. and will reach Philadelphia within four or five days. When it tumbles into the League Island training camp there, recruiting officers expect the ball to be several hundred times its original size.

The "snowball" was the principal feature which New York contributed yesterday to the opening of a nationwide drive to raise 4,000 recruits for the United States Marine Corps by Saturday. After this increase is obtained the Marine Corps will still be about 2,000 below war strength.

New York has been assigned a quota of 250 men out of the 4,000 that must be raised by Saturday. This means a daily average of more than 40 men. The first day of the campaign found this city fairly responsive, more than thirty men being enlisted. Captain Evans said there was no doubt that New York would more than fill its quota by Saturday.

Among the first men to respond yesterday was Nathan Dixon McClure of Lake Forest, Ill., a Yale junior and manager of the Yale soccer team. Being less than 20, McClure was too young to take an examination for a commission and enlisted as a private. He was put in charge of the other marine recruits when they left New York for the League Island Training School. Captain Evans received the following telegram from Governor Whitman:

"The fact that the marines are the 'First to Fight' makes it not only advisable but imperative that we recruit our marines corps to war strength with all possible speed. It is appropriate to call the attention of our citizens available for service to the fact that the Marine Corps was the first of the regular services, having been organized Nov. 10, 1775, by the Continental Congress. The marines are neither soldiers nor sailors but both, and the importance of full strength for the corps in the present stage of our military preparations is sufficiently indicated by the fact that men enlisting have immediate opportunity for service in France and with the fleet. I earnestly hope that the citizens of New York will contribute largely to recruiting the corps to its full war strength of 30,000 by the 1st of July, and that the present recruiting week will be made the immediate means to this end."

Colonel R. D. Walsh, in charge of regular army recruiting, reported that 250 men had been enlisted, which is just about the daily average that New York must supply to fill a quota of about 4,500 men by July 1.

Navy recruiting approached its usual Monday record of about 100 enlistments. Twenty-five men enrolled yesterday in the Naval Coast Defense Reserve, bringing the enrollment in this branch up to 8,662 men, or 1,838 short of the 10,000 required under the Navy Department orders. The men now needed are cooks, steam and power boat engineers, deck officers, marine machinists, wireless operators, oilers, and firemen who have had sea experience.

The ranks of the National Guard are being rapidly filled up, and some of the regiments are now nearly up to full war strength. Among the organizations that are making the most progress are the First, Third, and Seventh Regiments. The Fifteenth Infantry, which is the colored regiment, is setting the pace for all other organizations. This regiment has not only reached its war strength, but has gone beyond the 2,000 mark and is now recruiting for its depot unit.

IDAHO SEVENTH STATE TO FILL ARMY QUOTA

Has Furnished 658 Recruits Since April 1 — Needed Only 650 — New York Again Takes Lead.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—Idaho yesterday joined the list of States that have filled their quotas of recruits for the regular army, making a total of seven States that now have attained this honor. The other States are Indiana, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, Utah, and Wyoming. Idaho's quota is 650.

New York again was the leader in the recruiting during Saturday and Sunday, furnishing 189 of the 1,490 obtained in the two days. Pennsylvania was second, with 166, and Illinois third, with 100. The total recruited for the country since April 1 is 110,726, leaving 73,172 needed to raise the army to war strength. "I Would rather be Right than be President"
H. Clay

TO have the right standard and faithfully live up to it, this is the working motto of the Firestone Organization. Since Mr. Firestone founded the Company seventeen years ago, there has been no swerving from this quality rule. Success has come because the Firestone standard is "right" and every member of the Organization upholds it.

In the case of the Firestone super-size Cord Tire you will find that standard far above anything you have experienced. Strength and sturdiness are combined with a most responsive pliancy. The easy glide, the long coast mean the ride delightful, economical and sure.

11,000 Firestone employes are stockholders, owning shares in the business. It is to their advantage to make Firestone Tires "right" in all details of manufacture and sale.

Speedway Test That Further Proves Hudson Endurance

Four Cars Entered—Four Finished. First Place in the Free-for-all; Second, Seventh and Ninth Places for Hudson Super-Six Specials in the 250-Mile Cincinnati Memorial Day Sweepstakes Races.

The Hudson Super-Six was not designed for racing.

The aim was a car that would endure. All its records were made in tests that prove endurance.

With some changes a stock car is made suitable for racing, capable of out-performing most cars that are specially built for racing. The reason for this is the patented Super-Six motor which minimizes vibration.

Hudson Super-Sixes are entered in almost every race this year. Except for the championship events, they are entered by men whose only interest is to win prizes. These men are given no inducement to drive Hudsons, save the advantage the Super-Six gives in its performance. No price concessions are made them. They must make their cars suitable for racing at their own expense.

Ira Vail was the first driver to recognize the racing possibilities of the Super-Six. He bought a dealer's demonstrating car, removed the touring body, shortened the frame to racing length, mounted a racing body and in the 150-mile Metropolitan trophy race at Sheepshead Bay won second place and a $2,000 prize.

Now other drivers are doing what Vail did. There could be no stronger endorsement of the Hudson Super-Six. These experts want cars they can rely upon in the hardest trials known to the automobile.

You are not urged to buy a Hudson Super-Six to use as a race car. We know you will never want it for such purpose. You won't ever care to drive it at the rate of 102½ miles an hour, or to equal its record of 1,819 miles in 24 hours, both officially made by a stock chassis. You will never care to make a round trip across America in 10 days and 21 hours, the record excelling each way that of any other car, made by a Super-Six seven-passenger touring car.

But that the car you own is capable of such service is proof that there is no task you will impose that it is not more than equal to.

That is why the Hudson Super-Six is the largest selling fine car with a price above $1,200. Can any car offer greater proof of its endurance?

There are eight body types of the Hudson Super-Six chassis. Each car is in keeping with what you would expect to find on a chassis that has shown such convincing proof of its endurance.

You can get a Hudson Super-Six in eight different body types:

This trip is showing motorists everywhere the wear and tear that Hyatt Roller Bearings can actually stand.

The original bearings are located at points of greatest strain. Eight years old, but having delivered thirty years of normal service, they are still on the job, still giving perfect Hyatt Service—quiet, self lubricating, self cleaning, requiring no adjustment from the driver.

The bearings in your Hyatt-equipped car are identical in quality with these. You can measure the satisfaction you may expect from your Hyatts by their demonstrated record.

261,800 miles, the world's record for mileage—long drives over the roughest of country roads—winter drives through hub-deep snow, the abuse of livery and haulage service.

SPECIALIZED TUITION FOR OFFICERS' CORPS

Beginning Next Week, Students Will Divide Into Various Arms of Service.

RUDIMENTARY WORK ENDING

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The end of the present week, it was announced today, would mark the close of the general preliminary training for the 40,000 young men in the sixteen training camps for reserve officers. After that the young men will begin their specialization in military science and will cease to be "rookies."

The camps were opened May 15. All candidates except the engineers have pursued the same course in the fundamentals of military science. The second period begins June 18. It is of eight weeks' duration, closing Aug. 11, with the termination of the first series of camps. During the second period the students will be grouped by arms and pursue the corresponding course for each arm. During the initial period the 2,500 men in each camp were formed into infantry regiments and drilled as infantry. Special instruction was given only to the engineer candidates.

For the second period those students who are studying for appointment as infantry officers will continue to drill as infantry, and will receive instruction in the more advanced principles of infantry work, but the cavalry, artillery, and engineer candidates will be divided into appropriate groups for special instruction.

Most of the courses outlined for infantry candidates are so important to cavalry officers, however, that to avoid a duplication of instruction cavalry students will attend many of the conferences scheduled for infantrymen.

Artillery candidates will devote most of their time to drill and firing practice. Engineers will receive specialized instruction in the theory and practice of military engineering. Most of the engineer candidates are qualified as civilian engineers, but untrained as soldiers. Their courses have been arranged to enable them to become familiar with many phases of infantry work not ordinarily included in the scope of training for engineer troops, but having important bearing on the tactical application of military engineering. The last days of the camps, Aug. 8 to 11, will be devoted to manoeuvres in which all the arms will take part.

Curriculum for Infantry.

For infantry the curriculum of the second period includes range practice with rifle and pistol, physical drill, company and batallion drill, field work, and a series of conferences on military regulations, tactics, court-martial manual, hygiene, first aid, and the like. Much of the intensive training will be in bayonet fighting, use of machine guns, and in trench warfare.

Because the cavalry candidate must attend infantry conferences his working day will be forty-five minutes longer than that of the infantryman. The extra time is needed for the cavalry courses. Limited time is allowed for mounted work, and individual riding by students off duty will be encouraged by the camp instructors. The cavalry candidate will be taught to groom and care for horses. Instructions also includes equipment and the drill of platoon, troop, and squadron. A two-hour conference will be held each Saturday on cavalry science and the probable employment of mounted troops in the war with Germany.

Stable management, firing instruction, battery drill, signaling, material instruction, and conference on artillery science will make up the studies of the candidate for an artillery commission. The specialized period outlined for engineers has as its chief object to prepare the officers for their duties in the training of new organizations. Their instruction will include courses in organization and equipment, conferences on the use of engineers in war, engineer drill, tactical employment of military engineering, and equitation.

The engineer candidates will be instructed in what is expected of them in the theatre of war, the course including reconnoisance, pioneering, sapping and mining, demolitions, railroading, castramentation, and the care and feeding of animals. When the camps close Aug. 11 students who have demonstrated marked ability will be assigned to service with the selective draft army of 500,000 men.

After the first 500,000 troops have been organized it will be the policy of the Government to obtain officers by promotions from the regular army, National Guard, and selected forces. To supplement the number of officers promoted from troops in service, however, a second series of training camps will be held from Aug. 27 to Nov. 26, preference being given to applicants more than 31 years old. This period will be devoted to training and selecting officers for the second increment of 500,000.

Ten Camp Sites Chosen.

Camp sites for four additional cantonments for the new national draft army and six camps sites for the National Guard were announced by the War Department today as follows:

National Army cantonments: Little Rock, Southereastern Department; Louisville, Ky., and Battle Creek, Mich., Central Department; Fort Sam Houston, Texas, Southern Department.

National Guard camps: Fort Worth, Texas; Deming, N. M.; Waco, Texas; Houston, Texas; Ft. Sill, Oklahoma, Southern Department, Linda Vista, Cal., Western Department.

The selection of Petersburg, Va., for use as a National Army cantonment, announced last week, was today revoked.

TELL CHOICE OF SERVICE.

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., June 11.—All the students in the New York training regiment have indicated their preferences for the various branches of the service in which they desire to become officers. Out of the 2,776 men in the New York camp, 1,357 chose arms other than infantry, leaving 1,419 who hope to lead foot soldiers. With the exception of field artillery, most of the branches were oversubscribed. There were 238 students who applied for 150 cavalry places, 178 for the quota of 150 engineers, 111 for 9 aviation places, 262 for 100 coast artillery places, and 568 for 570 field artillery places. Most of those who applied for the Aviation Corps indicated field artillery as their second choice.

Major Edgar T. Collins, senior instructor of the New York regiment, made a recommendation which was sent to Washington that all the engineer and coast artillery applicants be sent to the special camps.

"We will never get a better class of men than we have here now, and I hope that the facilities of Fortress Monroe and Belvoir can be increased to care for them," he said.

The following is the preferential poll of the New York camp:

COMPANY 1.—V. J. Colletti, aviation; H. J. Fee, aviation; A. E. Garnsey, aviation; F. M. Hourigan, aviation; N. T. Kenyon, aviation; G. Kingston, aviation; J. C. Hillard, aviation; T. 150,000 Oversold

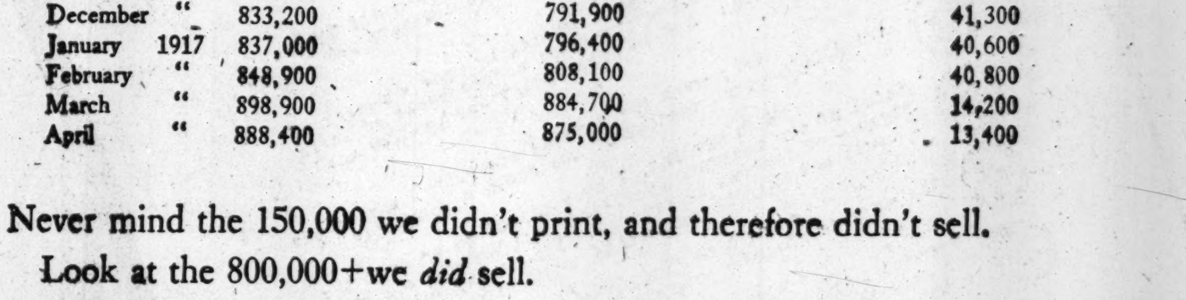
Two opportunities—
the one we missed and the one you get

So strong has been the demand for The AMERICAN MAGAZINE that paper and printing facilities were unable to supply it. Here are the figures for six months last winter:



Should have printed			Actually printed	Shortage
November	1916	784,000	777,800	6,200
December	"	833,200	791,900	41,300
January	1917	837,000	796,400	40,600
February	"	848,900	808,100	40,800
March	"	898,900	884,700	14,200
April	"	888,400	875,000	13,400

Never mind the 150,000 we didn't print, and therefore didn't sell.

Look at the 800,000+we did sell.

And then look at the present rate—based upon the 600,000 which looked so large when we made that rate.

There will be a new rate with the January number—and that rate will be based on only 700,000. Meanwhile there are still four months in which you can use The AMERICAN MAGAZINE at the present rate.

What we didn't do is important to you only as evidence of the vitality of The AMERICAN MAGAZINE. It's the people who got it—not those who didn't get it—that we offer you—800,000+ (how many plus we will know as soon as April returns are in) eager, receptive, gloriously ambitious and humanly selfish people, who buy The AMERICAN MAGAZINE for what they find in it, and for what they get out of it.

BARS SPEECHES AT DRAFT LAW TRIAL

Judge Mayer Shuts Off Lawyer from Discussion of Conscription.

GOVERNMENT'S CASE IS IN

Becker, Defendant, Declares That He Does Not Owe Any Obligation to This Country.

Louis Kramer and Morris Becker, who proudly acclaim themselves anarchists who are opposed to all Governments, and Joseph Walker and Louis Stermberg, who are not so outspoken, were placed on trial before Judge Julius M. Mayer in the Federal District Court yesterday charged with having conspired to persuade men of conscript age not to register as required under the provisions of the selective draft law. The prisoners were represented by Harry Weinberger, who sometimes speaks at anarchist meetings, while Assistant United States District Attorney Harold A. Content appeared for the Government.

When the case was called for trial at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning the corridor outside the courtroom was jammed with men and women prominent in anarchist circles, among whom were Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman. Emma Goldman failed to get inside the courtroom. Judge Mayer let it be known as soon as the selection of the jury began that he would permit no undue delays in the progress of the trial and when court adjourned at 6 o'clock there was every indication that the first trial in the United States for a violation of the selective draft law would be ended by noon today. Judge Mayer during the examination of the first talesman said he would not permit the case to be developed into a discussion of conscription.

"I will not permit you," Judge Mayer said to Weinberger, the lawyer for the accused, "to ask tentative jurors if they are for or against conscription. That is not the issue here. You may only inquire as to prejudice. Neither can you ask a juror his personal opinion as to the war. Your only inquiry can be in relation to a possible prejudice. One man was excused because he was a member of the National Guard and another because he had a relative in the regular army. The objections in both cases were by the defense. The foreman of the jury is Thomas G. Smith, a builder of 1,391 Walton Avenue, the Bronx, and the jury box was filled in less than one and one-half hours.

Detective Sergt. John J. Finan testified that at the Socialist mass meeting held in Madison Square Garden the night of May 31 Kramer had distributed pamphlets issued by the so-called No-Conscription League and had handed him one. Kramer, he said, told him that if enough men of conscript age refused to respand as required by the selective draft law there were not enough soldiers and policemen to force them to register.

James Silverman, a Sergeant of the Eighth New York Coast Artillery, said he arrested Kramer after hearing him advise several men not to register. Silverman also testified that Kramer had remarked that the country would be better off "if President Wilson was dead." On cross-examination Weinberger stormed at the witness, but was unable to shake his testimony at any point. When he asked Silverman if he was one of the guardsmen who tried, as he claimed, to break up the anarchist meeting at Hunts Point last week, Judge Mayer informed him that the Hunts Point meeting did not figure in the present trial.

Clifford Heard, Walter Henry, William J. Morony, and Harry Bauland, all National Guardsmen, and Lawrence Bevins, an enlisted man of the navy, were the other Government witnesses. Each testified to having seen one or more of the prisoners distributing the anti-conscription documents. Cross-examination failed to shake the testimony of any of them, and when Bevins left the stand the Government announced that its case was closed.

Morris Becker, pale of face, who says frankly that he was an anarchist, and ago, and is not a citizen of the United States or any other country, was the first of the defendants to take the stand. Every time the man without a country was asked a question he tried to answer by making a speech. He shouted that he would rather be shot than go to war and shoot at somebody else. He said frankly that he was an anarchist and when asked what anarchy means answered that it meant justice and brotherhood.

"Are you opposed to Government?" asked Judge Mayer.

"Yes, to all Governments maintained by force."

"Don't you feet that you owe any obligation to this country?"

"I don't feel under obligation to any Government."

Joseph Walker followed Becker. He said he wos not against conscription and that the pamphlets found in his possession when arrested had been given to him by Kramer. He had no intention, he swore, of violating the law. When Walker left the stand Judge Mayer adjourned court untiy 10 o'clock this morning.

REGISTRATION CARDS SOLD.

Police Will Arrest All Involved That They Can Discover.

Edward F. Boyle, Executive Officer of the Central Board of Control, who supervised the registration for the selective draft law in New York city last Tuesday, said yesterday that he had evidence that some foreigners who registered on June 5 were selling their registration cards. Several persons have communicated with the Board of Elections either personally or by telephone, saying they have lost their cards or they have been stolen and asking for duplicates. All these inquirers are referred to the headquarters for the assembly district in which they live. Where the police find a registration card held by one person and its certificate of registration held by another both will be arrested.

Accused of making a speech in which he urged resistance of the selective draft law, Morris Katz, 32 years old, a cloth presser of 636 East Eleventh Street, was held in $5,000 bail yesterday by United States Commissioner Hitchcock for examination today. Katz was arrested Sunday at Orchard and Rivington Streets, on the complaint of Sydney Wertell of 55 Delancey Street, formerly a Corporal in the United States artillery service, who asserted that Katz, speaking in Yiddish, was urging a group of about twenty-five men to disobey the conscription law. According to Wertell, Katz declared there should be a revolution in this country, and that it was better for fathers to cut the throats of their sons or put their eyes out than to allow them to go to war. Katz is said to be a native of Russia and has been in the United States five and a half years.

PRISONER WOULDN'T REGISTER

Mongo Rejects Chance and Is Held for a Hearing Tomorrow.

Benjamin Mongo, 22 years old, of 670 Hopkins Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday by United States Marshal James M. Power, charged with having failed to register as required by the Conscription act. When questioned by United States District Attorney Melville France he said that he knew nothing about the law on the matter. Mongo was offered the opportunity to register, but refused, and was held by United States Commissioner McGoldrick in $2,000 bail for a hearing tomorrow.

Tony Broperchunck and Stephen Vachinsky, both of Maspeth, were arrested by Policeman John J. Glaser of the Long Island City station charged with failure to register. George Shemander of 107 Ocean Avenue, Rockaway Beach, and William Murezkis of 251 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, were brought in by Deputy Marshals for the same offense. All four were paroled until June 21.

EXPECT FIGHT ON WOOLSEY.

Democrats Ask the President to Withdraw New Yorker's Name.

WASHINGTON, June 11. — Senator Overman of the Judiciary Committee today asked President Wilson to withdraw the nomination of Lester H. Woolsey of New York as solicitor of the State Department.

Democrats of the committee object to confirming a Republican, and have raised some question over Mr. Woolsey's legal qualifications.

UNIONS WIN FIGHT IN SUPREME COURT

TRADE CONSPIRACY CHARGED

Court Holds That the Government Only Can Bring Restraining Proceedings Under Sherman Law.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Injunctions against labor unions under the Sherman Anti-Trust law, the Supreme Court decided today in dismissing proceedings against New York carpenters' unions, can be obtained only by the Government and not by private persons. Justices McKenna, Vandevanter, and Brandeis dissented. Injunction proceedings brought by "open shop" woodwork manufacturers to restrain New York carpenters' unions and others from refusing to work on their products were dismissed by the court.

A nation-wide conspiracy in restraint of trade through a union rule against carpenters working on "open shop" or "unfair" mill work and trim, was charged in the non-union manufacturers' suit. The unions contended that the embargo was confined to New York and that the plaintiffs had not been specially injured by it nor were they the subjects of special discrimination. That, the unions declared, differed from the boycott held illegal in the "Danbury hatters" case.

Although passed after their suit was begun, the manufacturers contended that the Clayton act authorized the issuance of injunctions to them. Its prohibition of anti-union injunctions, they asserted, operated only in suits between employers and employes and not between individuals and unions.

UPHOLDS RESERVE ACT.

National Banks May Act as Trustees, Court Decides.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—In the first case involving the Federal Reserve act, the Supreme Court today upheld as constitutional the law's clause authorizing national banks to act as trustees, executors, administrators, and registrars of stocks and bonds. A test suit of the Detroit and Grand Rapids trust companies against the First National Bank of Bay City, Mich., was dismissed by the court, which reversed a Michigan decree holding the clause void as in excess of Congressional power.

The clause of the Federal Reserve act, which was attacked as unconstitutional by the trust companies, is a subsection of Section K—11, providing that: "The Federal Reserve Board shall be authorized and empowered * * * to grant, by special permit to national banks applying therefor, when not in contravention of State or local law, the right to act as trustee, executor, administrator, or registrar of stocks and bonds, under such rules and regulations as the said board may describe."

The trust companies contended that such functions were private, subject to local and not Federal regulation, and beyond the power of Congress to confer on national banks, through the Reserve Board.

Among other decisions handed down by the Supreme Court today was one refusing to disturb Ohio decrees which held that John D. Rockefeller could not be taxed in Cleveland by the Treasurer of Cuyahoga County because he asserted he was a New York resident. The court declined to review an appeal of the County Treasurer.

In the South Dakota express rate case the Supreme Court annulled in part, so far as they exceeded the State's powers, injunctions of State courts against the American and Wells Fargo Express companies which required them to maintain certain lower interstate rates despite Interstate Commerce Commission tariffs permitting higher rates to prevent discrimination against Sioux City, Iowa.

The court, through Justice Brandeis, reaffirmed its ruling in the Shreveport rate case and held that the Federal Commission, in regulating interstate rates, had power to disturb intrastate rates fixed by local State authorities.

The court handed down a decision today in favor of the Government in a test suit of the Insurance Company of North America. The company's reserves for "unpaid losses and claims," the court decided, were subject to and not exempt from taxation. The decision prevents a very large annual loss in Federal income tax revenue from insurance companies and by Treasury refunds of several million dollars already collected.

Gentlemen:-

Our Burroughs Ledger Posting and Statement Machine has enabled us to concentrate our ledger posting.

① When we were posting by hand a number of high-priced bookkeepers spent considerable of their time posting. Now an inexpensive boy handles all this work.

② He proves his posting every day, making the trial balance at the end of the month a formality.

④ We are also getting out our statements on the machine promptly every month.

⑤ The Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine insures accounting accuracy. No inducement could get me to go back to the old hand method with its liability to error.

Thanking you for the courtesy you have shown me, I am

Yours very truly,

What is the rarest business quality?

Honesty? You couldn't do business another week if honesty were not as common as baggy knees.

Thoroughness? Most men have more bounce than stickum in them, but every business has its staid pluggers whose very thoroughness in holding their noses to the grindstone will eventually make them shortsighted or cross their eyes completely.

Vision! That's the rarest—and only those who have none will disagree.

If you have that rare business quality you can see every motion the Ultimate Consumer makes throughout his day and you can say why.

You can project yourself into the inner consciousness of the men and women who must be made to want what you have to offer more than they want their easy income or their hard savings.

You can realize the preferences and prejudices and ambitions and habits of mind of the people who have never bought your product, of those who never heard of it, and of those who are still too young to have any occasion to think of it.

You can see the present market for your product, and the possible market too.

You can be satisfied to let someone else sound the loud hewgag, because you know your tune will be heard and appreciated.

You can advertise rings around your competitor, and likely with less money.

You can select an advertising agency that will help your advertisements to do something better than clutter up the landscape.

WILLING TO DISSOLVE CHINA'S PARLIAMENT

MAY BLOCK THE WAR PARTY

Dissolution Would Postpone a Declaration Against Germany for Six Months.

PEKING, Sunday, June 10, (delayed in transmission.)—President Li Yuan Hung has announced a willingness to accede to the demand of General Chang-Hsun that Parliament be dissolved and has drawn up a mandate of dissolution. Dr. Wu Ting-fang, the acting Premier, however, has declined to countersign the decree, and his signature is necessary to give effect to it.

If Parliament is dissolved it will make impossible a declaration of war by China on Germany for six months, as it takes this time to elect and assemble a new Parliament.

General Chang-Hsun, who recently arrived at Tientsin from the southern provinces, refuses to come to the capital until the mandate dissolving Parliament has been issued. He now demands a pronouncement from the Government that all members of the present Parliament be excluded from reelection. There are serious differences of opinion between the General and other military leaders on the question of the retention of President Li Yuan Hung and the selection of a new Premier.

Politics Clouds the War Issue.

Special Correspondence of THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, May 8.—Most of the prophets in Peking would have predicted that before this China would have declared war against Germany, but now the outlook has become confused and the war issue is clouded with party politics.

To explain this it is necessary to revert to the events of March last, when China severed diplomatic relations with Germany. Parliament's consent to this course of Action was obtained under a misapprehension, for Premier Tuan Chi-Jui and his Cabinet had been led to believe that the Entente would agree to certain wishes of the Chinese Government and so informed the House of Representatives and the Senate. The Premier was not guilty of bad faith, but he himself had been—well, to put it kindly—misled; I cannot say by whom, because the censor might exercise his prerogative and use his pencil. At any rate, it must be understood that the Chinese were deceived, and consequently the Premier finds himself in a false position. Had there been no deception the Government would never have presented to the seven allied Ministers the document embodying China's wishes which they did on March 14, nor would they have attempted to bargain with the Entente.

[The rest of this letter should be read with recollection of the fact that the Chinese Premier has been forced to relinquish office since it was written.]

Naturally the Premier does not wish to confess that he has been duped because awkward questions would be asked in Parliament. As it is, certain members wish to know what has become of the desiderata which he informed Parliament the Entente would grant to China on the latter agreeing to declare war on Germany. This issue Tuan Chi-jui prefers to evade. Parliament was invited to consider the question of war on higher grounds—the cause of suffering humanity and the maintenance of international usages. But Parliament is not in the mood to be swayed by sentiment, and it looks as if the Premier would have to take Parliament into his confidence or risk an adverse vote in both houses.

It must be conceded that the Kuomingtang is anxious to overthrow the Premier, whose "strong policy" is not appreciated by these stalwarts of republicanism as understood in China. The Peking Gazette describes his methods as Prussian, and professes to be alarmed lest constitutional government be endangered, but it must not be forgotten that, while the Constitution provides for Parliamentary assent before the President can declare war, it cannot be contended that the Parliament as at present constituted is a representative body—a fact which may be quoted in support of any action deemed necessary for the disciplining of this organ.

Opinion in China is decidedly in favor of war. Even intense pro-German elements in official circles have been converted to this view. The President favors war, so does the Cabinet, and so does the Parliament. Yet war has not been declared. The only obstacle is party prejudice, and China suffers in consequence by delaying her entry into the war.

LAUDS INDUSTRIAL PATRIOTS

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, June 11.—Asserting that "when the history of this war is written, as much credit for the victory over our enemies will be given to the men who make up America's great industrial army as to the military leaders and men in the trenches," Charles M. Schwab warned 4,000 persons gathered today at the opening session of the World's Salesmanship Congress against practicing "economy to an extent that will jeopardize business." Mr. Schwab provoked an outburst of cheering when he declared that the Bethlehem Steel plant was absolutely at the disposal of the United States Government.

"My associates and myself," he said, "do not reckon what the profits may be, nor do we care, if we can serve our country and her allies in this war. I hold myself a lucky man, indeed, that the opportunity has once more been thrown my way to help my country.

"There will be no shortage of steel for the motor car industry," said Mr. Schwab," after his address. "Next to the munitions industry, the motor car industry is the most important in the country at this time. The motor car is most essential to the conduct of modern warfare, and the Government's demand for steel for shipbuilding and munitions will not be so great as to work any hardship on the motor car business.

"This country was never more prosperous, and, in my opinion, there are no reasons for any business hesitancy."

SURGICAL SUPPLIES SHORT.

Trade Associations in Convention Discuss Danger to Army and Navy.

The United States is threatened with a serious shortage of surgical instruments, needles, and other appliances for the army and navy, not to mention a shortage in such supplies for ordinary hospital requirements, it was declared yesterday at the opening session of the joint convention of the American Medical Trade and Wholesale Surgical Trade Associations, held at the Hotel Astor.

Nearly 150 members of the two organisations, representing the manufacturing, jobbing, and retail branches of the trade, attended the morning session, at which E. F. Mahady of Boston, President of the American Medical Trade Association, told of the condition confronting the trade.

Mr. Mahady said that the great American armies authorized must be equipped with adequate surgical appliances, and added that the manufacturers and wholesalers were responding in a whole-hearted and patriotic manner.

The Master Genius of the Automobile Industry Points Out the Direct Way to Accounting Efficiency

"Efficiency" is the one word that explains the remarkable success of Mr. Durant, President of Chevrolet Motor Co. and the General Motors Co.

Mr. Durant has been connected with various enterprises and has piloted them all to success. How? Through efficiency. Through the wonderful efficiency of the man himself and the efficiency he demanded and secured in every branch of every department.

The average pen-and-ink bookkeeper wastes 50% of his time guarding against errors, hunting errors and making several motions when only one was needed. Mr. Durant knew this—but Mr. Durant demanded on-time figures. His own efficiency demanded efficiency in others. Result—Elliott-Fisher Bookkeeping Machines were installed, not only in the main office, but also in the big plants at Flint and other points in Michigan, and at various assembly factories throughout the United States and Canada.

Doing approximately 200 million dollars' worth of business in 1916, with plans for doubling the output in 1917, it is obvious that not only is accounting speed absolutely necessary, but absolute accuracy as well. Elliott-Fisher Bookkeeping Machines provide both.

A big business cannot be run with behind-time bookkeeping. The bookkeeping departments of big businesses must work on on-time schedule. To do that requires 100% efficiency in the bookkeeping department. Mr. Durant found the direct way to 100% bookkeeping efficiency in Elliott-Fisher. It will pay you to investigate, as he did, Elliott-Fisher efficiency. We have the facts. They are yours on request. Telephone or write Elliott-Fisher Company 217 Broadway,

THREE ROADS TIED UP BY UP-STATE STORM

New York Central's Montreal Express Marooned Near Utica—3 Persons Killed by Flood.

UTICA, N. Y., June 11.—Three known dead, much live stock lost, three railroads tied up, and great property loss was the toll completed tonight of this section's greatest rainstorm in twenty-five years. Manufacturing plants are hard hit, and many buildings have been washed from their foundations.

The storm started about 2 o'clock this morning, and heavy rain fell until late this afternoon. Two residents of Oriskany Falls lost their lives, and a man was drowned at Oneida when a dam went out as he was standing on it.

The most violent phases of the storm were experienced in Oriskany Falls and vicinity, due to the going out of dams at Solsville and the Fisk and Lyons Ponds, south of Oriskany Falls. Horsemen rode ahead of the torrent, warning the people in its path to flee to higher ground.

Two bridges used by the Ontario & Western Railroad were carried away near Oriskany Falls, and the roadbed for miles in that section was destroyed. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad suffered in the Sauquoit Valley, just south of Utica, and trains have been unable to use that road in this vicinity.

The Montreal Express of the New York Central System, running from New York to Montreal, was marooned near Holland Patent all day, due to a culvert going out just after the train crossed and another being swept away just before it reached it. Nearly 100 passengers have spent the day in the village, while some have come back to Utica by automobile.

The Adirondack trains leaving Utica today have been rerouted by way of Herkimer and have reached Lake Placid and other mountain resorts many hours behind schedule.

One Business News Item Paid for the PUBLIC LEDGER 20 Years

A business man recently told of reading an item in the Business Section of the Public Ledger which, printed there exclusively, saved him enough money to pay for the Ledger twenty years.

Any business man who reads the Public Ledger Business Section for one year, and THINKS while he reads, may save thousands—or learn ways to increase and improve his business to a like extent.

And this applies to almost EVERY business in the United States. No matter what YOUR business is the Public Ledger prints news of it at least once a week—and like as not that news appears exclusively in the Ledger.

The Business Section of the Public Ledger alone would be cheap at 2c.

But when it is combined with a great daily newspaper, with exclusive London Times cable service, and a host of special news sources, in addition to all regular news channels, the Public Ledger Business Section is a unique and unusually comprehensive source of business information.

Business men and their families find constantly increasing reason for buying—and relying upon—the Public Ledger.

M'GRAW'S MEN HIT FAST STRIDE AND PUT FRED MITCHELL'S CUBS TO ROUT

GIANTS HAVE EASY TIME WITH BRUINS

Batter Phil Douglas for Ten Hits, Including Two Home Runs, and Win, 8 to 2.

BENTON MASTER OF CUBS

Rube Toys with Chicago's Batsmen and Bangs a Three-Bagger, Scoring Two Tallies.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 11.—New York's Giants showed up the Cubs this afternoon and won as they pleased, 8 to 2. McGraw's men showed some of the class that is expected to carry them through to a National League pennant, and the game was more one-sided than the 8-to-2 score indicates. They got away with everything that a major league club could, while the poor old Bruins were booting and kicking the ball and in every other way performing like bush leaguers.

Phil Douglas, looked upon as the leading Cub pitcher, was touched for ten hits, five of them for extra bases, including two home runs, which were made in the same inning. Phil was forced to travel the full route, and when the Giants were not hitting him the Cub players were mussing the ball around. They made five errors which show in the box score, and about ten more that do not show. It was a wild exhibition, the worst the North Siders have put up this season.

Old Rube Benton, discarded from Cincinnati because he wasn't good enough for the big leagues, had the honor of checking the Cubs, and it was far from a hard job. The two runs made by the home team came after the Giants were far enough in the lead to permit them to play around, and at least one of the tallies was an out-and-out gift from the visitors, who were taking pity on the Bruins. While the Cubs garnered nine hits off Benton, he threw only slow balls in the last three innings, just kidding the Cubs along after making them look awfully tame, until his mates piled up the overwhelming lead.

Almost every Cub player on the field had a part in burlesquing the contest. Zeider is credited with two errors, but he made two or three on runners stealing second, which do not appear because the runners in question received stolen bases. Merkle made a wild throw that cost another run, and once Doyle, Williams, and Wolter surrounded an easy Texas Leaguer back of second, off Zimmerman's bat and let it fall safe while Heinie made three bases on it. He came home on Williams's wild throw to third.

Just previous to this Benny Kauff had slammed the pill into left field bleachers, and Fletcher, coming up after Zim, duplicated Benny's stunt with a drive in almost the same spot. This was about the only unusual happening of the day. The Giants had the happy faculty of bunching their blows off Douglas, for they scored two runs in the first on three hits, two in the fourth on three drives, and three in the seventh on three blows.

The Giants stepped out in the first inning and gathered in two runs. First Burns hit a roller to Zeider; second, Herzog followed with a bunt to Zeider, which went for a single. Kauff hit to Merkle, and Zeider dropped Fred's toss to force Herzog, filling the bases. Zimmerman popped out in this pinch, but Fletcher rapped out a doube to count Burns and Herzog.

In the fourth three more hits counted another brace of tallies, and none other than Rube Benton drove them in. Robertson and Rariden singled. Sandwiched in with Rariden's out this brought up Benton. Rube proceeded to wallop a triple to deep centre, bringing in Robby and Rariden.

With two down in the seventh, Kauff drove his four baser into the bleachers. Wolter muffed Zimmerman's fly, and Fletcher's home run added three to the total.

In the eighth Holke singled and went all the way to third when Rariden rolled out to Merkle. Holke continued on home when Merkle threw wide to Deal.

CARDS WIN IN FIFTEENTH.

Gonzales Steals Home with Run That Beat Phillies 5 to 4.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 11.—Gonzales stole home in the fifteenth inning with the run that gave St. Louis victory over Philadelphia today, 5 to 4.

In the fifteenth Gonzales doubled and took third when Miller was thrown out. Hornsby was purposely passed and stole second. As Oeschger wound up to pitch to Cruise, Gonzales dashed home with the winning run.

Philadelphia got four runs in the first on two singles, a stolen base, two bases on balls, a sacrifice hit, a fielder's choice, and Long's error. St. Louis tied the score in the sixth on two singles, a double, and an error by Niehoff.

Philadelphia got a man as far as third in the eighth, but thereafter only one player, McGaffigan, who replaced Bancroft, when he was hurt trying to tag J. Smith at second base in the ninth, reached first.

DODGERS RALLY, BUT LOSE.

Brooklyn's Exciting Ninth Inning Rush Fails Against Reds.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, June 11.—Despite a frenzied ninth-inning rally today, the Dodgers were unable to accumulate enough runs to offset the three previously gathered by the Reds, and they dropped the third game of the series, 3 to 2. Young Hod Eller, who has acted as relief pitcher for the Reds since he joined the club last Fall, started against the Dodgers today, and also finished. It must be admitted that Eller is quite a twirler. Until the ninth Ivan Olson was the only Brooklyn player who seemed to be able to solve the problems Eller presented. Two blows were the Dodger portion up to the ninth, and Olson was the author of both. He annexed his third safety in that inning, but not enough of his mates could follow suit to put the ball game on the right side of the ledger.

Larry Cheney and his moist ball were working for the Dodgers, and both did well. But for a lucky homer for Neale and an error for Olson, Larry would have won. As it was, he made things exceedingly interesting, and has the consolation of knowing it was not his fault the boys lost.

With the score 3 to 0 in the ninth, Johnston batted for Cheney and whiffed, after which Olson whistled his third hit to left. Daubert hit a hard one to Shean, who kindly booted it, and all hands were safe. Hickman strolled. Stengel, who has hit well throughout the series, banged a single to right, scoring Olson and Daubert and sending Hickman to third. Stengel, however, was thrown out trying to make second on the blow. This put the issue squarely up to Zach Wheat, but Zach could not do it, popping to Wingo.

Cheney walked Thorpe after Wingo had gone out in the fifth, and Neale hit a legitimate double to right. The pesky ball rolled through the gate in right field, however. Stengel did some fast work in retrieving it and caught Neale at the plate, but the umpires called it a home run and allowed Neale's score to count because the ball was hit out of the playing field.

The Reds got another in the sixth, when Olson pegged wildly on Chase's grounder behind singles by Kopf and Roush.

MANY PITCHERS, FEW HITS.

PITTSBURGH, June 11.—Three pitchers were used against the Pittsburgh team here today, and all proved effective, Boston winning, 2 to 0.

Nehf was removed in the sixth inning, with two men on bases and one out. Allen, who took his place, retired the side scoreless. In the eighth inning he was removed after passing the first man, and Tyler, who took the box, also retired Pittsburgh without a tally.

CLAIMS BALTIMORE CLUB WAS IGNORED

Goldman Says Terrapins Had No Voice in Settlement of Federal League War.

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Testifying in the $900,000 suit of the Baltimore Federal League Club against organized baseball growing out of the peace agreement of December, 1915, whereby the Federal League went out of existence, L. Edwin Goldman, a Director of the Baltimore Club, said his club knew absolutely nothing about negotiations to put the league out of business until the peace agreement had been reached. He emphasized his denial that the Baltimore Club was consulted in the negotiations.

The suit was brought under the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust laws, the Baltimore Club charging that the agreement between the Federal League and organized baseball was a violation of the anti-trust laws and tended to monopolize the business of baseball. The club also charges that the agreement disrupted the Federal League and that the club suffered damage to the extent of $300,000, for which, under the anti-trust laws, it is asking triple damages.

Mr. Goldman on direct examination said that the Federal League signed up players who were under contract with clubs in other leagues. On cross-examination by Frank P. Prichard of Philadelphia, counsel for the American League, he explained the Federal League did sign players who had reserve clauses in their contracts with the major leagues because the Federals did not respect these clauses on the ground that they considered them as illegal. After the Baltimore Club had learned of the peace agreement, Mr. Goldman said, Stuart S. Janney, a Director in the club and chief counsel in the suit, went to New York to try to negotiate for a major league club in Baltimore, but was unsuccessful.

During Mr. Goldman's examination the peace agreement was read to the jury. Its contents are generally known, but there was one clause which has not heretofore been made public. It recited that no agreement had been reached with the Baltimore and Buffalo Federals, and that a committee of seven was agreed upon to arrange a settlement with those clubs. This committee was to consist of the three members of the National Commission, President Barrow of the International League, President Gilmore of the Federal League, a representative of the Buffalo Club, and one representing the Baltimore Club, both to be named by Mr. Gilmore. The Baltimore representative was never appointed, Mr. Goldman said.

He further testified that all the eight clubs in the Federal League finished the last season in which the league existed, but that there were but six clubs in the organization when it was disrupted in December, the other two having become financially embarrassed.

George Wharton Pepper of counsel for the big leagues, in his opening statement as to what the defense would show, declared that baseball was not a commercial business and did not come within the Federal anti-trust laws. He also indicated there was no attempt to monopolize baseball by the major leagues, declaring that the peace agreement with the Federal League was made necessary to end a costly war and to restore public confidence in the management of the national sport. He further asserted the Baltimore Club tried to get a major league franchise for Baltimore before the peace agreement was signed, but failed because no club in either of the big leagues desird to sell its franchise or have it transferred to Baltimore.

David L. Fultz, President of the Players' Fraternity, was on the witness stand testifying to the operations of players' contracts, the reserve clause, and release clause when court adjourned. There was every evidence today that the case would be bitterly fought.

WILLARD BUYS CIRCUS.

Heavyweight Champion Obtains Control of Wild West Show.

Jess Willard, world's heavyweight boxing champion, yesterday took over the control of the Buffalo Bill Wild West Show and Circus, which heretofore has been owned by Edward Arlington, a local showman. News of the transaction, which makes Willard the owner of his own circus, reached this city yesterday in the form of a telegram from Holyoke, Mass., announcing that the heavyweight champion had paid Arlington the sum of $105,000 for control of the organization.

Roy O. Archer, secretary to Willard, attended to the details of the sale, and the purchase included two trains of cars, 200 horses, and all equipment. Archer, a lifelong friend of Willard's, was formerly in the banking business. In the telegram it was stated that the show started operating under the management of Willard yesterday, and it is the ambition of the champion to own the finest tent show property in this country.

In the management of the show Willard will be assisted by Melville B. Raymond, a local showman with offices in the Knickerbocker Building, and the details of mapping out routes and railroad schedules will be looked after by Arlington, the former owner, who has had considerable experience in this line through his connections with other shows.

LEONARD BEGINS TRAINING.

Lightweight Champion at Work for Monday's Bout with Nelson.

Benny Leonard, world's champion lightweight boxer, started training yesterday for his ten-round bout with Johnny Nelson of Philadelphia, which is scheduled for next Monday night at the Harlem S. C. Nelson, although practically unknown in local boxing circles, has appeared in bouts against several of the country's leading lightweights, including Leonard and Charley White, against both of whom he held his own. This bout will mark Leonard's first local appearance since gaining the title.

Jack Farrell of the Harlem S. C. returned last night from a trip to Philadelphia, where he completed negotiations with Nelson. Farrell says that the officials of the Harlem club are having the interior rebuilt to some extent in anticipation of a record crowd. The stage, which occupied one end of the club house, has been torn down and in its place will be constructed room for new seating accommodations which, with other alterations, will provide an additional capacity of 1,500, bringing the total capacity of the club, sitting and standing, up to about 4,500.

DUFFY IN RING TONIGHT.

Will Box Patsy Cline at Pioneer S. C.—Other Bouts.

Jimmy Duffy, the sturdy west side lightweight, and Irish Patsy Cline of Harlem, will clash for ten rounds this evening at the Pioneer S. C. in what will be the most important bout of his career for the west sider. If he can successfully combat the cleverness of the Harlemite there is the possibility for Duffy of securing a match with the new lightweight champion, Benny Leonard. Cline is among the cleverest boxers in the lightweight ranks, but in Duffy he will be facing a steady, aggressive boxer. Another ten-round bout will bring together George Ashe, the Pennsylvania middleweight, and Paul Samson of Harlem.

Heavyweights will occupy the centre of the stage at the show to be held this evening at the Broadway S. C. of Brooklyn. Two ten-round bouts are scheduled, the principal one of which will have as its contestants Bob Devere, the Kansas City heavyweight, and K. O. Bill Brennan of Chicago. In the other bout of ten rounds Joe Egan of Boston, the New England welterweight champion, will oppose Johnny Kid Alberts of Elizabeth, N. J.

At the Harlem S. C. of Rockaway Gunboat Smith, the veteran California heavyweight, and Al Benedict, a local boxer, will be opponents in the main ten-round bout.

COUNT SALM WINS TWICE.

Defeats Rickey and Anderson in Terrace Club Matches.

Only four matches were played in the tennis tournament at the Terrace Club in Brooklyn yesterday. In a first round encounter George Throckmorton defeated Gerald Donaldson, Sr., 6—2, 6—4. Count Salm defeated Roy Rickey at 6—2, 6—3 in a second round match, and George Throckmorton defeated J. Anderson at 6—4, 7—5. In a third round match, Count Salm added to his laurels by defeating Fred Anderson at 6—3, 6—0.

AUTO RACE FOR WAR FUND.

Motor Derby in Chicago Attracts Crack Racing Drivers.

CHICAGO, June 11.—The feature of the military, motor, and athletic fête, to be held at the local Speedway for the benefit of war funds on Saturday, will be the 250-mile Chicago auto Derby. Thirty-three cars have been entered for the event, and these are now being tuned up for an attack on the speed records.

Saturday's program will start at 9:30 A. M. with the mobilization of cadets in Grant Park and a military parade to the Speedway. This will be followed by the field and track meet of the Chicago High Schools Athletic League. At the conclusion of this there will be "an attack on the trenches," a demonstration by 3,000 high school volunteers. The 100-mile non-professional auto race will start at noon, and two and one-half hours later the Derby will begin. The non-professional race has started eight entries to date, the following cars and drivers being in the field: Mercer, John Canfield; Mercer, Harold H. Logan; Mercer, Arthur Bromstedt; Mercer, Andrew Ortmayer; Haynes, Percy Ford; Locomobile, D. B. Cooper; Peerless, I. P. Fetterman, and Cadillac, Frank Warren.

Among the more prominent professional drivers entered for the 250-mile event are the following: Barney Oldfield, Ralph De Palma, Ralph Mulford, Ira Vail, Louis Chevrolet, and Gaston Chevrolet.

Because of the superior speed of the Packard and the craftiness and experience of its veteran driver De Palma rules favorite for the 1917 Auto Derby. There is no car fast enough to pass him, according to the railbirds of the gasoline circuit. They look for the Italian to go to the front at the start and set a terrific pace. There is only one way to beat De Palma, they claim. The Packard must break down before the 250 miles are covered. The De Palma jinx must be on the job as it was at Cincinnati May 30 when a splinter from the board track punctured the radiator and changed the Troia Terror from a race leader to a spectator.

If the Packard holds up under the gruelling grind and De Palma shakes his proverbial hoodoo, the critics not only look for Ralph to take premier honors in the Auto Derby, but also predict that he will shatter the 250-mile world's record, now held by Johnny Aitken and the Peugeot. Aitken covered the two and one-half centuries in the 1916 Astor Cup race in 2 hours 25 minutes and 4 seconds, an average of 104.83 miles per hour.

Next to De Palma's Packard, the three Frontenacs, designed and built by Louis Chevrolet, are considered the fastest cars in the field. In the Memorial Day race at Cincinnati the Frontenacs, driven by Louis Chevrolet, the winner, and his brother Gaston, hit a 102-mile-an-hour clip for 250 miles, and should better this average on the local course, which is considerably faster than the Cincinnati track. If they have an even break in the luck the Frontenac drivers will lose no time at the pits as their mounts are exceptionally light, easy on tires, and carry sufficient gasoline, water, and oil to cover the distance without a halt for replenishment.

HONOR MEMORY OF DWYER.

Well-Known Turfmen to be Pallbearers at Funeral Today.

At a meeting of the Directors of the Brooklyn Jockey Club held yesterday morning resolutions were passed expressing sorrow at the death of Philip J. Dwyer, who was founder of the club and its President. Mr. Dwyer was also President of the Queens County Jockey Club, which is scheduled to hold a race meet at Aqueduct, June 25 to July 12. The race meet will be held as scheduled and will be managed by Colonel M. S. Winn, who has had charge of Mr. Dwyer's racing interests in recent years.

The funeral services will be held this morning at 9:30 at St. Bernard's Church, West Fourteenth Street. The pallbearers, all of whom are well known in the turf world, will be as follows: H. K. Knapp, Schuyler L. Parsons, Thomas Lally, Andrew Miller, Edgar G. Murphy, Price McKinney, James Butler, James Shevlin, Colonel M. S. Winn, Matthew Corbett, Thomas Monahan, and Edward S. Salt.

Norwood G. C. Nets $1,010.

As a result of medal play handicap competition over eighteen holes held on Saturday and Sunday, the Norwood Golf Club at Long Branch, N. J., collected the sum of $1,010 for the benefit of the Red Cross Society, it was announced yesterday. The competition was held under the auspices of the New Jersey State Golf Association, which last Saturday conducted a golf campaign for the benefit of the Red Cross. Louis Gimbel accounted for the medal offered to the golfer with the best net score for the competition, with a net of 78. About 100 golfers took part in the play.

Crescent A. C. Tennis Today.

The invitation women's tennis tournament which was to have started yesterday at the Crescent Athletic Club grounds at Bay Ridge, was postponed until today, owing to the rain. Many of the prominent contenders in the metropolitan section will begin competition this afternoon, among them Mrs. C. V. Hitchins, Miss Marie Wagner, Miss Helene Pollak, and Miss Helen Gilleaudeau. Play will begin each afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Jack Dillon Enlists in Navy.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., June 11.—Jack Dillon, the Indianapolis boxer, has enlisted in the navy. He submitted to the final examination here today, and will remain here awaiting orders to report at a naval training station. Dillon says he chose the navy, fearing that if sent into the army he would suffer rheumatism.

VOSHELL AND BAGGS VICTORS IN DOUBLES

Defeat Inman and Mahan in Five-Set Encounter at Westchester C. C.

Spirited tennis marked the final round of the Westchester Country Club invitation doubles yesterday afternoon, when S. Howard Voshell and Fred C. Baggs defeated Fred C. Inman and Lyle E. Mahan in a five-set encounter at 4—6, 6—3, 0—6, 9—7, 8—6. The score well shows the ups and downs which prevailed during the contest; also that Inman and Mahan were several times within sight of victory after having taken the third set at love from their opponents.

The steadiness of Inman and Mahan, however, was finally overtopped by the brilliance of Voshell, who closed the contest with a bit of play that swept all opposition aside. The match did not start until late, and when it closed the first shadows of twilight were lengthening across the courts. Perhaps it was partially due to this that Voshell scored four service aces in the last game of the match; at any rate, such was his record, and it brought victory after Inman's service had been broken through in the game previous.

From the result of the first three sets there was nothing to indicate that the next two would produce such close tennis as that which was played. When Inman and Mahan, playing with fire and dash, took a love set there was hardly one of the spectators who would have predicted that Baggs and Voshell would be able to pull the contest out of the fire. Yet this they did by play such as marks few doubles contests in the course of a season, and almost never at so early a date in the Summer as now.

Voshell seemed all at once to have come full-fledged into the fullness of his ability on turf courts. He was the particular luminary in yesterday's contest, but this in nowise detracts from the sterling play which was put forth by the others during the entire match.

It may truthfully be said that it was Voshell's steadiness, combined with wonderful flights to the heights of tennis skill, that turned the balance in favor of himself and his partner. While he has had little conditioning for a five-set match of such proportions as that of yesterday, he played through to the finish confidently and with little show of fatigue until the match was actually closed to his credit. Baggs, his partner, was an able supporter of Voshell, even though he did not equal him in brilliancy or steadiness. Baggs did his best work close up at the barrier, his shots for placement being sent with telling effect into the opponent's territory.

Mahan continued to show the same remarkable play in yesterday's match that he did on Sunday. His long reach and towering height made cross-courting and lobbing extremely difficult. Mahan combined with his strong net play an unlooked for ability and sureness on his ground strokes which were hit hard and true to the points of vantage. Inman, too, played a steady game, and was particularly effective in his work at the net, where he cut off drives that threatened aces with only a few mistakes.

Inman and Mahan opened the match with a swift march to victory, Baggs and Voshell being helpless before the spirited attack that was sent against them. They swept off four games in a row and not long after led at 5—2. They eventually took the set at 6—4. The second set, however, turned against them, the breaking down of Mahan's service in the second game being the turning point in the contest. Nothing daunted by suffering defeat in this second set, Mahan and Inman swept along in the third set without a flurry of opposition to bar their path. Voshell and Baggs seemed hypnotized by the success of their opponents and there was a quick ending of the match foreshadowed in the ensuing set, the fourth.

The complexion of things changed with kaleidoscopic rapidity in the fourth set. Instead of giving ground with the ease which had characterized their work in the third set, Voshell and Baggs recovered their effectiveness, and Inman and Mahan faced a situation which eventually overwhelmed them with defeat. It was the last two sets of the match, both deuce affairs, that supplied the keenest competition of the day. Not until the fourth set had gone repeatedly to deuce did Voshell and Baggs assert their supremacy.

The fifth set was of like kind, spirited rallies and driving duels being of frequent occurrence. This set was not decided until it had gone to 8—6, the breaking through of Inman's service, and the winning of his own by Voshell, proving the deciding factors.

The singles matches will start this afternoon, such prominent players being entered in the event as Harold A. Throckmorton, Leonard Beekman, Inman, Alrick H. Man, Jr., W. Merrill Hall, Robert Le Roy, and Mahan. Also an exhibition doubles match is scheduled for this afternoon between Frederick B. Alexander and Karl Behr and Harold A. Throckmorton and Leonard Beekman.

RIDDLE BUYS TWO-YEAR-OLD

Madden Disposes of Bully Boy—Also Sells Smoky Lad.

John E. Madden, who breeds more thoroughbred horses for the market than any other turfman in this country, is busy disposing of the two-year-olds that he has raised for this season. One of the best in his barn was sold yesterday to Samuel D. Riddle, who races under the stable name of the Glen Riddle Farm. Mr. Riddle purchased Bully Boy, by Ogden-Yankee's Sister, which, though it has not raced, has shown great speed in his trials. Another youngster sold was Smoky Lad, which went to Walter M. Jeffords. Further sales are expected in the near future, as Tim Sullivan, who brought Les Darcy to this country, has applied for a trainer's license, and is contemplating buying some of the Madden youngsters.

John Sanford has been so impressed with the work of Willie Knapp in the saddle at the Belmont Park meeting that he has obtained first call on the services of the recently reinstated rider.

YEARLINGS BRING $22,650.

Imported Colt by Catmint Bought by C. H. Theriot for $3,100.

That the Oneck Stable colors will be seen on the race track next year, in spite of the fact that the stable and horses were burned at Belmont Park this Spring, was made clear last night at the sale of the Blue Ridge thoroughbred yearlings at Durland's Riding Academy. H. K. Knapp, represented in the bidding by his trainer, W. H. Karrick, was one of the most consistent buyers of the youngsters sent up from Virginia by Henry T. Oxnard. At the close of the sale he had collected half a dozen promising yearlings for which fair prices were paid. It was Karrick that captured the first colt offered, a bay by King James—Princess Nettie, for which he gave $1,000.

The prices realized were good, but not extravagant, and it remained for a newcomer to the sport to pay the top price of the sale. The prize which attracted general attention was an imported bay colt by Catmint, a Goodwood Cup winner, out of Arlette. This colt was brought from England when Mr. Oxnard bought his dam. The youngster is engaged in the Travers Stakes of 1919 and also in the rich Latonia championship of the same year. There was spirited bidding when he was brought into the ring, but at the end Charles H. Theriot secured him for $3,100. Mr. Theriot had previously given $2,000 for a bay filly by Superman-Lux Casta, which is closely related to the brilliant two-year-old Lucullite, and later added another Superman filly to his prospective stable. The newcomer in racing is a brother-in-law of J. G. Oxnard and is a resident of Oyster Bay. Andrew Miller, Richard T. Wilson, Jr., and John E. Madden were among others who replenished their stables with promising stock, while a number of fair-priced horses were purchased for J. L. Murphy of Philadelphia, who was represented by James Healey.

In all twenty-seven yearlings were sold for a total of $22,650, an average of $839.

FAVORITES UPSET ON STICKY TRACK

Only Two Public Choices Win at Belmont Park—Bayberry Candle Finishes First.

Small fields ruled at Belmont Park yesterday, but even under these apparently simple conditions the public had a hard time finding winners. Only two favorites were successful, and one of these, Bayberry Candle, cantered home in the Beldame Handicap for mares at the prohibitive odds of 1 to 5.

The slow track helped to upset the calculations of the talent, and this was particularly noticeable in the fourth race in which four three-year-olds went to the post out of an entry of eight. Harvest King made the pace at the beginning of the mile with Manister Toi moving up to second place at the turn. As soon as Harvest King was done with the other outsider Battle rushed to the front, while Manister Toi floundered in the going and dropped back. It looked as though the surprise would be a stunning one until Johnny McTaggart, seeing Manister Toi was beaten, set sail for the leader in the last sixteenth.

It was a nip and tuck race to the finish with Corn Tassel getting up in time to beat Battle by a head. Manister Toi finished all out two lengths back. The time, 1:40 1-5, was very good for the going and indicates that Mr. Wilson's three-year-old is more than a fair performer on a sticky track.

A field of four also went to the post for the Beldame Handicap at six furlongs in which August Belmont's Serenest was believed to be the only one with the slightest chance of racing with Bayberry Candle. The latter carried top weight and galloped in front all the way. The surprise of the race came when the Oak Ridge Stable's Sea Wave drew away from Serenest in the last eighth and took the place three lengths behind Bayberry Candle and the same distance in front of Serenest.

The summaries:

FRANCE TO HANDLE GREEK SITUATION

Sends Senator Jonnart, Who Represents Britain and Russia Also, and Has Full Powers.

JANINA A BASE FOR ARMY

Greek City Occupied in Connection with New Italian Supply Line Across the Adriatic.

PARIS, June 11.—Senator Jonnart, who has just arrived in Athens, represents not only France, but England and Russia, as High Commissioner of the powers protecting Greece. He has plenary authority to deal with the situation.

The principal questions Senator Jonnart will have to settle are whether the neutral zone between the Venizelist forces and the Royal Greek troops shall be retained without modifications and how to prevent the crops of Thessaly from being monopolized by King Constantine to the detriment of the dissident Greeks.

Athens Preparing to Fight.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Tuesday, June 12.—Delayed dispatches from its Athens correspondent are published by The London Times this morning. In a message dated June 7 the correspondent says:

"Radical measures appear to be at hand for settlement of the Greek question. This, at least, is the conclusion generally drawn from the arrival in Greek waters of M. Jonnart, who reached Salamis yesterday in a French warship, and after stopping there a few hours, continued his journey to Saloniki. M. Jonnart is understood to have come with plenipotentiary powers from the French Government, acting in concert with its allies. After a conference with General Sarrail and M. Venizelos, he will return to Salamis, perhaps interview political personalities here at Athens, and then report to his Government upon the measures demanded by the situation.

"It became known today that the French Minister, M. Guillemen, is departing on leave, and it is expected that should the report of M. Jonnart's mission be that the only solution of the Greek question is a military one, the British and Russian Ministers will also leave the city. The initiative of the departure of the French Minister is thought significant."

In a dispatch two days later the correspondent says:

"Every one believes that with the occupation of Janina yesterday by the Italians Athens is nearing the end of its long tether, and the possibility of this is openly discussed in the newspapers. Nearly every prominent Venizelist has left the capital, and a number of final departures are taking place quietly today.

"What has particularly moved public opinion is the fact that several allied destroyers and what are believed to be two transports are cruising in the Gulf of Corinth off the bays of Antikyraia and Itea, M. Gounaris, the pro-German ex-Prime Minister, declared to some followers this morning, and the news spread rapidly that the Allies actually had landed at Itea, but official confirmation is lacking.

"Complete silence envelopes the Palace and the King has not been seen in public today. It is known that General Doumanis and other chiefs of the Germanophile group are nightly elaborating plans for resistance. Troops and reservists are certainly being recalled. Two nights ago when a vessel appeared off Phaleron with lights out she was thought to be a Venizelist destroyer. Last night there was some mysterious firing in the neighborhood of the Acropolis."

The Times, commenting on the Jonnart missioin, assumes that part of his task will be to see that the Thessalian harvest is not allowed to fall into the hands of King Constantine's pro-German advisers, but it says that thi sis by no means the only aspect of the situation. It goes on:

"The position of Constantine may be involved, and in regard to this matter also we trust that Jonnart has taken or will take adequate steps to meet whatever emergencies may a rise. There must be no repetition of the unfortunate blunders of last December.

"Whether Constantine fall in with the High Commissioner's demands, whether he offer armed resistance or whether he vacate voluntarily the position which his autocratic methods and his equivocal conduct toward the protecting powers have rendered him unfit to hold, it is expedient that the situation be handled firmly and that it be cleared up with the least possible delay."

The Daily Chronicle after enumerating the cases wherein King Constantine has broken his pledges to the Allies, says:

"It has long been a question, not whether Constantine deserved drastic treatment at the Allies' hands, but whether it was expedient for the Allies to treat him drastically. We take it that their hands have been held chiefly by military considerations, but also by the fear of diplomatic differences to which drastic action might have given arise among a number of the allies whose views on the Greek questions generally were far from being identical. But the problem of the Thessalian harvest has overridden these restraining motives. It has compelled the Allies to act and to prevent the King from recovering power to defy them. The question is now whether, having gone thus far, they might no go farther and at last take the definite step, inevitable sooner or later, of deposing the King."

Importance of Janina to Italy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, June 11.—The occupation of Janina by Italian troops occurred in full accord with the Allies and in the most pacific manner without the least opposition from the Greek garrison authorities. The occupation has a purely military character, to secure the communications of the Italian expeditionary force operating in Albania and Epirus, which might otherwise be threatened by roving bands in Epirus.

Owing to the demobilization of the Greek Army, the Greeks were not able to maintain security of the roads, which from Janina go into South Albania and along the coast of the Corfu Channel, and are the most accessible routes for sending reinforcements and supplies to the Italian troops operating in conjunction with the allied army in Macedonia.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Occupation of Janina, in Northwestern Greece, near the Albanian frontier, by Italian troops was a "military necessity," according to official dispatches received here today from the Italian Government. The occupation was necessitated, the dispatches say, to guarantee the stability of conditions in the occupied territory of Albania and to establish a shorter and safer route for Italian transports and supply ships across the Adriatic.

AIRMAN AN AUTO SPEEDER.

Clarence Gaynor, About to Join Allies, Fined $100.

"The faster I go the easier I can dodge 'em," explained Clarence Gaynor, 25 years old, a student, of 151 West Eighty-eighth Street, to Magistrate House in the Traffic Court yesterday. Gaynor, who goes abroad this week to join the Allies' air forces as a pilot, was halted by Motor Cycle Patrolman Carrigan at Riverside Drive and Eighty-fifth Street, after he had sped five blocks at a pace reckoned by Carrigan at 38 miles an hour.

Gaynor had been warned twice before against speeding on the Drive, Carrigan testified. Magistrate House imposed a fine of $100 with the alternative of fifteen days in the Tombs. Gaynor paid his fine.

MUSIC MEN SEEK HARMONY.

Dealers to Ask Publishers for Standard Rates and Discounts.

The National Sheet Music Dealers' Association began its fourth annual convention in the Green Room—though the association has no theatrical leanings—of the McAlpin yesterday, and will continue there tomorrow and Thursday, after waiting over today while the Music Publishers' Association meets at the Hotel Astor. The dealers' membership yesterday worked up a few questions that will today come before the big magnates, the "House of Lords" of the music trade, composed of forty or more firms controlling the sale of sheet music in America, and exercising a practical veto power over proposals from the larger assembly of the men who make the sales. There were a hundred members from all over the country at yesterday's sessions, and double that number due tomorrow.

The dealers want standard rates and discounts, as in the book publishing trade. They sent out 2,600 circulars to their members, asking for war figures as to cost of doing business, and they got eleven replies. Undismayed, the convention leaders set their delegates talking more freely on the same lines. They say they want a business that won't cost 40 per cent. to sell a piece of music on which the publisher grants them only 33 1-3.

Some of the "popular" music sellers, the ten-cent thrillers are so convinced of the association's value that, whereas they formerly refused all invitations to a national meeting, they are asking now to come in on their own account at rising war rates. The old cutthroat game, one dealer said yesterday, is over permanently as far as rival dealers are concerned. The next step, which the present convention is confidently expected to take this week, is to persuade the big publishers that "harmony" is a good thing, not only in their music, but also in their methods with their agents and distributers. It's a get-together campaign.

All the men with new patriotic songs to offer turned up early yesterday, making a massed drive on the convention, as thousands of them have hitherto besieged individual music stores in as many States as there are stars in the "spangled" banner. The convention gave these composers the glad hand. It could afford to do so, for, as President Homeyer and Secretary Heffelfinger explained, the nation's music dealers would be only too glad of a winning song to sell, provided the authors would go up to the Astor today and get the publishers there to sponsor it.

Last evening the dealers dropped business and made up theatre parties for some of the attractions, not necessarily musical, now current in town. Tomorrow the local Entertainment Committee, in charge of Michael Keane, J. Martin Priaulx, and others, will invite the delegates to go in a body to a suburban picnic dinner at City Island, with salt-water fare just caught out of Long Island Sound and a cabaret of broilers fresh from Broadway.

MILITARY NIGHT AT FESTA.

Brilliant Throng in Macdougal Alley to Greet Soldiers and Sailors.

Soldiers and sailors took Macdougal Alley by storm last night, for it was Army and Navy night at the festa. The throng was so great by 9 o'clock that difficulty was experienced in clearing space for the drill.

Viewing the parade and drill from Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney's balcony restaurant were Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell and Rear Admiral Usher and their staffs, also Colonel Augustus P. Gardiner, all of whom were her guests at dinner.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, Lady Lister Kaye, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, and Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt were among others at dinner last night who joined afterward in the activities of the festa. Bob Edwards, called the Troubadour of Greenwich Village, sang ballads about the villagers in the Café Chantant. The Liberty Bond booth, with Mrs. F. Burrall Hoffman in charge, did a rousing business both afternoon and evening.

The closing festivities tonight will include the big allied ball and pageant. The alley is to be floored with canvas for the dancing. In the pageant Columbia, represented by Miss Ethel Barrymore, will be welcomed by the allied nations, impersonated by other stage celebrities.

Dr. W. de Kerlor is to appear for the first time in séances tonight at the Bien-etre du Blesse booth as an added feature to the House of Mysteries. During the afternoon two airplanes will fly from Mineola, L. I., and will drop Liberty Loan and enlistment literature over the alley and Washington Square.

NORA BAYES AT THE PALACE.

She Returns to the Varieties with New Songs—Bert Levy's Cartoons.

Nora Bayes returned to the varieties yesterday at the Palace after a long absence, during which she has been her own manager. Miss Bayes's return was paradoxically both fortunate and unfortunate for vaudeville. Fortunate because of her genuine artistry, unfortunate because of the sorry contrast many of the other variety entertainers made with her. Miss Bayes sang some new songs and several of the best from her own program which she presented here recently.

George White danced as vigorously as ever, this time with Emma Haig, a recruit from the Ziegfeld school. Miss Haig proved more agile than graceful, but she looked well in several attractive costumes. She might, however, dispense with the red cross above her left knee in one of them and with the use of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," as a dance tune. Bert Levy with his cartoons and a boys' band from San Francisco were the best among the other numbers.

E. R. STETTINIUS BUYS HOME

Morgan Partner Purchases Old Residence of A. R. E. Pinchot.

Edward R. Stettinius, a partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., has purchased for his city home one of the finest houses in the upper Park Avenue district. It formerly was the home of Amos R. E. Pinchot. The transfer was recorded yesterday in the Register's office to Mr. Stettinius's wife, Judith C. Stettinius, subject to a mortgage of $100,000. Mr. and Mrs. Stettinius are now living at 16 East Seventy-third Street.

The Pinchot home was erected about ten years ago on the northeast corner of Park Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street. It is an imposing four-story dwelling, fronting 42.2 feet in Park Avenue and 82.2 feet in Eighty-fifth Street.

Among other features, it contains a large ball room and a music room. Adjoining it on the north is the Reginald de Koven house.

The Pinchot house has been occupied under lease this season by J. C. Baldwin, Jr., of Mount Kisco, the rental being $20,000 a year. The property is assessed at $210,000, of which $135,000 is land value. The announcement of the sale was made last Fall, but the name of the purchaser has been kept secret.

TAXATION AND REPRESENTATION

The Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives is indignant at the changes in its tax proposals by the Senate. The committee has heard somehow that its bill may be returned to it with alterations of everything except the enacting clause. The committee, through its Chairman, Mr. KITCHIN, therefore declares that the Senate changes are dictated by the "interests," and that the bill in the Senate form will be satisfactory only to those friendly with the capitalists. Mr. KITCHIN declares that if the Senate bill should be passed the country would promptly declare that "this is a rich man's war, and a "poor man's fight, and a poor man's "pay."

By chance the United States Chamber of Commerce throws light upon the question on the same day that the Senate is criticised so severely. The Chamber has been considering the subject since April. A committee not second to the committee of the House in its representative or authoritative membership proposed eight formulas of procedure regarding taxation, and the referendum upon the suggestions has just been completed. The proposals were made when it was not known what the House would do, and the result of the referendum is announced in ignorance of Mr. KITCHIN's arraignment of the Senate's amendments. It is not possible that the referendum should be regarded as taking sides between the Senate and the House. It is colorless in tone, a mere statement of facts which carry their own weight with them. The voting was in proportion to membership, and was cast throughout the country in ignorance of the vote anywhere else. The largest vote cast in the affirmative was 1,312. The largest negative vote was 340. Every proposal of the committee was carried by a thousand majority, more or less. There is no suggestion anywhere of any reluctance to bear increased taxes. But there is ample reflection of dislike of the proposals of the House which Mr. KITCHIN defends so warmly.

The proposal of the House for retroactive taxes is specifically condemned by one of the most striking votes in the list. Proposals favored by the referendum which the House ignored in its action are for the increase of first-class postage rather than second class, for excise taxes on luxuries, for stamp taxes to the amount of $250,000,000. The Chamber sustains the House in reducing the exemption on the individual income tax and in its increase of the excess profits tax, but it must be said that the manner of the increase by the House is not approved specifically. The Chamber differs from both the Senate and the House in an original suggestion for an increase of customs duties by $100,000,000. The current news carries the fact that the Senate has altered the House's bill in the respects favored by the Chamber, particularly the excise tax on sugar and the bank check tax. The eight proposals of the Chamber would together raise less than the proposal of the Treasury approved by the House, and would approximate the Senate's figures.

Mr. KITCHIN would derive more instruction than pleasure from considering the report of the United States Chamber of Commerce. The same may be said of such authoritative expressions of opinion as those by the Chambers of such cities as Boston and New York. There is at least a moratorium, if not amnesty, between Government and business. There should be the same comity between the lawmakers and business. It might almost be said that the war could not be prosecuted without the assistance of the gentlemen for whom Mr. KITCHIN has such slight esteem. The irresistible tide of events is overwhelming with innocuous desuetude, if not obloquy, many measures conceived in the temper of Mr. KITCHIN's remarks. He invites the country to decide between the House and the Senate. It does not seem to occur to him that the country is holding an assize upon the representative character of its Representatives.

It may be pertinent to inquire why Mr. KITCHIN reiterates just at this time his well-known views upon the principles of taxation. Subscriptions to the Liberty Loan were large in number and of generous volume at the time his tax bill was reported, for which he declared that he would vote "with his eyes shut." Subscriptions were instantly checked. Just now, in the few days remaining for completing the work, a special effort is making to secure the subscriptions needed to round out the two billion total. It is at this critical moment that Mr. KITCHIN propounds again his personal views about taxation, rages at the Senate for changing his bill, and assails the rich, from whom, chiefly, subscriptions must come. Is Mr. KITCHIN really trying to defeat the Government in its efforts to raise money for a war of which he does not approve?

IT IS YOUR DUTY.

Three days remain for the completion of the subscription to the first issue of Liberty Bonds. That is a fact which every American citizen who has not yet subscribed according to his circumstances should take to heart. The subscription must be completed at the specified time; it will be, but for the national honor it should remain to the end what it was designed to be, a popular loan. The larger the number of bondholders the greater the triumph will be. Few citizens cannot afford to purchase at least one of the smaller bonds, paying for it by installments. Personal sacrifice is expected, it is essential.

If your mother or wife were in imminent peril and you could save her by the payment of a small sum of money, would you hesitate because you might use that money for another purpose? If your son or daughter were threatened with danger which you could avert by the use of money, would you not deny yourself luxury or do without something which would increase your comfort to accomplish that object? Your country is in danger. The freedom you have rejoiced in, the equal opportunity for all of which you have boasted, are threatened. Will you hesitate to buy at least one small Liberty Bond when the money you thus invest is absolutely essential to the Government and will not only be secured, but will return to you a reasonable profit every six months?

The country can be saved from its present danger only by the willingness of all its citizens to submit to personal sacrifice, to act in unison, to make their patriotism practical, to feel that the common cause is theirs.

ANNEXATIONS AND INDEMNITIES.

President WILSON's clear statement of our aims in the war cannot fail to have a powerful effect in Russia. The chief danger is that it may be in some measure neutralized by German influence; it is known that there are hordes of German agents actively at work there. The first object to be achieved, which is all-important, is to convince the Russians that the declaration of their Government against annexations and indemnities is in accord with the proclaimed purposes of the Allies, and the President speaks not only for the United States but for its partners in the war, since they have a common purpose.

Mr. WILSON makes it entirely clear that there is no thought of punitive indemnities, none will be insisted on "except those which constitute pay-"ment for manifest wrongs done." Germany has committed wrongs for which in simple justice she should be required to make compensation. It is plain that there should be payment to Belgium, reparation should be made for the wanton destruction of property, for no military reason, in the French territory so long occupied by Germans. This would be entirely compatible with the principle enunciated by the present Government of Russia.

Certainly no member of the Russian Government, unless he were affected with a German bias, could deny that what Mr. WILSON has to say upon the subject of territorial changes is based upon sound reason and the principles of eternal justice. It would be preposterous to interpret the Russian slogan of "no annexations" as an insistence upon the restoration of the status quo. It is only in German minds, and in the minds of those who would look with favor upon the accomplishment of German aims, that that idea could find favor. As Mr. WILSON points out, "it "was the status quo ante out of which "this iniquitous war issued forth." The ambitious plans of domination which the Imperial Government sought to carry out involved annexations on a tremendous scale, "widespread domination and influence" outside the empire. The military "projection of "power all the way from Berlin to "Bagdad and beyond" was "directed "against nothing else than the peace "and liberty of the world." To break the meshes of that intrigue it is necessary that wrong already done should be undone, and not less important that "adequate measures must be taken to "prevent it from ever again being re-"woven or repaired." The undoing of past wrongs, the righting of old acts of territorial rapine, must be considered essential to the safeguarding of peace in the future. The restoration of Alsace-Lorraine to France and of Italia Irredenta to its rightful owner would not be "annexations," they would be a restoration of property forcibly seized. To the re-establishment of lawful ownership over these territories the Russian Government could not object, unless it is determined to do the will of Germany. The territorial changes the Allies have in mind would grant that freedom to oppressed nationalities of which mention is made in the British note to Russia, now made public. These changes are not imperialistic annexations, not that carving up of States against their will in which the Hohenzollerns, the Hapsburgs, and the Romanoffs were wont to indulge at the conclusion of successful wars. These are changes made to satisfy the national yearnings of peoples ruled against their will.

The changes to be wrought in Austria-Hungary, if justice is to be done and peace safeguarded, are no doubt considerable, but they are nevertheless essential if we are to prevent, in the President's words, "any such hideous thing" as this war from ever happening again. A writer in The New Europe, that exceedingly well-informed, fair-minded, and authoritative publication, which has given so much intelligent consideration to the problems of the new adjustments in Southeastern Europe, says upon this point:

> It would not be an "annexation" were the Poles of Russia, Austria, and Prussia to be reunited in some form of independent polity. It would not be "annexation" were the Czechs of Bohemia and Moravia, with the Slovaks of Moravia and Northwestern Hungary, to be united in an independent State; nor would it be "annexation" were the whole Serbo-Croat-Slovene race to realize the aspirations of its political seers, and join in forming a united, albeit federated, Southern Slavia. Similarly with the Austrian Italians and with the Austro-Rumanians and Little Russians of Hungary and Austria. The formula "no annexation" would, in this sense, operate against the Hapsburgs, and the Magyars, who, in the words of the parody:
> ". . . clutched the hair of diverse > populations,
> And, having clutched, keep tugging
> and, to this extent, would involve that "dismemberment of Austria" of which our pacifists, like our Tories of the sixties, the German "Imperial Royal" Socialists, and the pro-German Italian Socialists, are so singularly suspicious. The Magyars and the Germans of Austria would naturally retain this right of self-determination, but would lose the power of oppressing the non-Germans and the non-Magyars, which was one of the contributory causes of the war.

We know little thus far of the reception accorded to the President's letter in Russia. It was published there simultaneously with its appearance here, publication having been delayed, it is explained, by a misunderstanding about the giving out at the same time of notes from the other Allied Powers. Our allies were informed of the contents of the President's note, and it is manifest that it represents their opinions and intentions. Indeed, that is expressly stated in the British note. Great Britain's attitude is exactly that taken by Mr. WILSON in behalf of the United States. There are some hopeful indications of returning reason and steadiness in Provisional Government circles in Petrograd. Business men, representing a sober-minded view of Russian interests, have spoken in a manner very satisfactory to the Allies. Recent efforts on the part of Germany to further her schemes of a separate peace with Russia have been balked, and the Cossacks of the Don, the best fighting men in Russia, declare their loyal support of the Government and protest against the furthering of German purposes by senseless radicals. To all of these the President's letter should bring a powerful reinforcement. It is not too late to entertain the hope that Russia may loyally resume her relations with the Allies, giving them the aid in the prosecution of the war which they have the right to expect of her.

THE IRISH CONVENTION.

The murder by Sinn Feiners in Dublin of a Police Inspector who, in obedience to orders, was preventing a meeting called for seditious purposes is not a good omen, perhaps, of the success of the Irish Convention. On the other hand, the heroic death in battle of Major WILLIAM REDMOND, brother of the Nationalist leader and himself an influential member of the Irish contingent in Parliament, lends a new glamour to the achievements of the Irish in the war. All the chroniclers testify to the glorious work accomplished by the Irish soldiers on the western front. They all feel, as the Prime Minister said of WILLIAM REDMOND in his eulogy in Parliament yesterday, that "the war is Ireland's "great opportunity for winning vic-"tory for itself while fighting side by "side with Great Britain in the world "struggle for freedom." REDMOND shed his blood for Ireland. The prompt and sincere English recognition of his heroism cannot fail to have its effect.

Yet on the eve of the calling of the convention the result of this unprecedented and obviously hazardous plan to put the settlement of the Irish question in the hands of the Irish themselves cannot safely be predicted. The announcement of the composition of the convention by Mr. LLOYD GEORGE does not indicate that the Imperial Government intends to restrict its freedom of action in any way. It seems to be assured that if Ireland will be content with such a government as Great Britain has freely bestowed on Canada and Australia she can have it. But inevitably the irreconcilables who insist on complete separation will be voluble in the debates. Much depends on the tact and patriotism of the Ulster delegates and the Protestant clergy. These will include the representatives of the Ulster County Councils, the Belfast Chamber of Commerce, the Primate and Archbishop of Dublin, the Moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly, and the five members to be appointed by Sir JOHN LONSDALE. It is not likely that any faction will be enabled to control the convention. The labor men, the Sinn Feiners, and the Irish peers will all be represented. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE has changed his mind in regard to the Chairmanship. He would prefer to have the convention nominate its own presiding officer. The appointment by the Imperial Government of a man of the strict judicial temperament, who has never been involved in political controversies, it seems, would be the safer plan.

THE MESSINES VICTORY.

The second of the long succession of British blows against the German line has fallen. Its local purpose was to straighten out the Ypres salient, and, that having been brilliantly accomplished, the likelihood is that Field Marshal HAIG's next blow will fall in a different region. The object of his campaign is that of GRANT in 1864—not so much to reconquer territory and take positions as to wear the enemy out. His campaign of 1916 had three objects, the relief of Verdun, the diversion of the threatened attack on Russia, and attrition of the German strength. This year two of these objects are not present, and only the third remains.

Therefore HAIG struck heavily along the Arras line, and when he ended that enterprise he struck his next blow, this time at Ypres. Bearing in mind that his object is attrition, and that when one gains his object he has won a victory, it would be even a greater gain for him to inflict heavy losses on the enemy than to straighten out the Ypres salient. He took over 7,000 prisoners, and, according to the usual way of figuring, this would mean 30,000 killed and wounded. HAIG himself lost 10,000. From every point of view, therefore, the Ypres attack was a victory.

HAIG's policy this year, so far as developed, is that of striking steady, heavy, alternating blows; hammering. He hammers first at one point and then at another. The points at which he strikes them are not accidentally determined; that is, he does not first strike a blow at one point, and then look around for another. On the contrary, the Ypres attack was in preparation long before the blow on the Arras line was struck. There is no present intention of breaking through the German line. What is intended is to thin it out and depress its morale by a long succession of such blows as this, until it shall have weakened enough to make it possible to break it. That time may be far in the future.

This plan is as well known to Germany as it is to HAIG himself, and therefore the rejoicings of HINDENBURG and the Kaiser over imaginary British defeats, whenever HAIG comes to the end of one of his blows, are thoroughly insincere. When HAIG finished his blow at Arras and struck no more, but went ahead with his preparations for his blow at Ypres, the Kaiser made the air ring with shouts of pretended joy over this "defeat." Probably he will repeat the performance as soon as activity, which is already slowing down at Ypres, ceases there; and so with HAIG's next blow. But HAIG, entirely undisturbed, methodically goes along getting his next blow launched; and this is likely to be the history of the campaign throughout the rest of the year. How long it will take the German people to discover the hollowness of the Kaiser's rejoicings it is impossible to say; but of course the Kaiser himself is not in the least deceived.

The use of the word "British" instead of the word "Allies" is warranted by the fact that the bulk of the offensive work is falling entirely on the British. The French, apparently, intend to conserve their men. This was JOFFRE's policy, while NIVELLE's was more aggressive. NIVELLE's attack seems to have been more expensive in men than the policy of attrition of the enemy warrants, and since then the French have been standing more on the defensive. With Russia still out of the war, Rumania waiting on Russia, the burden of the offensive has fallen upon the British in the west and the Italians in the south, with such aid to the British as it may be expedient for the French to render from time to time.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Lynching Out of the Ordinary.

Several peculiarities are to be observed in the behavior of the mob that took from a Missouri Sheriff the man PIEBSOL, suspected of complicity in the kidnapping and murdering of the Keet child, and in that of PIEBSOL himself. As for the members of the group of citizens who started out to avenge that truly atrocious crime, they showed themselves decidedly unlike and above the majority of such gatherings in that they had obvious compunctions, and rather strong ones, against putting an innocent man to death.

The usual mob starts with its mind made up, on evidence often inadequate, and its underlying desire seems to be to assuage a rage that is more or less well justified by killing somebody—preferably, but not necessarily, a guilty somebody. The Missouri lynchers, like many others, demanded a confession before they took final action, and they showed the old confidence in torture as a means of extorting the truth, but—what is most uncommon—when the torture did not bring the admission which it certainly would have brought [illegible] the refusal for the evidence, or at least the indication, of innocence, and turned their prisoner back into the hands of the law for a regular trial.

Apparently they did not realize that PIEBSOL's refusal to confess was proof neither of innocence nor guilt, but simply of the fact that they had not carried proceedings far enough to make him say, for the sake of escaping further agony, anything his torturers wanted him to say. As for PIEBSOL, his status remains exactly what it was before the mob caught him—that is, he has on his side the presumption of innocence, and will have it until a duly constituted court takes it away from him, or until that court turns the presumption into a demonstration.

Not one man in the mob seems to have realized that PIEBSOL's one chance of life lay in doing exactly what he did. The only reward for confession would have been immediate death, as he very well knew. And it seems more than unlikely that a man so courageous as he is would have engaged in a crime so cowardly as that of stealing and killing a little baby.

A Modern Order of Knighthood.

More strikingly than ever before there has been illustrated in the battle for the Messines Ridge the fact that the airplane as an engine of war has capacities far beyond those originally ascribed to it and even beyond those with which until very recently it had been credited. Even before the present great struggle it was fully realized in military circles all over the world that strategy and tactics had been materially changed by the airplane as a means of gaining information of an enemy's operations and in directing artillery fire. No long experience was required to reveal that for scouting work of every kind this machine was vastly superior to anything and everything previously employed for such purposes.

Then came the discovery that though submarine cannot fight submarine, airplane can fight airplane, and for months past aerial battles have been everyday occurrences on the western front, and not rare on the others. Now it is manifest that the man who flies can do still more. He can carry aloft with him considerable quantities of explosive bombs and light but deadly quick-firing guns well supplied with ammunition, and with these weapons he can attack, with often startling success, the batteries that are assailing his own army and the infantry groups that are in the trenches or marching toward them.

In no small degree it is thanks to the airplane that the British officer's description of modern war as "dirty, dull, and dangerous"—with the favorite British intensive before each—has lost a good deal of its original accuracy. Surely no chronicles of old-time campaigns had anything more of the romantic and the adventurous in them than was to be found in the many recent dispatches telling the marvelous exploits of the aviators. To say that they are more courageous than the other soldiers would not be true, but as a class they are brave in a different way—a way full, as yet, of the startling and the sensational.

They are the survivals, or the revivals, of the knights errant, and they need not be too much pitied for their many casualties. Theirs is personal glory, as well as personal prowess, and they live much, if not long.

A FLAG INCIDENT.

William Meyer Shows That He Acted Upon a Patriotic Impulse.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me to direct your attention to a paragraph which appeared in THE TIMES on June 2, under the caption "Insult to United States Flag Cost $50." I take exception to the heading as being misleading, and to the subject matter as falling so far short of the truth that it conveyed to your readers an impression diametrically opposite to that which they would have received from a full recital of the facts.

This article concerned myself and was written in such a way as to cast doubts upon my sympathies and my patriotism, two things which have never before been questioned, and I feel myself entitled to register a most emphatic protest against the injustice that has been done me. Call it a large and legitimate kick if you like. However, read the facts and judge for yourself.

A shop at Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street is managed by a man of notoriously pro-German sympathies, who made a prominent display in his windows of the Kaiser, von Hindenburg and the Emperor of Austria until this country actually declared war. Two paper American flags had been placed on the window of the shop by indignant American citizens, and certain of my friends and myself noted that day by day pieces of the flags were being torn off in an effort to remove them.

On Friday evening, June 1, I was in company with several friends, one of whom has lost his only son fighting for France at the battle of Verdun. In passing the shop, we noticed that a sign composed in the German colors, red, white, and black, was flaunted above the remnant of the American flag, upon which I indignantly wrote in pencil "Look at the German colors above it."

While the propriety of my act and the interpretation of the significance of the German colors are of course open to criticism, the act in itself was essentially inspired by patriotic motives and a desire to challenge what appeared to all of us to be a flagrant and open affront to all Americans.

That full justice be done to myself, it is my conviction that this letter should be published and given a prominence equal at least to that of the article referred to.

Incidentally, I wish to say that I am a native of Denmark and became an American citizen sixteen years ago.

WILLIAM MEYER,
25 West Forty-sixth Street.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Under date of June 2 there appeared in your esteemed paper an article indicating that upon complaint of Miss Charlotte Fairchild William Meyer, a lace importer of 25 West Forty-sixth Street, was fined $50 by Magistrate Corrigan in the Men's Court for having written across an American flag, printed on a placard and displayed in a shop on Fifth Avenue and Forty-fifth Street, the words "Look at the German flag above it."

Your very large circulation not only in the city, but out of town, in this instance unfortunately for us, has caused the President of our corporation, Mr. William Meyer, a namesake of the offender, considerable annoyance and embarrassment as a result of the mistaken identity.

The President of our corporation established this business in 1885, and is well and favorably known throughout the entire country. The Directors, officers, and stockholders of our corporation are all American citizens in the fullest sense of the word, and so we feel quite sure you will be glad to use your columns for the purpose of differentiating between the two William Meyers.

IN THE RUSSIAN PRISONS.

A Revolutionist's Answer to Charges of Cruelty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Associated Press correspondent the other day informed the American public that the army and navy officers suspected of actively sympathizing with the autocracy who are held in the Kronstadt prisons are treated horribly.

I am utterly out of sympathy with the so-called Kronstadt republic, but I firmly protest against the attitude of those who try to raise American public opinion against revolutionary Russia.

The correspondent asserts that the cells are overcrowded, unventilated, windowless, &c. No doubt they are. But one must not forget that these prisons were built, not by revolutionary Russia, but by the Government of the Czar, and were originally intended for revolutionists. Had the builders known that the time would come when they themselves would have to inhabit those prisons, they would surely have made them more comfortable.

Admiral Kurosh, one of the prisoners, complained to the correspondent that the prison food (the correspondent admits that it is the food of a private soldier) has ruined his health. I am very sorry if it did. But in times of war and revolution even civilians must be satisfied with the food they get. "Babushka" Breshkovskaya, Vera Zasulich, Maria Spiridonova, Vera Figner, Herman Lopatin, Prince Kropotkin, and multitudes of others during many years of their imprisonment would have been lucky to get the kind of food that Admiral Kurosh gets.

And, as the correspondent tells us that the prisoners are allowed to read newspapers, to buy tobacco, to write and receive letters, (although censored,) and even to complain to The Associated Press correspondent, I really do not see where the "horrors" are.

Russia, which has known the tortures of Riga prisons, the executions of Rennenkampf, the horrors of Siberia, would surely not be amazed by such "horrors" as those described by the correspondent. And if the American public will read George Kennan it will admit that the revolutionists are very good-natured people after all.

Those Who Claim Exemption.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the registration blanks that were filled out by the young men of this country on Tuesday, June 5, one of the questions to be answered appears to me to be obscure. I refer to the claim of exemption. Inasmuch as I am one of the millions whose duty it was to be registered, I was faced by a puzzling problem. It is not easy for anybody with a conscience to claim exemption; that is to say, to register himself as unwilling to perform his duty. My opinion is that the greater part of the citizens of the United States will not hesitate to carry out cheerfully the obligations that are proper to their station in life and, at the same time, to others in identical or similar circumstances. I think that the statement of this willingness would have been much more satisfactory than the answer of "Yes" or "No" to a claim for exemption. This last question, in its vagueness, (because we do not know what constitutes exemption,) sets a premium upon cowardice, or, at least, upon caution. I would not blame any man for answering "Yes" to this question if he has any dependents or any good and sufficient reason to believe that he should not be drafted. The fact remains that it is not exactly fair to the man who, though he may not really be more honorable, reads a somewhat different meaning into the question than his neighbor.

From the advance reports it seems probable that some 60 per cent. of the men registered have claimed exemption. It appears to me that the resulting situation is going to be very embarrassing not only to the persons who have filled out blanks but to those who must examine the records. Moreover, the outcome of selection from such material is doubtful in the extreme. If the question as to the "claim for exemption" had been omitted from the registry forms, or had been put in such a way that the American people could understand what was meant by "claim" and what by "exemption," much better results could have been obtained for all parties concerned.

The Aberdeen Charities.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your excellent account of the service at St. John the Evangelist last evening one statement appears which is open to misunderstanding. Bishop Darlington did not "question" the charities in Ireland in which Lord and Lady Aberdeen are deeply interested. He did ask questions concerning them so that the congregation might know more fully concerning the noble work that is being done for the children of Ireland by the association represented by Lord and Lady Aberdeen.

THE RISING WIND.

The wind's in the South today—
Down come,
Cherry and plum,
Pear-blow—
White snow—
For it's the end of May
And the wind's in the South today!
Pink—pink—pink
Are the almonds, the apple-buds,
Honeysuckle—
Hear that oriole chuckle,
Making up for lost May!
Drink, humming-bird, drink!
How he scuds
To his yellow treasure,
His spicery-bin,
His breath of the Isles,
Taking him back a thousand miles!
How he pricks the air in his pleasure
With notes like a pin!

Clang-clang!
Clang-clang!
When the wind's in the South I can hear,
Sometimes far, sometimes near,
As the wind grows or stops,
The sound of the Drops—
The Drops that weigh a thousand pounds—
Cutting steel into rounds:
Hear the little hammers go "clop—
Clop-clop-clop—clop-clop-clop"—
Worse than the Drop,
For the men say
You can't get away
From the tearing clamor
Of that every-second hammer.
The air is so sweet today,
And I—am I shirking
While men are working
Down in that furnace, punching strips of steel?
They, too, could feel
This soft breath, hear these birds!

Each day,
Now, there's a line to say
So many Americans killed over there.
The wind of War's in the East.
Slowly it comes
At first—no drums.
Lightly it blows—
No blare.
But it grows—oh, it grows!—
The Beast!
Just a growl of him—just a glare—
Hidden yet—but he's there!
Listen—the wind's in the East!

PLANS OF THE RED CROSS.

Davison Explains How $100,000,000 Fund Will Be Used.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The specific purposes to which the Red Cross expects to devote the $100,000,000 it has asked the American people to contribute are enumerated in a statement made public today by Henry P. Davison, Chairman of the War Council of the Red Cross. President Wilson has set aside the week of June 18 to 25 as Red Cross Week, and Mr. Davison hopes to obtain contributions for the full amount of the $100,000,000 war service fund during that period.

"Our first obligation is to render such service as comes within the province of the Red Cross to our soldiers and sailors at home and abroad," the statement says. "Consideration of the vastness of this undertaking alone as compared with any other situation ever known to us will impress one with the impossibility of forming a definite budget or specifying in particular the amounts of money required to care for our countrymen.

"After making every provision necessary for this purpose, our endeavor will be to supplement the efforts of our allies in caring for their sick and wounded.

"We shall help provide the bare necessities of life to the homeless in devastated France; to aid them to rehabilitate themselves and thus strengthen the man power of the French Army.

"We shall strive to hearten Russia, by providing additional ambulances and other relief for the sick and wounded along the battlefront. We shall try to succor the homeless and wandering peoples of Poland, Lithuania, and Western Russia.

"We hope to extend aid to those who are fighting the battles of liberty in Rumania, Serbia, and Italy—indeed, to relieve human misery everywhere among our allies.

"We have set $100,000,000 as the minimum of our need. It is evident that we could use many times that amount. To administer these funds economically and efficiently we are developing an organization headed by some of the most competent and experienced business men in the country. They serve without pay."

LONDON, June 11.—The Chicago Red Cross unit left London today for France, where it will take over a hospital of 500 beds. The unit numbers nearly 200 persons. It was headed by Major Collins. It was the latest American medical unit to arrive in England, and its departure leaves as the only American medical officers still here a number of Americans from Boston engaged in orthopedic work.

LOAN BONDS FOR RED CROSS

Two Offers of $25,000 Each Accepted by the War Council.

Offers of two contributions of $25,000 each in Liberty bonds have been made to the Finance Committee of the American Red Cross, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., member of the Red Cross War Council, announced yesterday at the campaign headquarters. The offers were accepted.

The prospective contributors told members of the Finance Committee that after investing in Liberty bonds they had no other funds available to aid the Red Cross. They realized, they said, that the Red Cross was facing the most serious call in history, and that they would be pleased, therefore, if their entire purchases of Liberty bonds were accepted, in lieu of cash, as their contributions to the $100,000,000 war fund of the American Red Cross.

The Captains of the men and women teams who will direct the field work during the campaign for funds, beginning June 18—the first day of what has been officially proclaimed Red Cros Week by President Wilson—will meet tomorrow in the Bankers' Club. Plans for the campaign will be discussed at a luncheon.

INVESTIGATES GERMAN LIES.

Washington Starts Inquiry Into Cables Telling of Interment Orders.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Extracts from German papers reaching the State Department by cable show that misrepresentation of American conditions is continuing in Germany. A dispatch to the department today stated that the Hamburger Fremdenblatt on June 8 printed a dispatch as having been received from New York to the effect that the Senate has ordered the internment of every German who had arrived here in the past three years. State Department officials doubt that these messages were ever sent from New York. On June 3 a German paper printed what purported to be an interview with Secretary Baker. The Secretary denied that he had given such an interview.

The naval censors in charge of the cable offices have been ordered to make an investigation, the object being to trace the source of the alleged leak of information from correspondents in New York City to German newspapers. While a formal report has not been made by the censors, and the investigation is still in progress, enough has been learned to warrant the statement that no trace of the June 3 message to a German newspaper has yet been found. The copies of the messages filed are being examined very closely to ascertain whether by any possibility any of those filed on or about June 3 could have been twisted into serving as a basis for what the German paper printed. The extract from the Hamburger Fremdenblatt follows:

"The American Senate has already passed regulations which provide that every German who has in the last three years arrived from Germany shall be interned. Wilson has laid before the Senate a draft of a law relative to spies which is far more drastic than anything previously in force in Russia."

JEWS PLEASED WITH VOTE.

Indications That 500,000 Ballots Were Cast Throughout the Country.

The election machinery of the American Jewish Congress is still occupied with the counting of votes cast on Sunday for delegates to the congress. Judging that close to 150,000 ballots were cast in New York alone, the leaders of the movement were firm in their belief that close to half a million Jews must have voted for delegates from the whole country. Reports from all the larger cities indicated that heavy voting had taken place.

At the headquarters of the American Jewish Congress Committee in the Metropolitan Building yesterday scores of counters were employed all day long in opening the ballot boxes, which were sent in from the various districts. Up to a late hour yesterday fully 120,000 ballots were sent in, together with a total of $12,000 raised during the election through the imposition of a tax of 10 cents on each voter. When all the returns are completed the committtee expects to have $15,000 to cover the expenses incurred by the election in this city.

It was announced on behalf of the American Jewish Congress Committee that the leaders of the congress were highly pleased with the results of the election. The number of ballots cast, the committee said, was a sufficient indication that the congress had the strong support of a big portion of American Jewry in spite of the opposition that had developed from various directions on the ground that the liberation of Russian Jews had made it unnecessary to hold the proposed congress.

The names of the candidates who were actually elected to the congress from this city will not be announced for another day or two. After the ballots are all counted, it was said yesterday that the committee would proceed at once with the preparations for the holding of the congress in Washington on Sept. 2.

Truman H. Newberry Commissioned

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, former Secretary of the Navy, has been commissioned as Commander in the Naval Reserve, and ordered to report for duty this week at Washington. Mr. Newberry is 52 years of age and served as Naval Lieutenant in the Spanish war.

DARTMOUTH RECASTS FACULTY DISCIPLINE

MAY FORECAST WIDE MOVE

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., June 11.—Action taken by the Board of Trustees of Dartmouth College at its meeting last week, as announced today, may forecast a movement among the leading colleges and universities of the country to check extreme utterances of individual professors or instructors on subjects in connection with which their collegiate position might give their views unwarranted prominence. Appointments and dismissals, at Dartmouth hitherto the exclusive privilege of the Board of Trustees, are now to be made with the advice of a Faculty Committee. The Faculty thus has won a far greater share in the protection of its members in freedom of speech than it theoretically had before, although in practice Dartmouth has been little troubled with difficulties of this sort. With this privilege, however, goes a share of the responsibility for such disciplinary action as may be necessary.

It was also announced that the college would continue with the full curriculum and teaching staff, despite the war, and that the resultant deficit, estimated at more than $100,000 for the first year, would be funded and treated as a war debt of the college.

The provisions now announced are embodied in resolutions passed by both the Board of Trustees and the Faculty upon the recommendations of a conference committee representing the two bodies. Heretofore, according to the charter of the college, members of the Faculty were appointed "to assist the President in the education and government of the students," and might be dismissed by the vote of a majority of the Board of Trustees.

Functions of Faculty Advisors.

The new situation is expressed in the resolutions of the two bodies as follows:

"In accordance both with precedent and the inclination of the board, the procedure shall be continued under which an election to a professorship or associate professorship should be considered as on the basis of permanency, rather than as a term appointment. Official action relating to appointments, reappointments, and refusals of reappointment to positions above the grade of instructor shall be taken only after consultation with a committee of the Faculty appointed as advisory to the President for this purpose; the committee to consist of six members—five chosen by the President from a group of eight nominated by vote of the Faculty and the Dean. In the case of instructors such official action shall be taken only after consultation with the acting head of the department concerned.

"The Trustees would like in this connection to call attention to the occasional need for the good of the service that a member of the Faculty shall be demoted, or even dismissed, and would wish to have the indorsement of the Faculty upon the proposition that to the extent that this committee is given participation in the policies having to do with the advancement of members of the Faculty, in like manner it shall share responsibility in the occasional perplexing problems connected with inefficient service or non-ability to make their work of advantage to the college.

"Every college teacher shall be entitled, before dismissal or demotion, to have the reasons upon which the action is projected stated in writing, and to have an investigation of those reasons before the above-mentioned Advisory Committee, unless the committee, together with the President, shall unanimously agree that for the good of the college the dismissal or demotion should take place without such presentation of reasons and investigation. In case such an investigation is desired and conceded, the committee shall have the power, or at the request of the President shall be required, to make public a full account of its proceedings."

Provides Standing Committee.

A standing conference committee of three members of the Faculty and three of the Trustees is instituted. "These votes," says the statement, "in connection with the vote passed by the Trustees earlier in the year making the committee on award of honorary degrees a joint committee of the Trustees and Faculty rather than as in the past of the Trustees alone, brings the legal administration of the college and the instruction corps on a basis of joint action unusual heretofore and establishes an intimate relationship which seems calculated to obviate many misunderstandings which otherwise might arise through lack of acquaintanceship between the two bodies."

The President and Trustees agreed that Dartmouth would continue with unimpaired curriculum and no weakening of the personnel of instruction, despite the war. This action was taken, according to the announcement, "that thus the college might preserve its organization for the double purpose of giving opportunities of maximum usefulness during the war to the great number of men not yet of military age or ineligible for other reasons, and of being in a position to carry on college work at the close of the war without the necessity, through several years, of recovery of educational headway which had been lost.

"No man of the instruction corps of any grade will be given reason for having the slightest uneasiness with regard to his position; no proposition looking toward the scaling down of salaries will be considered; and all normal increases in rank and salary grades will be carried through.

"This action was taken in full recognition of the financial factors involved. The financial budget for the coming year was carefully studied and the fact was recognized that after observing all possible economies the carrying out of this policy would mean a deficit of considerably above $100,000 for the first year. Whatever it may cost, however, the college plans to fund its necessary deficits incurred under this policy and to carry them as a war debt incurred by Dartmouth in fulfilling its required functions during the period of the stress of war."

TIGHTEN PASSPORT RULES.

Steamship Lines Advised That Identification Cards Must Be Viseed.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The Government today began to tighten restrictions governing travel between the United States and foreign countries.

Secretary Redfield directed all steamship companies to accept no passengers for foreign ports, either American citizens or aliens, unless they possess passports from the State Department. The Department of Labor at the same time ordered its agents to be particularly careful in admitting persons into the country.

To put a double check on outgoing passengers, Mr. Redfield directed the shipping companies to accept no passports unless viséed.

NEW NEWFOUNDLAND TIME.

Advanced One Hour to Give Its Citizens More Daylight.

The legal time in Newfoundland was advanced one hour at 9 P. M. on Sunday, it was announced yesterday by the Commercial Cable Company. This means that hereafter Newfoundland will have an hour more daylight in each working day for those who get up and go to bed by the clock.

The proposal to "save daylight" in the United States by advancing the legal time an hour has been widely discussed, and its advocates are hopeful of its adoption.

MISS CUTTING ONE OF BRIDES OF A DAY

MISS HARTSHORNE WEDS.

Becomes Mrs. Lloyd Richards in St. Thomas's Church—Nuptial of Dr. N. E. Titus and Miss De Witt.

Miss Olivia Cutting, daughter of Mrs. Cutting and the late W. Bayard Cutting of 24 East Seventy-second Street and Westbrook, L. I., was married yesterday to Henry James, manager of the Rockefeller Institute of this city. The ceremony was performed at Emanuel Church, Great River, L. I., by the Right Rev. J. W. Atwood, who was assisted by the Rev. W. M. Webbe.

The wedding, the date of which was settled on short notice, was attended only by a small group of the immediate relatives. Mrs. Cutting announced her daughter's engagement two months ago.

The bride's father, who was a prominent lawyer of New York, died in March, 1912. She is a member of the Colony Club. Mr. James originally lived in Cambridge, Mass. He is the son of the late William James of Harvard University, who was America's foremost philosophical writer, and is a nephew of the late Henry James, the author. At the beginning of the war Mr. James was sent abroad by the Rockefeller Foundation, and spent several months in Belgium and Northern France.

Bride of Lloyd Richards.

The wedding was celebrated at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon of Lloyd Richards, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lloyd Richards and Miss Eleanor Hartshorne, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Mott Hartshorne, in St. Thomas's Church, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires officiating.

The bride walked up the nave with her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a simple white tulle robe over chiffon, with a square neck and long tulle sleeves. Tulle bordered with silver lace formed the standing collar that was low in the front. The full tulle veil was held in cap fashion to her coiffure with orange blossoms and was bordered at the end with heavy silver lace, which held it in place across the long court train. She wore a string of pearls and carried a large spray of Ascension lilies.

Mr. Richards had Dr. Samuel Bell as his best man, and the ushers were Harold Hartshorne, Donald Cowl, Truman P. Handy, Charles Baker, Robert Seeley of Texas, Dr. E. Richmond Ware, and Dr. Randolph West.

A reception followed at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Hartshorne, 40 East Sixty-fifth Street.

Titus-De Witt.

The marriage of Dr. Norman E. Titus, a son of Dr. Edward Coddington Titus, and Mrs. Titus of 127 West Eleventh Street, and Miss Helen Anita De Witt, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William P. De Witt, took place at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon in St. Thomas's Church. The ceremony was performed by the rector, the Rev. Dr. Ernest M. Stires, and the Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension.

Miss Dorothy Dillon, the maid of honor, wore a frock of yellow taffeta combined with mauve tulle, the yellow forming a pannier drapery and her large mauve crin hat was trimmed with yellow wheat. Her flowers were purple orchids. The bridesmaids were the Misses Marie Osterholt, Dorothy Sherman, Anne Burghard, and Ada Gibson Titus. They wore lavender tulle frocks, with the square necked corsages and long wing sleeves embroidered in mauve crystals, and from Russian coronets of tulle and crystals mauve tulle veils fell below the waist line. They carried sprays of small yellow orchids.

Dr. Titus is a member of the Medical Division of the Officers' Reserve Corps, and on June 16 will go to Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, Ind.

Wed on Lawn at Wave Crest.

The marriage of Edgar J. Nathan, Jr., of New York and Miss Mabel Unterberg, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Israel Unterberg of 127 West Seventy-fourth Street, this city, was celebrated yesterday at the country home of the bride's parents, Wat Jean Hill, Wave Crest, L. I., by the Rev. Dr. H. Pereira Mendes and the Rev. Dr. de Sola Pool. The ceremony was celebrated on the lawn and the bride was attended by her sister, Miss Doris Unterberg, as maid of honor. Little Miss Emily S. Nathan, a sister of the bridegroom, was the train bearer and little Miss Carol Rubin the flower girl.

Mr. Nathan's best man was Henry H. Hendricks, and the ushers were David Unterberg, Edward S. Greenbaum, Edward L. Falk, all of New York, and D. Hayes Solis-Cohen of Philadelphia. Mr. Nathan was graduated from Williams College in 1913 and from the Columbia Law School in 1916, and is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Lipner-Lewin.

Miss Mae Costa Lewin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Lewin of 600 West 116th Street, was married last evening to Frederick Lipner of this city at the Hotel Savoy by the Rev. Edward Lissman. A dinner for about sixty guests followed the ceremony.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Eva Frances Lewin, and Miss Gussie Lipner, a sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaids. Mrs. Abraham Pearl was matron of honor. Irving Lipner was best man for his brother.

Miss Angus to Wed J. H. Clark, Jr.

Mrs. John Angus of 52 West Ninety-third Street, Manhattan, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Mary Elizabeth Angus, to John Holley Clark, Jr., of 231 Sanford Avenue, Flushing. Mr. Clark is a son of Professor John Holley Clark, Principal of the Flushing High School, and is secretary to Colonel William Hayward of the Public Service Commission. The wedding will take place at the Summer home of the bride's mother at Pleasantville, N. Y., early in July. It is hastened because of the probability that Mr. Clark, who is an adjutant in the Fifteenth Regiment, New York National Guard, will soon be called to active service. Mr. Clark is a graduate of Princeton.

R. I. Plauts on Motor Honeymoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Plaut, who were married on Saturday, have left on a motor trip through the Berkshires. Mrs. Plaut was Miss Margaret Virginia Strauss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour A. Strauss of 18 East Eighty-first Street, and Mr. Plaut is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Plaut of Elmsford, N. Y., and a graduate of Cornell, '14. They were married at the Plaza, the Rev. Dr. John L. Elliott officiating. Miss Ernestine Mayer was maid of honor. The couple will live in New York on their return.

PROHIBITION FIGHT STARTED IN SENATE

Only Three Dissenting Votes to Committee Report on Sheppard's Resolution.

WHOLE COUNTRY INCLUDED

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The threatened fight for nation-wide prohibition assumed definite shape when the Senate Judiciary Committee, with only three votes in opposition, reported out today a resolution framed by Senator Sheppard of Texas, proposing an amendment to the Federal Constitution by which the sale or manufacture of whisky or other intoxicating liquors or beverages would be made illegal.

Senator Sheppard announced after the committee report had been received by the Senate that he would not press the legislation until important Administration measures pending in both houses were disposed of, but that he would insist on the issue being brought to a vote before Congress adjourned.

Under the Sheppard resolution Congress is called upon to ask the Legislatures of the various States to vote for the nation-wide prohibition amendment. It would take a two-thirds vote of both houses to pass the resolution and a vote of three-fourths of the States to pass the amendment to the Constitution. The effort is predestined to bitter opposition in both houses, and it is regarded as doubtful if it can be put through.

Text of Sheppard Measure.

Senator Sheppard's resolution, as reported to the Senate, was as follows:

Joint resolution, proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States:

Resolved, That the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States in Congress assembled, (two-thirds of each house concurring therein,)

That the following amendment to the Constitution be and hereby is proposed to the States, to become valid as a part of the Constitution when ratified by the Legislatures of the several States as provided by the Constitution:

Section 1—The manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation whereof into, or the exportation thereof from the United States, and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof for beverage purposes is hereby prohibited.

Section 2—The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation.

Senator Overman for the Judiciary Committee made the report to the Senate after a meeting of the committee this morning. In the report the committee stated that the time for national prohibition "seemed to be at hand," and that every means should be exerted to put all the nation's energy into the prosecution of the war. In years past, the report goes on to say, the people have waged a fight for nation-wide prohibition but without encouragement of national legislation. Any effort of State and local forces, it maintains, to make prohibition really effective has been weakened through lack of national law that would put the force of the Government behind it.

"The question considered by the committee," says the report, "is not one primarily touching the merits of the proposed amendment itself, but whether there is sufficient public sentiment in favor of the submission of the amendment to the action of the people to require the passage of the resolution.

Urge National Legislation.

"The majority of the committee believe that the minds of the most careful and conservative students of the liquor problem are rapidly coming to the conclusion that this national evil must and only can be removed by national legislation enforced by the national will in co-operation with the States."

"I shall press for a vote on the prohibition resolution," said Senator Sheppard tonight. "I do not expect to demand action if it interferes with war measures recommended by the President, but we will have time enough to consider the national prohibition question before Congress adjourns. I think I can count enough Senators to give the resolution two-thirds of the vote in the Senate. If we can get action now we may achieve nation-wide prohibition—a thing greatly desired—before the war is over, for enough Legislatures will act favorably on the article we suggest to make it part of the Constitution."

Senator Wadsworth of New York submitted to the Senate Committee on Agriculture today an amendment to the food control bill that would give power to the President to prevent the use of foods and food materials in the manufacture of distilled liquors and beers. Senator Wadsworth's idea is not to establish this prohibition unless the President considers that national necessity demands it.

MRS. REGINALD BROOKS WEDS HON. R. H. BRAND

One of Five Noted Langhorne Sisters of Virginia, a Divorcee, Marries London Banker.

LONDON, June 12.—The Morning Post says Mrs. Reginald X. Brooks, daughter of C. D. Langhorne of Greenwoods, Va., was married quietly in London last Saturday to the Hon. Robert H. Brand, partner in the banking firm of Lazard Brothers & Co.

Mrs. Brooks was formerly Phyllis Langhorne. She received a divorce from Mr. Brooks in 1915, and was reported to have been engaged to marry Captain the Hon. George Henry Douglas-Pennant of the Grenadier Guards, who was killed in battle in March of 1915.

Mrs. Brooks was one of five sisters who were noted for their beauty, the others being Mrs. Waldorf Astor of London, Mrs. Moncure Perkins of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson of New York, and Mrs. Paul Phipps of London.

BENNET SUED FOR $1,006,620

Broker Alleges ex-Congressman Owes Commissions Due on Ship Sale.

Ex-Congressman William S. Bennet was sued in the Federal District Court yesterday by George Carragan, a shipping broker, for $1,006,620, which he said was due him as commissions for having found a purchaser for five steamships of the Atlas Line Steamship Company. The plaintiff said in his complaint that he made an agreement with Mr. Bennet in April last to find a purchaser for the ships, that he did so, but was informed by Mr. Bennet that the ships had already been sold.

WILLIAM WARM DEAD.

His Plan to Cause Munitions Strikes Was Indorsed by Dr. Dumba.

William Warm, the Hungarian journalist and former member of the Hungarian Parliament, who drew up the plan to cause munitions strikes, which was indorsed by Dr. Theodor K. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, and led to his recall, died in this city yesterday morning at his home, 553 West 144th Street. Heart disease was the cause of his death.

He was born in Hungary about fifty years ago, became a journalist, entered politics, and was elected to the Hungarian Parliament, from which he was expelled in 1903 after he was accused in Parliament of disbursing money in connection with the Khuen-Herdevary bribery scandal. His real name was Martin Dienes, but when he came to this country after that incident he assumed the name of William Warm. In this country he was employed by the North German Lloyd and later on the editorial staff of the Szabadsay of Cleveland. He produced here in 1915 a play written by himself, called "Blood Thicker Than Water," which was an appeal to Germans and Hungarians to quit work in mines and munitions plants. Later he drew up in detail the plan to cause strikes, which Dr. Dumba sent with enthusiastic recommendations to the Austrian Foreign Minister. This plan, with Dr. Dumba's words on it, were taken from J. F. J. Archibald when the British seized a packet of letters which he was carrying into Germany.

Warm was the author of several novels on Hungarian-American life. Recently he had been employed on Berko's Illustrated Magazine.

Strong Enough to Swing a Man--

GOODRICH
SILVERTOWN
CORD TIRES

DURABILITY—a long life of long mileage remarkably free from puncture and blowout—is sure in Silvertown Cord Tires because the durability is built on the foundation of cable-cord's supple strength.

Made expressly for Silvertowns, used exclusively in them, cable-cord is the strongest material in automobile tires. STRONG ENOUGH TO SWING THE WEIGHT OF A HEAVY MAN.

Many threads, the size of web tire 'cords,' are twisted at even tension, cabled into cable-cord. During cording and cabling, high pressure forces all air out of the cord tendons, and replaces it with rubber gum till cable-cord becomes a fusion of cord and rubber—40% rubber.

Always cool, no matter how fast an automobile speeds, when cross-wrapped into the two-ply body of the Silvertown tire, it keeps Silvertowns immune from TIRE FEVER, the internal heat rubbed up between the plies of many-ply tires.

The durability of Silvertown, the tire trade-marked with the "RED DOUBLE DIAMOND," makes it a tire you cannot afford to be without

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Generally Lower in Less Active Session—Cotton at New High Record.

Stocks were reactionary throughout most of the session yesterday, with industrials off nearly a point at the close and the rails generally below Saturday's final prices. There was a disposition evident at the opening on the part of traders to switch to the coppers and rails at the expense of the steel issues which have been leading the advance in recent weeks, but the early strength in those issues was not well maintained. Much talk was heard in brokerage circles of a strengthening in money rates. Call money loaned yesterday at 4½ per cent. for most loans with mixed collateral, and at 5 per cent. for loans secured entirely by industrial issues. Time money was also firmer. This higher tendency is easily explained in view of the loss in cash shown in the bank statement last Saturday, and in view of the preparations for the initial payment on the Liberty Loan issue, due June 15. Bonds of the higher class were also generally lower, New York City issues making new low records for this movement. Business in the bond department has been very much restricted by the mobilization of interests in the Government financing, and no attempts have been made to push corporation or municipal issues. Dealers look for much greater activity in other bonds on the completion of the campaign to sell the Liberty Loan.

Sales on the Stock Exchange did not quite reach a million shares yesterday and prices fluctuated without any pronounced trend. Steel common closed off 2 points at 129⅝, and Industrial Alcohol off 3⅜ at 162⅝, the latter issue rallying from its low price of 160¼. Most of the other industrial issues which have figured prominently in recent strong days lost a part of their gains by yesterday's dealings. The reaction seemed to be based very largely upon the expectation that money rates will be higher until the demands of the big loan are satisfied.

The feature of the commodity markets was supplied by a spirited advance on the Cotton Exchange. Spot cotton sold yesterday at 24.65 cents a pound, which is the highest level touched in more than two-score years. Future deliveries all made new high records for this move. The advance over Saturday's closing quotations ranged from 60 to 70 points at the high of the day. The rise in this staple seems to be adequately accounted for by the legitimate demand of spinners, who foresee a short supply promised by the poor beginning which the new crop has had, and the fact that a very small surplus will be left from the old stocks on hand.

With only four days left in the campaign to place $2,000,000,000 of Government 3½s, there were plenty of signs yesterday that at last the public has come to realize the necessity of countless individual small subscriptions to bring up the total. A great many investors have until this time regarded the loan as something that did not directly concern them. The receipt of many big subscriptions in the early days of the campaign made it appear that the full amount would be quickly taken, and the publication of actual figures showing that one-third of the amount still remains to be subscribed proved an incentive that brought in a great number of new buyers yesterday. Wall Street will be glad when this offering is out of the way, for it has held back a considerable amount of corporation financing, which it is hoped can be attended to in the breathing space that is expected to intervene between the closing of the books on this loan and the offering of the next.

LONDON MARKET IS ACTIVE.

Good Business Due to Accumulation of Week-End Orders.

LONDON, June 11.—Business transacted on the Stock Exchange today was fair, due to the accumulation of week-end orders, principally the war loan. Home rails and industrials brought steady prices. Argentine rails were firm on a shortness of stock.

Explosives and shippings were features in the miscellaneous section. Mines were cheerful on the report of the Transvaal gold output. Russians were uncertain. There was little doing in the American department, but prices ruled steady.

Trading Inactive on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, June 11.—Trading was inactive on the Bourse today. Three per cent rentes, 61 francs for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 18 centimes. Five per cent loan, 88 francs.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

J. Frank Howell was installed as President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange yesterday. An unusual feature was supplied to the ceremony by the gift by the incoming President of gold keys, as watch fobs, to each Governor of the board.

The Bankers Trust Company has called for redemption on July 1 of ten 6 per cent. fifteen-year gold bonds of the Camaria Fuel Company.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Short Sellers Active.

The character of yesterday's business in stocks seemed to indicate that a short account was again being built up. Commission house comment was tinged with more bearish color than in last week's sessions and on the floor it was reported that professional talent was busy all the way through, trying to find soft spots. Steel common was under pressure most of the time after a trifling advance in early transactions, and the two-point net decline was proof that workers on the destructive side made some progress. There are bears who base their operations in Steel upon the theory that the stock for a long time has displayed a tendency to show greater stability between 115 and 120 than between 125 and 130. This sort of reasoning leaves out of account the fact that the corporation's assets in the way of cash, especially, have been mounting rapidly week after week, while business has continued at the highest level with the promise of no letup for some time to come.

Bethlehem Issues Draw Together.

The Bethlehem Steel stocks sold to new high records in their present form and at the maximum for each only three points separated the Class A and Class B issues. In the decline which occurred later the former displayed a stronger resistance to attack, dropping back only 1½ points, while the Class B shares retreated well over three points. This could be explained by reference to the sales, those in Bethlehem B being many times the turnover of Bethlehem A. The floating supply of the stock carrying voting rights is small. Mr. Schwab and his close associates, presumably, have not let much, if any, of their holdings go, and Samuel Untermyer's original 15,000 shares are understood to be intact. In consequence of these conditions, speculation in Bethlehem A stock has become a rarity, while the other issue has been adopted by the trading fraternity as an excellent vehicle for exercising their market judgment with.

Changed Ticker Service.

Stock Exchange houses are served with one ticker service, while another service goes to outside brokers and banks of the financial district. From the Exchange floor four telegraph wires carry the quotations to the distributing room on an upper floor. Frequently in the past the two services have not sent out the transactions in the same order because one might dispatch those relayed from the floor by a wire whose quotations were not being sent by the other service at the same time. The result would be the same with the order of quotations different. A change made in the last few days insures the same order of quotations on both tickers. Instead of the Gold and Stock, the "outside" ticker, dispatching quotations direct from the wires leading from the exchange floor, the operator takes his prices from the official Stock Exchange ticker at his elbow. The quotations are a few seconds behind those going to Stock Exchange houses, but this militates nothing against the desired achievement of having similar quotations at approximately the same time on both tickers.

Pig Iron Still Higher.

Bessemer pig iron was reported yesterday as commanding a price of $52.50 a ton at Middle Western merchant furnaces in lots of 1,000 tons or less. The exceptional quotation and the moderate amounts of iron involved indicated, apparently, that some steel makers were willing to pay a stiff premium when it became necessary to round out necessary raw material needed at the moment. It is possible that transportation conditions play an important part in the steady rise of pig iron, non-deliveries of stipulated tonnages from regular sources sending the steel men out to buy iron wherever they can get it. The coke market has long been affected by the same influence.

London Bus Fares.

The London County Council recently adopted these recommendations: "That halfpenny fare stages on the Council's tramways be suspended, and that the issue of ordinary return tickets be suspended." The rising cost of operation seemingly has caused the London traffic managers to view the fare situation in the same light as it is being considered in New York and other cities here. The foregoing recommendations show that the authorities have taken further action than has been taken in New York.

Record High Prices for Cotton.

Prices on the New York Cotton Exchange have steadily advanced, and yesterday, in the course of very excited trading, contracts for future delivery of the staple sold $6.25 a bale above the closing quotation of Saturday. The price for July deliveries reached 24.57 cents, an advance of $5.85 a bale compared with the previous high record of the season, and an advance of $57.45 a bale when contrasted with the low figures when July sold at 13.08 cents. Middling cotton, for spot delivery, sold yesterday at 24.65 cents a pound, the highest price that cotton has ever sold in New York since June, 1871, when 26.75 cents was quoted. The price of spot cotton today is nearly double what it was a year ago. The quotation for the corresponding day in 1916 was 12.90 cents.

War and Inflation.

It is often argued, remarks The London Economist, that war cannot be financed without inflation because more currency is wanted by the Government to make all the payments connected with it. "But," it adds, "if the war were soundly financed, and all the money needed for it were taken from the citizens in taxes and loans produced by saving, instead of part of it being manufactured by note printers and bank bookkeepers, then there need be no addition to the total currency, the power to bid would be transferred from the citizens to the Government, and the rise in prices would be less general and less severe."

RATE HEARING ENDS TODAY.

Western Carriers and Shippers Will Wind Up Case with Arguments.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—With the presentation of arguments by Western carriers and shippers, the Interstate Commerce Commission will complete its hearings tomorrow on the application of the railroads for a fifteen per cent. horizontal increase in freight rates. The cases of the Southern roads and shippers were submitted today, with five hours of final arguments by R. Walton Moore, chief counsel for the Southern roads.

Special shipping interests whose causes against increases were presented included hardwood producers, soft drink manufacturers, brick makers, natural ice harvesters, and live stock and wool producers. S. Davies Warfield of Baltimore, in behalf of owners of railway securities, urged the commission to grant the increase.

ROCK ISLAND FREED OF ITS RECEIVERSHIP

System Turned Back to Stockholders by Judge Carpenter, with Funds in Plenty.

TRIBUTE TO DICKINSON

Court Praises Receiver's Work—Reid-Moore Crowd Ousted and Amster the Man of the Hour.

CHICAGO, June 11.—The receivership for the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway Company was terminated by Judge Carpenter in the United States District Court here today. Judge Carpenter announced that he would discharge the receiver, Jacob M. Dickinson, ex-Secretary of War, the reorganization plans being acceptable to the court.

"The able administration of this property by Judge Dickinson as receiver has made this extraordinary proceeding possible," Judge Carpenter said. "This is a reorganization without sale, the property returning to the original company, and in this the proceeding is historical in the annals of receiverships. The Rock Island will pay its debts and has plenty of money with which to do so."

A meeting of stockholders will be held here June 21 and another, as legally required, at Davenport, Iowa, June 22. The reorganization plan calls for the issuance of $65,000,000 new stock in two classes of preferred. Banks and other creditors have agreed to take, par for par, stock for their debts to the extent of approximately $30,000,000. Other problems will be taken care of by sale of the remaining stock.

Financial Buccaneering.

The financial collapse of the Rock Island has repeatedly been cited, in Congress, in courts and before investigating bodies, as one of the most flagrant cases of financial buccaneering in the history of the country. When Mr. Dickinson took hold he found what had been a magnificent property all but wasted. Rails were worn out and the roadbed in many places growing weeds; rolling stock was crippled and the stock had been so manipulated and the road's resources so milked that the stock of the corporation had scarcely any value. It was quotable around 13. Under the receivership, repairs were made, new rolling stock was purchased, departments were consolidated, many economies were instituted and, under the stimulus of war prosperity, earnings steadily increased.

The reorganization plan was submitted to Judge Carpenter and the details made public three months ago. New capital and a new company from which the Reid-Moore control is said to have been eliminated are cardinal points of the reorganization.

Among many investigations that by the Interstate Commerce Commission was the most important. In its findings the commission remarked that stock of the system in the course of the Reid-Moore control dropped from $200 a share to $20; that actual mismanagement, aside from stock juggling, had cost the road $20,000,000 actual cash, and that of this more than $1,000,000 was paid as gratuities to officials of the road, in addition to exorbitant salaries; that capitalization of the road grew from $20,000,000 to $300,000,000; that the company was "bled to death" through two holding companies, and that Directors of the road misrepresented assets to stockholders. It was further alleged that the syndicate put the road into a receivership to serve its own ends.

Amster's Day of Triumph.

Nathan Amster of Boston, previously unknown to railroading and to railroad finance, took the lead in attacking the Reid-Moore syndicate. The receivership found him in control of the great majority of the proxies of the road's stockholders.

Mr. Amster was in court today. He explained that $55,000,000 of the stock was to be issued at once, $30,000,000 bearing 7 per cent. interest and $25,000,000 6 per cent. The remaining $10,000,000 may be issued at either rate, if needed, in the discretion of the stockholders. The common stock, hitherto the only issue, remains at $75,000,000.

Under the plan $17,180,000 in receivers' certificates will be taken up for cash at once. On July 1 gold bonds amounting to $12,500,000 will be paid off in cash. The road is now earning twice the amount of its fixed charges, which amount to $10,000,000 a year.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

Underlying conditions in the wheat market are very much unsettled and with restrictions still imposed upon operations, quotations are subject to quick and violent fluctuations. During yesterday's session there was an early decline of 4 to 7 cents, followed by a rally of 11 to 12 cents, and final prices were only slightly below the top, with net gains of 3 to 7 cents. Stocks of old wheat are steadily decreasing, and the visible showed a loss for the week of 5,072,000 bushels, bringing the total down to 23,324,000, compared with 53,877,000 last year. Shipments from Australia and India are increasing, although North America is still furnishing by far the bulk of Europe's importations.

CORN.

The corn market early felt the influence of very favorable weather for the new crop, but after declining 2¼c to 2½c under selling by some of last week's buyers prices rallied very sharply, and at the close were ¼c to 4½c net higher. The cash position was strong, and while the visible supply showed an increase of 79,000 bushels for the week, the total is only 3,703,000, compared with 12,898,000 a year ago. There were some complaints of slow growth and poor cultivation as a result of the recent heavy rains. In the local cash market No. 3 yellow corn was quoted at $1.85½, cost, insurance, and freight, New York.

OATS.

The oats market rallied sharply from a slight early decline, and at the close prices were 1⅝@3¼c net higher. Cash interests were good buyers of July, and exporters were said to have taken 800,000 bushels. The visible decreased 798,000 bushels, with a total of 16,661,000, compared with 15,600,000 last year. The local cash market was strong; standard quoted at 75@76c; No. 3 white, 76c; No. 3 white, 74½@75½c; No. 4 white, 74@75c; fancy clipped white, 75@77c; ordinary clipped white, 74@75c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The market for hogs was inactive, and early prices showed an easier tone, due to a decline of 5 to 10 points in the hog market and in sympathy with grain. When the grain markets rallied in the afternoon, however, a better demand developed, and prices showed a good recovery, closing at the best and considerably above the final of last week. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 44,000; estimated for today, 16,000. Kansas City received 8,000 and Omaha 4,900.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market for cottonseed oil was distinctly nervous, owing to the conflicting movements in other markets which usually exert more or less influence. Lard was heavy early, but rallied at the close, and oil prices, after moving within a comparatively narrow range, closed steady at unchanged to 7 points net higher. Total sales for the day were 22,700 barrels. Range of prices:

COFFEE.

The coffee market showed a steadier tone yesterday and business was more active, sales of 55,250 bags being reported. The market opened at an advance of 1 to 4 points, and the active months sold about 6 to 9 points net higher, with September trading at 7.98c and March at 8.27c. The close was a point or two off from the best, but steady at a net gain of 4 to 7 points. The local spot market was irregular on the basis of 10c for Rio 7s and 10¼c for Santos 4s. Range of prices:

SUGAR.

The volume of transactions in the market for sugar futures was only moderate, total sales amounting to a little less than 10,000 tons. The market opened 1 point lower to 3 points higher and closed 1 to 3 points net higher. There was a good trade demand, but offerings were limited, due to the steadiness displayed in the spot market, holders there maintaining quotations, even though the demand from local refiners was light. The market for refined sugar was steady and unchanged at 7.50c for fine granulated. There was only a moderate buying interest, but holders maintained their position and the market closed steady, with little or no open offers being made. Operators bought 10,000 bags Cubas, second half July shipment, at 4⅜c, cost and freight, and local refiners took about 30,000 bags Porto Ricos, prompt and June shipment, at 5.77c, cost, insurance, and freight. There was a sale of 6,500 bags Cubas, June shipment, at 4⅝c, cost and freight to New Orleans. Canadian refiners bought 500 tons Peruvian sugars, July shipment, at 4½c, cost, insurance, and freight. At the close local refiners would buy prompt Cubas at 4⅝c, cost and freight, but holders withdrew offerings. Operators seemed to be interested in July positions at 4½c, cost and freight, with holders asking higher prices. Cuban shippers feel confident of higher levels, and the fact that they have made heavy sales for European account places them in a position to hold the balance of their stocks without being forced to lower prices. Quotations follow: Centrifugal, 5.89c; molasses, 5.01c; cost and freight, 4⅝c.

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 8,433 packages. Under considerable pressure to sell, prices declined another ½c, and at the reduced figures the feeling is unsettled, with a tendency toward still lower rates. EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 15,880 cases. The tone of the market is very unsettled, and the feeling is rather weak even at the decline quoted. This is especially true of medium grades. Average firsts freely offered at 32@32½c, and sales up to 33c exceptional. Fancy marks difficult to sell above 34c, though a good many are going to storage rather than sacrifice. Fancy nearby white eggs about steady; browns weaker. NEW COTTON RECORD

With Gain of 107 to 125 Points, July and October Are Highest in 46 Years.

A big wave of buying orders swept cotton prices into new high ground yesterday, and the market closed excited at a net advance of 107 to 111 points. At one time, just before the close, the market sold fully 125 points, or $6.25 per bale above Saturday's final figures, July selling at 24.57c and October contracts at 24.01c, representing the highest levels in forty-six years. Spot cotton in New York was quoted at 24.65 cents.

The advance was unusual in that it was not accompanied by the large commission house trade that ordinarily attends such a tremendous upturn. Much of the buying behind the rise came from trade interests, which bought contracts to protect themselves against huge sales of goods for forward delivery. Spot people here found New England mills unwilling to bid for spots, claiming they were well supplied for immediate requirements, but in absence of new crop offers, were buying contracts in the open market instead. This cotton was taken off the market entirely, and when local traders and Western interests endeavored to cover sales made to mills earlier in the day, they found the market bare of contracts. The result was a vigorous buying movement in the last hour, and violent advances in some cases of 5 and 10 points between sales.

Both Liverpool and New Orleans also bought more or less cotton during the forenoon, and the Liverpool market was very strong, being fully 50 to 58 points net higher at the hour of the local opening. It closed firm and 51 to 59 points net higher.

Although the weather was considered mainly favorable over the belt, many bullish advices were received from different sections, generally describing the crop as late. A wire from Denison, Texas, said the Oklahoma crop was nearly a month late. The eastern part of the State has had plenty of rain, but the western half needs moisture. The crop summary of a Memphis paper said planting had been completed with the plant small but healthy and two to three weeks late. Cultivation has been good except in the northern part of the central belt, where it is grassy from excessive moisture. Boll weevil inactive. Over Sunday there was considerable rain in the South Atlantic States, and this was continued along coast districts yesterday. A letter from a North Carolina cotton man said the crop had been injured in that State by excessive rains and hailstorms. Through Texas temperatures were high with very little rain, averaging above 100 degrees at many stations both Sunday and yesterday.

No exports were reported for the day, although the talk of a possible lowering of insurance rates gave hopes of an increased business in this particular. Southern spot markets all made sharp responses to the advance in futures here, Houston advancing 1¼ cents to 24.25c, with sales of 2,856 bales.

B. R. T. DELAYS BUYING CARS

Obtains Court Writ for Review of Service Board's Order.

The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has obtained from the courts a writ of certiorari for the review of an order issued to it last December by the Public Service Commission to buy 250 extra cars for use on the surface lines of Brooklyn.

In adopting a resolution directing William L. Ransom, chief counsel for the commission, to appear in opposition to the action, the commission, in an opinion written by Commissioner Whitney, criticised the company. Mr. Whitney said that a representative of the company had admitted that the court action was taken for the purpose of delay. He also said that at the conference in which the question of permitting the railroads to charge 2 cents for transfers was discussed, Commissioner Hervey suggested that before any concessions could be made an appraisal of the company's property would probably have to be made. In reply Colonel Williams of the company said:

"The objection I have to your undertaking a physical valuation is that it will take as long as the valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and by the time you get through we will all be dead and buried."

Mr. Whitney described this desire for haste when the company wanted something as being in violent contrast to its tactics in seeking delay when it was the public that wanted something. He also said that the Brooklyn company had supported the measures introduced in the Legislature to strip the commission of its power to compel public utility corporations to obey its orders, which measures were not enacted.

3½ Days to Secure 3½%

Many people now in receipt of regular salaries or wages are deterred from purchasing Liberty Loan Bonds on the Partial Payment Plan because of anxiety as to what might become of their investment in the event of the loss of employment.

To anyone purchasing a Liberty Loan Baby Bond on the Partial Payment Plan within the next 3½ days through me or my firm, I make this statement:

If during the period of payment through misfortune or unforeseen reverse you are unable to complete payments I will take up your bond and return to you the amount you have paid in.

Up to and including June 15th the offer previously made will hold good to lend money to Partial Payment purchasers at the rate of 3½%. This gives a 3½% return during as well as after paying for the bond.

When to employ us

The services of this corporation should be utilised
—when an industrial enterprise needs money,
—when re-organization is necessary,
—when it is a question whether liquidation, refinancing or a change in management is best.

Banks and trust companies employ us, constantly, in such circumstances as these; as do also men who have a substantial interest in businesses, the future of which is uncertain.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

The market on the Consolidated Exchange generally displayed a receding tendency at the close, although there had been a number of spots of firmness earlier. The railroad stocks and the copper shares rose for a time and Central Leather was also particularly strong early. United States Steel common, which was dealt in to the amount of more than 45,000 shares, reflected heaviness practically all day.

HARRY BRONNER QUITS FIRM

Prominent Private Banker Heads "Mop" Finance Committee.

Harry Bronner, for many years a partner in the banking firm of Hallgarten & Co., and one of the best known private bankers in the East, has decided to retire from the firm in order to lighten his responsibilities. Though still a comparatively young man, he has had an active banking career of thirty years, most of it with Hallgarten & Co. He will leave the firm on October 1, but will establish an office in the financial district and will continue to give a large amount of his time to the various interests with which he is connected. Friends said yesterday that he had accumulated a substantial fortune and purposed to drop some of his work in order to have more leisure.

This announcement followed a meeting of the newly chosen Board of Directors of the Missouri Pacific Railway yesterday afternoon, at which Mr. Bronner was elected Chairman of the Finance Committee. He was also elected a Director of the Denver & Rio Grande Co. and will assist in working out a plan for the settlement of that company's difficulties arising out of the judgment for $32,000,000 awarded holders of Western Pacific defaulted bonds carrying the Denver's guarantee.

Few men have been more active in financial affairs in recent years than Mr. Bronner, whose name has been on almost every important reorganization committee. He is a member of thirty-three boards of directors, among the companies which he represents being the American Locomotive, Bethlehem Steel, Colorado & Southern, Equitable Trust Company, Maxwell Motor Company, Pittsburgh Coal, Plaza Operating Company, Sloss-Sheffield, Third Avenue and United States Realty and Improvement.

Depository for Legal Bond Papers.

The United States Mortgage and Trust Company has been designated by the Municipal Securities Committee of the American Bankers' Association as depository for the legal papers and opinions furnished in connection with municipal bond issues bought by the association's members. This step is the result of several years' consideration. Under the agreement entered into by members of the association all legal information in respect to municipal bonds, which is put on record with the trust company will be available to dealers in such securities. A mass of opinions collected by the trust company will also be at the command of the association.

GOETHALS ORDERS 16 WOODEN SHIPS

First Hull to be Ready April 1, 1918—New Contracts Raise the Total to 30.

ROLLING STOCK FOR RUSSIA

Shipping Board Plans to Rush Supplies Overland for Shipment to Vladivostok.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Sixteen wooden ships are provided for in the new contracts announced today by General George W. Goethals. This brings the total of wooden ships contracted for up to thirty. The summary follows:

"Total number of contracts executed, 121; total number of ships and hulls contracted for, 104; complete steel ships, 18; complete composite ships, 32; complete wooden ships, 30; total complete ships, 80; wooden hulls, 24."

General Goethals's statement contained this further information:

"General George W. Goethals, General Manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, announces the following additional contracts for the construction of merchant vessels in addition to the contracts previously announced: Sanderson & Porter, 52 William Street, New York City, with works at Willata Harbor, ten wooden hulls, first hull to be delivered on April 1, 1918, and one hull every fifteen days thereafter ending Aug. 30, 1918.

"Maryland Shipbuilding Company, Lexington Building, Baltimore, Md., with works at Sillar's Point, Maryland, six wooden hulls, first hull to be delivered April 30, 1918, and one hull to be delivered on the last day of each succeeding month ending Sept. 30, 1918."

The statement made today under the date of Greenwich, Conn., to the effect that General Goethals had awarded a $10,000,000 contract to the firm of Terry & Tench of New York is correct, although this is not a new award. This was made about May 20, when it was first expected that these vessels would be constructed at Moss Point, Miss., but the place of construction is now announced to be near Savannah, Ga.

The United States Shipping Board today announced further allotments of steamships to Governments allied with the United States in the war. The Italian Government will receive the former German steamships Ida, 3,093 net tons; Dora, of 4,536 net tons; Rhaetia, 4,141 net tons; Prinz Oskar, 3,777 net tons, and Magdeburg, 2,976 net tons, on time trip charters.

The allotment of the former German steamship Ockenfels, 3,452 net tons, to the French Government on a trip time charter is also announced. The Arcadia is ready for assignment, but has not yet been designated. The Shipping Board is in receipt of a telegram from Special Agent Pillsbury, now on the Pacific Coast, saying that, with the approval of the board, the names of the five German sailing vessels taken over and put in service will be changed. The proposition is to give these five sailing vessels names borne by the famous clipper ships of the fifties, which carried the United States flag to all parts of the world. The board looks with favor on the idea, and the names will be selected accordingly, and it is possible that this plan will be carried out as regards any other sailing vessels that are taken over or purchased. Typical American names are to be given the four German steamers now being repaired.

Information was obtained here today that the Russian Government had American orders placed for 500 locomotives and 10,000 cars for use on its railroad systems, and that the Shipping Board was trying to arrange for their shipment as soon as completed from Seattle to Vladivostock. This is in addition to 100 locomotives and 7,000 cars, which Russia contracted for through England, and which the representatives of the latter country want the United States shipping authorities to take over.

Russia, it is said, is also prepared to place another contract for 500 locomotives and 10,000 cars if the transportation facilities can be arranged. Most of the locomotives and cars are needed for the Trans-Siberian Railroad system and for the carrying of supplies to the Russian armies on the eastern battle front. American engineers who have gone to Russia to make a survey of the railroad situation are anxious that as much rolling stock as possible be sent there without delay, as the lack of it is one of the grave problems which confront the experts in solving the transportation problems of Russia.

Most of the railway supplies which have been sent to Russia under the old contracts have gone by way of the Panama Canal. The Shipping Board experts feel that a water haul of some 6,000 miles can be saved by shipping the locomotives and cars, as well as other supplies, overland to Seattle. The next problem is to obtain sufficient tonnage for the transportation across the Pacific. At present the Japanese interests control about 60 per cent. of the transpacific tonnage. Plans are now under consideration to place as many Pacific ships as possible in the service of Russia. If powers are conferred on the Shipping Board by Congress to commandeer ships, it is believed that much progress will be made.

LAY LARGEST PHONE CABLE.

Eighty-Six Pairs of Wires Contained in Line Under Raritan Bay.

The laying of the largest submarine telephone cable in the world, that under Raritan Bay between Eltingville, S. I., and Keansburg, N. J., was completed yesterday, according to an announcement by the New York Telephone Company. The work of laying the cable was begun last Friday, with officers of the New York Telephone Company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and the Western Electric Company as witnesses.

The new cable is nearly five and one-half miles in length, and is the longest maximum size duplex submarine cable in existence. There are underwater telephone cables on the Pacific Coast and across the English Channel which are longer than the Raritan Bay cable, but they contain only from two to sixteen pairs of wires, as compared with the seventy-four pairs of wires for transmitting telephone calls and the twelve pairs of wires for testing purposes which are in the Raritan Bay cable. Recently the New York Telephone Company laid a submarine cable of the same capacity, but not so long, across the Hudson River between Tarrytown and Nyack.

Besides completing a new all-cable toll line fifty miles long between New York City and Spring Lake, N. J., the new submarine cable increases the number of circuits available for handling telephone traffic from New York and Newark to telephone central offices in Monmouth and Ocean Counties, N. J., and materially improves the transmission qualities of these circuits. Some of the larger communities served by this toll line are Asbury Park, Long Branch, Red Bank, and Sea Bright.

Hats and Parasols to Match.

Dealers in fancy ginghams are selling light open checks in delicate colors to be made up into garden hats and parasols to match. The hats are simple, in the order of the shade hat, and the parasol is of plain shape, with simple wood handle, light in tone as a rule. The combination is pretty, worn on Summer mornings with a white frock in the country or at the sea shore.

Few Fancies in Dress Goods.

Dress goods factors believe that, until normal conditions return, there will be few goods placed on the market in the nature of fancies. The Fall demand has been strictly on staple goods such as poiret twills, tricotines, poplins, and serges. Sellers reason out that in confining themselves to staples they are running less risk. In event of a sudden change, a fair percentage can always be realized on merchandise of the ordinary variety, whereas fancy goods might have to be sacrificed at very large reductions.

Burlap Shipments Very Small.

Burlaps continue to attract a strong demand, with spot supplies low and much smaller shipments than usual. The report for May shows that only 42,000,000 pounds were received on the East and West coasts of this country and Canada. This is said to be the first time that the receipts have been bulked, and shipments for the East coast have ordinarily exceeded the combined figures by from 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 pounds. Prices quoted yesterday were as follows: 10 ounces, 12.50 cents; 10½ ounces, 12.75 cents; 7½ ounces, 9.50 cents, and 8 ounces, 9.75 cents.

Form-Fitting Soft Collars.

The form fit idea, brought out by a leading shirt and collar concern, has been carried out in soft collars upon which the first orders are now being taken. The advantage claimed for the design is that the shaping of the collar band to fit over the shoulder eliminates the unsightly wrinkling that appears soon after the old type collar has been put on. Another feature to the new soft collar design is the use of a collar button to bring the fronts together where formerly a button was placed.

Trend Toward Wide Ribbons.

In two weeks' time the ribbon trade will be called upon to supply the needs of the milliners. Lines are now prepared for the buyers, but manufacturers naturally do not want to say much about what they have to present. Some general information is forthcoming, however, and the trend is expected to bring wide ribbons into more general use. It is predicted that 40, 50, and 54 ligne goods will be largely sought, and there will be a fair showing of fancy effects. At present some business is being done on 80 ligne fancies.

Designs in Cretonne.

Designs in cretonnes run largely to the Chinese and Oriental which are popular. An attempt has been made to bring in Egyptian designs, but they are less well known, are more or less crude and do not harmonize with the furnishings of the average home when they are used for upholsteries or draperies. One of the attractive designs in cretonne among those just out is semi-Japanese. There is a trellis with the Japanese cherry blossoms, and a gray little bird perches at intervals in different postures throughout the pattern. The design comes in different combinations of colors.

For the Stout Collar Wearer.

Quite a good deal of trouble has been experienced by haberdashers in fitting their stout customers with soft collars. Allowances have to be made in these collars for shrinkage. When the stout party finds that his size 17 slightly overlaps his collar button when he first puts it on, he objects. The fact of the matter is, however, that soft collars are not laundered by the makers, because the finish which the retailers desire would be lost. Consequently when they are washed there is a shrinkage. In the case of a size 17 one inch is lost, and the stout party must take this into account.

Silk for the Civilian Trade.

Quite a little interest has been aroused in the silk trade by the suggestion that silk may be substituted in a number of cases for more expensive woolen goods. A leading manufacturer pointed out yesterday that, besides the fact that a silk dress of good quality can be bought more cheaply than a woolen one, the garment manufacturer may decide to use more silk because he will have more assurance of being able to fill his orders as war time conditions will not affect his source of supply. The garment maker, he stated, will realize the uncertainty of production based in a large part on any other material than silk.

Suit Demand on Normal Basis.

Although the Fall buying is not well under way as yet, factors in the garment trade have not much complaint to make over the outlook. From the road the orders are being put in for one garment of a size. This, however, is the usual practice of the buyers at this time, and the trade is considered to be in fairly normal shape. What makes the manufacturers believe that Fall business will be up to the mark is that the lines being shown reflect the spirit of the time. "Safe and sane" merchandise, according to one man, is the order of the day. The trade is expected to become active within a month.

Prices on Gray Goods Withdrawn.

Owing to the rise in cotton yesterday afternoon prices on gray goods were withdrawn. This action came as the climax of a day of very active trading, with price increases almost all along the line. The aggregate sales reached an unusually large volume. For July-August delivery of 38½-inch, 64-60s, 10 cents was asked, and for the same construction for shipments, July to January, the price was 9¾ cents. There were sales of 60-48s at 8½ cents and 12½ cents was paid for August-September delivery of 72-76s. Eighty squares for this and next month sold at 13½ cents. Following were the quotations before prices were withdrawn:

FORMS BROOKLYN CHAMBER.

Manufacturers' Association of Borough Broadens Scope.

The Manufacturers' Association of Brooklyn voted yesterday to broaden its scope by changing its title to Chamber of Commerce of Brooklyn. The association, which is more than twenty-three years old, has been active in advocating the Brooklyn spirit, "One for all, all for one, and every one for Brooklyn."

To proselyte or contribute to the elimination of organizations having fields of operation in which they are needed and fitted to serve, would not be any part of the plan of the chamber it was said yesterday. Its desire is to continue its regular line of work and advocate vigorously a unification of effort wherever practicable on the part of individuals and organizations.

TAXIS REPLACE FREE LUNCH.

Jersey Liquor Dealers Will Take Care of Intoxicated Persons.

TRENTON, N. J., June 11.—In an effort to check prohibition and local option sentiment, the Mercer County Liquor Dealers' Association announced today that henceforth free lunches will be eliminated in saloons and hotels in the county and liquor will be refused to intoxicated persons, who will be sent home in taxicabs at the expense of the Liquor Dealers' Association.

In addition, the request of any member of a family not to sell to another member will be obeyed. The sale of cheap whisky will be forbidden and beer will be limited to fourteen-ounce glasses.

Why Oriental Goods Cost More.

While there is a large preponderance of Oriental goods on the market owing to the inability to get goods from other places, the dealers in these goods are having their own troubles. A big Japanese wholesale house which has been doing business over 40 years in this city says that the increase in the cost of shipping is phenomenal even in these troubled times. Freight on merchandise which formerly was $2.50 a ton now costs from $30 to $40. England having withdrawn her lines from her home ports to her colonies, the Japanese steamship lines running hitherto directly between Japan and this country are now picking up the ports England has dropped, hence the difficulty of getting freight service and the increased cost. This adds to the prices of goods.

BUSINESS RECORDS

In Town.

KENNEDY, MITCHELL & CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., 35 Wall Street, by these creditors: Frederic A. De Pelis of Mattoon, Va., $20,000, for salary and expenses; Mutual Alliance Trust Company, $1,362, and George P. Pratt of Chicago, $200.

KING, DAVIDSON & CO., INC.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against King, Davidson & Co., Inc., manufacturers of dresses, 151 West 30th Street, by these creditors: K. A. Abbott, $500; M. A. Doody, $10, and Henry Greenstein, $100. It was alleged that the corporation had transferred its assets. Judge Manton appointed Myles Purvin receiver, in bond of $10,000. Liabilities are $40,000, and assets $20,000.

LORETTA CORPORATION.—Judge Manton has appointed James A. Foley receiver of the Loretta Corporation of 54 Canal Street, in bond of $2,500. It was organized in 1914 to take over the assets of Meyer Jarmulowsky, private banker, who had arranged a composition with his creditors. It is alleged that the whereabouts of Meyer Jarmulowsky are unknown. The company was managed by a brother, Harry Jarmulowsky, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on May 11, and a receiver was appointed. The assets consist of a great many parcels of real estate.

MAX PSATY.—Judge Manton has appointed E. Bright Wilson receiver for Max Psaty, builder and contractor, 147 East 125th St., in bond of $2,000. Liabilities are $25,000, and assets $4,000.

PEERLESS WHEEL COMPANY.—Judge Manton has appointed Paul Gruber ancillary receiver for the property in this city of the Peerless Wheel Company of Pittsburgh, Penn., the New York office of which is at Columbus Circle, in a suit brought by John W. Johnston, John Schweiss, and other stockholders. A receiver was appointed in Pittsburgh and Chicago in May.

ERNEST J. WEYLE, dealer in meat, 1,074 Lexington Avenue, has filed schedules showing liabilities of $2,593 and assets of $2,962.

CHARLES WILDER, trading under the name of Leon Wilder & Sons, has made an assignment to Moses A. Lewis. He was a jobber in jewelry at 590 Broadway. The business was established by Leon Wilder in 1861.

LONG & HELLER, INC., manufacturers of lantern slides, 124 East Twenty-third Street, has made an assignment to Julius A. Newman.

LOUIS STEINGARTEN, grocer, 265 East Broadway, has made an assignment to Joseph Suchoff.

LEVY & BAIRD.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Levy & Baird, 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, by the following creditors: Solomon Gunner, $1,000; Samuel Brill, $100, and Louis Stern, $20. They made an assignment to William A. Moore.

GEORGE C. LONGYEAR, garage owner, 41 Marion Street, Brooklyn, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities, $2,424.93; assets, $187.06.

WILLIAM SILVERSTEIN, 296 South Second Street, Brooklyn, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities, $1,121; assets, $25.

BERGER TREGDE, 441 Thirty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, has made an assignment to Martin Tregde, 3,917 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn.

Bankruptcy Discharges.

Judge Manton in the United States District Court yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts: Edward L. Bloom, theatrical manager, 200 West Fifty-fourth Street; Alexander Block, a physician, 1,541 Madison Avenue; Daisy M. Mills, 477 West 145th Street; Isidore C. Friedman, 506 West 150th Street; Charles H. Mosser; Francis J. McNichol, house furnishing goods, 2,254 Third Avenue; Henry Osborne, clerk, 1,244 Madison Avenue; Abraham Drasner, upholstery, 1,034 Westchester Avenue; Jacob S. Schuster, 1,042 Tiffany Street, formerly President of the National Embroidery Company; Aaron Speckler, salesman, 343 East Houston Street, formerly men's furnishing goods; Edward J. Mehr, chauffeur, 1,630 First Avenue; Esther Wiener, clothing, 326 Seventh Avenue, and Hugo Wald Vogel, 500 West 139th Street, formerly of the firm of Herman Moritz.

Out of Town.

COMMITTEE DROPS RIVERSIDE PLAN

Asks Board of Estimate to Relieve It from Further Responsibility.

OTTINGER BILL IS BLAMED

Controller Prendergast Says Its "Arbitrary Provisions" Make Proposed Agreement Impossible.

The proposed agreement between the city and the New York Central Railroad Company regarding the west side improvement was declared off yesterday, so far as the Port and Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate and the railroad company were concerned. At a meeting of the committee in Controller Prendergast's office the Controller declared that because of the arbitrary and mandatory provisions of the Ottinger bill, signed by Governor Whitman, which gives the Public Service Commission joint power with the Board of Estimate in settling the west side matter, the proposed agreement could not be carried out.

After Vice President Ira Place of the New York Central Railroad asserted that upon the enactment of the bill all the obligations his road had entered into with the city were canceled, the committee adopted a resolution requesting the Board of Estimate that it be discharged "from all further responsibility as far as the proposed form of agreement is concerned." The committee will make its report to the Board of Estimate at the meeting on Friday and will present a resolution providing for the appointment of the three board members on the Conference Committee, which will also have two members from the Public Service Commission, as provided for in the Ottinger bill.

It was said yesterday that the railroad officials will refuse to make the same concessions again to the city, and if it is ordered to do so, the matter will be taken to the courts. Those present at yesterday's meeting, besides the Controller and Mr. Place, were the Mayor, Borough Presidents Marks and Pounds, Dock Commissioner R. A. C. Smith, Deputy Commissioner Harrison, and Consulting Engineer Schaefer. The Controller recited at length what had happened at the various meetings of the committee and what terms had been finally agreed upon, and concluded:

"It will be noted that the fundamental basis of such proposed agreement was a present settlement of the entire matter, so far as property valuations were concerned, for all time. In other words, the company was to know what the cost of the new right of way was to be, and under the terms of the proposed agreement, by reason of the large expenditures for park and other municipal improvements, that cost was largely in excess of any real estate value which had been or could be placed thereon."

It was said yesterday that the Board of Estimate on Friday would in all probability accept the suggestion of the committee and discharge it.

State Gets $31,391 Inheritance Tax.

Transfer Tax Appraiser Clark of Westchester County filed his appraisal at Mount Vernon yesterday of the estate of the late Ernest Simons, a Port Chester manufacturer, at $1,145,313. The inheritance tax which the State collects amounts to $31,391. The estate is made up principally of $100,000 worth of bonds of the Simons Company and 631 shares of the same corporation valued at $819,195. The factory building and other real real estate left by Mr. Simons, who was the pioneer shirt manufacturer of Port Chester, is appraised at $99,975.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

An interesting deal in the downtown coffee centre was closed yesterday in the purchase by Adolph C. Israel of the five-story building at 103 Front Street, northwest corner of Jones Lane, covering a plot 21.10 by 71.6 feet. It was bought from Thomas Mathews through the brokerage firm of Leonard J. Carpenter. The property is a few doors south of Wall Street and the buyer is a coffee importer of 107 Front Street, who owns other parcels in the vicinity. It is the third deal made in the block by the same brokers within six months.

Artists' Homes in Charlton Street.

William S. Coffin, who recently purchased several old dwellings in Charlton Street from the Trinity Church Corporation, has recently increased his holdings there by acquiring the four residences, 26 to 32, each twenty-five feet front, from the estate of Francis C. Cummings. The Douglas Robinson, Charles S. Brown Company were the brokers. Mr. Coffin now owns the nine houses on the south side of Charlton Street, from 16 to 32 inclusive, and five on the north side, being 27 to 31 and 39 and 41, between Varick and Macdougal Streets. Varick Street has lately been widened for the Seventh Avenue extension.

This Charlton Street block contained some of the most attractive of the old time Greenwich Village homes, and several of those purchased by Mr. Coffin retain evidences of their former charm. He is having them remodeled in keeping with their Colonial characteristics into rest homes for artists and others. The work is being done by the architects Henry W. Wilkinson and Max G. Heidelberg and several have been leased. The rear yards are being transformed into artistic gardens.

Heights Apartment Sale.

The five-story apartment house at 237 and 239 West 142d Street, 50 by 99.11, has been purchased by a client of Bing & Bing from Mrs. E. K. Gunning, who acquired it in a trade a short time ago. Slawson & Hobbs were the brokers.

Times Square Hotel Transfer.

Title to the Times Square Hotel at 206 West Forty-third Street, 30 by 100.5, has been transferred by Morris Newgold to the Atlantic Dock Company. The consideration was the cancellation of a mortgage for $159,000 and the assumption of $20,000 in taxes.

Harlem Church Transferred.

The transfer was recorded yesterday from the New York City Baptist Mission Society to the Metropolitan Baptist Church of the church property at 45 and 47 West 134th Street, 50 by 90.11 between Fifth and Lenox Avenues. The consideration was $21,962, and a mortgage was taken back of $21,462.

Dividing Old Simpson-Crawford Building.

An important change is about to be made to the former Simpson-Crawford department store building on Sixth Avenue in the alterations for which the contract has been let to John I. Downey for the portion on the northwest corner of Nineteenth Street, being 307 and 309 Sixth Avenue. That corner is owned by Lord William Waldorf Astor. It is a 7½-story structure and the changes will consist in the equipment of new elevators and a sprinkling system, with the floors fitted up as lofts. It will be entirely separated from the remainder of the big structure. M. & L. Hess, Inc., have been appointed agents of the building.

Recent Buyers.

John A. Burns was the buyer of the four-story residence at 581 West End Avenue, northwest corner of Eighty-eighth Street, on plot 30.8 by 83.4, sold by William H. S. Houghton.

Orton G. Orr has taken title to the dwelling at 315 Riverside Drive, sold recently by Slawson & Hobbs for Everett and I. Randolph Jacobs.

Judge Martin T. Manton was the purchaser of the five-story dwelling at 38 East Sixty-eighth Street, 16 by 100.5, sold by Sophie J. Hammerling.

Bronx Sales.

The two six-story apartment houses at 1,437 and 1,439 Boston Road, each on plot 26.5 by 100, and the vacant plot at 1,453 and 1,455 Boston Road, 63 by 130, have been sold by the State Building Department in settlement of the Adolf Mendel bankruptcy case.

The dwelling at 1,486 Vyse Avenue, 25 by 100, near Jennings Street, has been purchased by Minnie Berger from Hermine Roth.

The northwest corner of Union Avenue and 168th Street, 22.6 by 96.3 has been sold by Henry M. Denton to Irene W. Hartt.

The four-story flat at 354 St. Ann's Avenue has been sold by Nicholas Lopard for James Shea to Henry Wolger.

Sale in Westchester Club Grounds.

Max B. Kaesche purchased at auction for $33,000 last Saturday afternoon the Marsh cottage, on the southwest corner of South and East Roads, in the grounds of the Westchester Country Club, on Pelham Bay, consisting of 6½ acres of land, a three-story residence and a garage. The property was sold on the premises by Bryan L. Kennelly.

Brooklyn.

The plot 60 by 136 on the Shore Road near Ninety-ninth Street, in the Bay Ridge section, has been sold by Frank H. Malone for Theodore Schneider to an investor for improvement.

Long Island.

S. T. Hicks has sold to M. Sieke the tract 173 by 437 on the west corner of Jamaica Turnpike and Newtown Road, Jamaica.

The Broadway-Astoria Company, Inc., has purchased from W. F. Chappell, a plot 85 by 103 on the northeast corner of Broadway and Third Avenue, Long Island City. An apartment house will be erected on the property.

H. C. Gough sold to J. Church 100 by 177 feet on the northwest corner of Jefferson Avenue and Wyckoff Avenue, Ridgewood, and a similar plot on the southwest corner.

White-Goodman have sold for the Whitestone Model Homes Company to Amiel G. Cattadoris of Winfield, L. I., a plot 50 by 100 on Seventh Avenue at Whitestone.

George A. Baldwin, President of the Baldwin Chemical Works, has purchased a new house on Abingdon Road, Kew Gardens.

Staten Island Sale.

The former residence of Max Maretzek with forty lots at Pleasant Plains, Richmond Borough, has been sold by P. G. Allman, Jr.

Westchester County.

Mrs. Rita Earle's country home at White Plains, fronting on the old Mamaroneck Road, has been purchased by Wallace W. Lyons. The property contains two acres of land. It was held at $27,000. Griffen, Price & Ripley were the brokers. They recently sold Mr. Lyons's country home in the Quaker Ridge section.

The Mount Vernon residence at 41 North Terrace Avenue and a rear plot has been sold by James Tichborne for Mrs. Annie Murtha. He has also sold the residence at 21 South Fourteenth Avenue for A. E. Scarlett to Mrs. S. Heidtmann, and a two-family house at Vista Place and South Fourteenth Avenue for the Mount Vernon Trust Company to Mrs. Cordula Dornheim.

Commercial Leases.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased for the Tinker Realty Company, represented by Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd, the former residence of E. R. Tinker at 48 East Fifty-seventh Street to Mrs. N. F. Kilgore, who will use the premises for business.

Alexander Selkin and Louis R. Goldschmide have leased for Philip Wattenberg, for ten years, the garage on the west side of Webster Avenue, 100 feet south of 167th Street, to Nathan Levitch and Harry Jacob.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has leased for the Old Slip Realty Company (F. H. & W. J. Peck,) the building at 34 Old Slip, to Giacomo Siccardi for five years.

Seventh Addition to Queens Shoe Factory.

Plans for the seventh addition to the factory of Rosenwasser Brothers, shoe manufacturers at Long Island City, have been filed. All of the additions have been planned within the last two months, and work is progressing on six of them at present. When completed the factory will cover up the entire block bounded by Jackson Avenue, Queens Street, the Long Island Railroad, and Orchard Street. The latest addition will be a brick structure 175 by 125 feet on the northeast corner of Jackson Avenue and Queens Street, and will cost $40,000. The factory is now working night and day on a $5,000,000 Government order.

Urges Liberty Bond Subscriptions.

At the request of M. Morgenthau, Jr., Chairman of the Liberty Loan Committee of the Real Estate Association of the State of New York, President Alfred H. Wagg has sent out a call to the presidents of the various local boards in the State urging their cooperation in securing subscriptions for bonds from real estate owners.

Realty Notes.

Joseph P. Day will sell today in the Vesey Street salesrooms the properties of P. A. Fogarty estate. There are eleven parcels in all, including four corners, chiefly east side tenements.

Plans have been filed by Donn Barber, as architect, to alter the old building at 18 Ann Street, adjoining the National Park Bank, and purchased by the latter recently for banking uses, connecting it with their main building. The cost is placed at $30,000.

Dr. Franklin A. Dorman, the owner of the dwelling at 133 East Fifty-seventh Street, has taken title to the former James De Wolf Cutting house at 135, adjoining, recently sold through Arthur C. Sheridan. Dr. Dorman now controls a 40 foot plot.

The General Drafting Co. of 9 Church Street has issued a new map of the five boroughs on one side of one sheet, in correct geographic position, based on data supplied after special resolution by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

TO LET FOR BUSINESS.

PREPAREDNESS!
TO MANUFACTURERS AND JOBBERS IN EVERY LINE OF BUSINESS:

Is your concern among those who are so wisely providing themselves with storage warehouses at NORFOLK, VIRGINIA—in order that it may, under all conditions, certainly be in a position, with a RESERVE STOCK in its own branch warehouse at said point to deliver through the entire war period and thereafter, its goods at the WORLD'S greatest naval base—viz.: "HAMPTON ROADS"? It is believed that such facilities would prove invaluable.

The undersigned invites correspondence regarding three of the very best storage warehouse sites, with superior transportation facilities obtainable, in Norfolk, Virginia. Areas, respectively, 38,000, 170,000, and 196,000 square feet.

These properties may, just at this time, be acquired at prices that will insure minimum storage rates.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Pressure has increased over the East and Far Northwest, and it remains low over the Mississippi Valley, the Plains States, and the Southern Rocky Mountain region. This disturbance has been attended by moderate temperature throughout the East, considerably warmer weather over the region of the Great Lakes, the great Central Valleys, and the Southwest, and cooler weather over the North Plains States and the North Rocky Mountain region.

Showers have fallen within the last twenty-four hours in the Middle Atlantic States and New England and in the North Border States from Minnesota to the Pacific Coast.

New England will have rain Tuesday, and probably fair and warmer weather on Wednesday. In the Middle Atlantic States, the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley, and Tennessee, the weather will be fair and warmer Tuesday and Wednesday. In the South Atlantic and East Gulf States the weather will be fair Tuesday and Wednesday, while in the upper lake region scattering thunder showers Tuesday will be followed by fair and cooler weather on Wednesday.

Winds for Tuesday and Wednesday along the North Atlantic Coast will be fresh and possibly strong east, rain; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate southeast and south, overcast and showery; South Atlantic Coast, gentle to moderate south and southeast, fair.

FORECASTS—TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Probably fair Tuesday and Wednesday.

Southern New England—Probably showers Tuesday. Wednesday, fair and warmer.

Western New York—Fair and warmer Tuesday and probably Wednesday.

Northern New England—Rain Tuesday. Wednesday, probably fair and warmer.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1916.	1917.		1916.	1917.
3 A. M.	52	62	4 P. M.	56	66
6 A. M.	51	60	6 P. M.	56	65
9 A. M.	53	61	9 P. M.	55	64
12 M.	55	63	11 P. M.	55	63

Education Notes.

The Board of Education will hold a meeting tomorrow afternoon.

The Teachers' Council has adopted the views of its joint committee on the report of the Chamber of Commerce Committee on Commercial Education. It says that the right of discharge of the inefficient, immoral, insubordinate member of the teaching or supervising force should be clear and effective, and believes that sufficient power is resident in the Board of Education to effect this end. It holds that the reduction in the number of citizens constituting the Board of Education will not materially change the policy of the board so long as the appointing power remains where it is. The council has already advocated the election of the members of the Board of Education by the people. It recommends that the Board of Education should adopt such strenuous rules for the advancement of students from one grade to another as to thoroughly impress upon all students that they cannot hope to be advanced without having first acquired a thorough knowledge of the subjects taught them. It also recommends a full school day and a seat for each pupil in the elementary schools.

The Board of Superintendents has recommended that free courses in training schools for teachers in a number of subjects be offered to teachers in the elementary schools, beginning next term.

Graduation exercises of the Xavier High School will be held in the auditorium of the school, 40 West Sixteenth Street, at 8:10 P. M. on June 13.

A play festival will be given on the Long Meadow in Prospect Park today by kindergarten pupils from the Brooklyn public schools in co-operation with the Brooklyn Section of the Public School Kindergarten Association of New York.

The Teachers' Council finds that the demand for the revision of the courses of study for elementary schools is not general.

CREDITORS AFTER KENNEDY'S ASSETS

$11 FOUND IN TWO BANKS

District Attorney Cables to Budapest for Information Before Submitting Case to Grand Jury.

Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., which occupied the ground and first floor at 35 Wall Street, employed eighty clerks, and announced possession of contracts worth 600,000,000 francs for reconstruction in France, had shrunk yesterday afternoon to a working staff of three, consisting of a man, a young woman stenographer, and a boy telephone operator. During the day Deputy Sheriffs paid a visit to the offices to execute a judgment for $600 obtained by L. H. Bigelow, a stationer. Daniel W. Blumenthal of 35 Nassau Street, representing several creditors, filed a petition in involuntary bankruptcy with Federal Judge Mayer against the corporation.

The investigation to discover how the firm handled more than $300,000 received from Hungarians to be transmitted to Hungary continued at the office of the District Attorney, where it was said that a cablegram from Budapest was awaited to complete the case for presentation to the Grand Jury. Books of the firm show a deposit of $9 in one bank and $2 in another.

No word was received in this city yesterday to show whether or not William A. Kennedy, President of the corporation, who is on his way to Spain, had arrived there. It was learned that, with the departure of Kennedy the organization of the corporation had almost entirely dissolved, and the District Attorney is now having great difficulty in determing how far those who held offices and Directorships were familiar with its operations for several months past. The evidence indicates that Kennedy was practically all powerful in its affairs.

Evidence came to light yesterday and will be submitted to the District Attorney or to Federal authorities that Kennedy, in his efforts to interest capital in his ambitious financial and engineering plans, had stated in writing that stock to the amount of $5,000,000 had been purchased by European firms. At present Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., is capitalized at $10,000,000.

Among the operations directed by Kennedy, as alleged in one of the civil suits pending against him, was an attempt to raise a vast sum to employ Hungarian, Slovak, Italian, and other foreign politicians, writers, and labor leaders to enter upon a campaign to persuade foreign laborers to remain in this country after the war. This plan was launched late last Fall when Bethmann Hollweg's last proffer of peace was made. From high-paid German and Hungarian employes, who professed to have their fingers on the pulse of both allied and Teutonic statesmen, Kennedy had information which evidently convinced him that an early peace was certain. On his staff were men receiving salaries from $10,000 to $25,000 a year. On their reports that the German peace offer was certain to be accepted, Kennedy either went himself or sent agents to some of the largest industrial corporations in the United States to win subscriptions to keep alien workmen in this country.

Talked with Henry Ford.

Frederick A. De Pilis, a former employe of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., alleged in a suit for salary and commissions against the firm that Kennedy has personally had a long interview with Henry Ford at Detroit on this subject and that his representatives laid the plan before officers of Armour & Co. in Chicago and before steel manufacturers and other large employers of labor. Nothing has been found to show whether any considerable sum of money was raised to finance this program.

District Attorney Swann sent a cablegram to Copenhagen to be forwarded to the Hungarian Banking and Trading Company of Budapest, asking that firm whether Peter Nemeth, a Vice President of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., had the power of attorney to sign his name for the Hungarian concern. If this cablegram is answered in the negative, the District Attorney will proceed at once to the Grand Jury with the books and accounts of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co. because of the failure to account for more than $300,000 intrusted to the firm to be forwarded to Hungary. Various explanations have been made to the District Attorney of the failure of the books to account for this sum. One is that the money was carried to Hungary by messengers. Another was that Kennedy had taken $350,000 with him on his present trip to settle his Hungarian accounts. Another was that the $350,000 was turned over to the Hungarian Banking and Trading Company in the form of stock in Kennedy, Mitchell & Co.

If this transfer of stock took place, it was done on the authority of Peter Nemeth, acting for the Hungarian firm, acording to a statement to the District Attorney. Nemeth, who is now out on $1,000 bail on a charge of violating an immigration law in entering this country, has been questioned at length by Assistant District Attorney John T. Dooling. Nemeth's story was flatly contradicted yesterday by his private secretary, now living in another State, but who visited the District Attorney's office. He said he had handled all the correspondence between Nemeth and the Hungarian concern until early this year and that the Hungarian Banking and Trading Company had absolutely refused to make any purchases of stock, but agreed to take stock at the end of the war if Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., had in the meantime made a success. As it is not certain that the cablegram to Budapest, which would have to travel through Germany, will ever arrive at its destination, or that an answer will be received, this testimony may be used as a substitute.

The sudden collapse of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., did not surprise Wall Street, where it had been known for weeks that the resources of the firm were exhausted. The dismissal of practically the whole office force became known early this Spring, and later the Mutual Alliance Trust Company, which leased the two floors at 35 Wall Street to the corporation, brought suit for unpaid rent. This company joined with other creditors in the application for a petition in involuntary bankruptcy.

During the little more than a year that he had been in Wall Street as a war financier Kennedy had become well known. When he had a new project to put before men with money, his habit was to give a large formal dinner. Many well-known men had attended these affairs, and several prominent men, including a city Commissioner and a county official, were among those whose names Kennedy used freely as backers of his enterprises. District Attorney Swann did not find evidence that these men had really interested themselves in his plans. Kennedy, who is 40 years of age, is a cripple. Both of his legs are afflicted, and even with the aid of crutches he moved painfully. This naturally attracted attention to him and added to his conspicuousness when stories about his financial methods and his rocketlike rise in the world of big business were discussed.

Says Contracts Are Good.

The only man left at the offices who had a place of any importance in the firm is James Alexander Comar, a Scotchman, who came over to this country at the request of Kennedy late in December of last year. Comar has taken upon himself the office of dealing with excited Hungarian patrons of the firm and others who have besieged it for information regarding money they intrusted to the firm. Comar told Assistant District Attorney Dooling that the contracts for $600,000,000 for rebuilding parts of France are bona fide, and that, if he is allowed to go through with them, Kennedy will be on his feet again. He said that these contracts were not directly with the French Government, but were with a committee appointed by the French Government to contract for reconstruction work. Representatives of the French Government in this country have denied that the contracts held by Kennedy are valid.

Daniel W. Blumenthal of 35 Nassau Street, who represented Frederick A. De Pillis and Mrs. Georgia B. Pratt and acted in behalf of S. Stanwood Menken for the Mutual Alliance Trust Company, in filing the petition in involuntary bankruptcy against Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., alleged in his complaint that the Wall Street firm was being sued for $35,000 for the Nyres Real Estate Corporation for failure to carry out its contract to purchase the skyscraper at 42 Wall Street. According to allegations made to Assistant District Attorney Dooling, Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., paid $15,000 on the contract to purchase the building and had a chance to sell it at a profit of $150,000, but refused the offer and were later unable to meet payments on the building. Mr. Blumenthal made the following statement yesterday:

"All of the creditors of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., Inc., will be invited to join this committee so that quick action can be taken for the interests of all the creditors in order to protest their rights. About four weeks ago I personally called at the offices of Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., where I interviewed one of its representatives. I told him I had information which led me to believe that the statement given out by Kennedy, that the corporation had made a contract for construction work with France calling for more than 73,000,000 francs, was looked upon by my clients, who held more than $23,000 worth of claims against Kennedy, Mitchell & Co., with grave suspicion, and that my clients were under the impression that this information was given out to give Kennedy an opportunity to leave this country.

Could Not Find Kennedy.

"I told the representative that I had personally watched for Kennedy for more than five days at his office and at his home and could find no trace of him. The only answer that I received was 'It is all right; we have just made a 75,000,000-franc contract with France and we have a contract in view with the United States Government involving more than $20,000,000. We are absolutely solvent and Mr. Kennedy will be here tomorrow to see you.' But Kennedy never put in an appearance."

Mrs. Georgia B. Pratt, one of the petitioners, has a claim of $1,000 for salary and expenses in working up the campaign to induce alien workmen to stay in this country, while Frederick A. De Pillis, another petitioner, claims $21,240 for his dismissal in alleged violation of contract and for commissions. John Mitchell, Jr., who was a partner in the concern, but ceased to participate in its affairs several months ago, is now Vice President of the Havana Guarantee Trust Company. At Washington, D. C., where he lives, it was said that he was not in the city, but that he had been out of the Wall Street concern since last year.

ENDED SUFFERING WITH GAS

Mme. Marie Ranke, Playwright, Left Note Explaining Suicide.

Coroner Mills of Chappaqua, after an investigation yesterday into the death of Mme. Marie Ranke, a playwright, of 22 West Seventy-second Street, Manhattan, who was found dead in a gas-filled room at the Burke Foundation, on the outskirts of White Plains, on Sunday night, discovered a letter in which she said she was going to end her life because she suffered from rheumatism. He decided that she had committed suicide.

Mme. Ranke, who was 67 years old, went to the Foundation three weeks ago for treatment. She occupied one of the cottages, and some time during the night she made her way to the kitchen and turned on the gas.

KILL TWO STRIKERS RESISTING GUARDS

FIGHT LASTS FOUR HOURS

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH RIVER, N. J., June 11.—State troops quartered near this place and members of the Home Defense League were called out this afternoon to preserve order in the vicinity of the Hermann-Aukam handkerchief factory, following a pitched battle, which lasted four hours, this morning between strikers from the factory and strikebreakers and guards. Two men were killed and a dozen others injured in the fight.

The strike began three months ago but there had been no previous outbreaks. The men on strike, most of whom are Russians, learned yesterday that their employers had arranged to import a trainload of strikebreakers from New York and a deputation of fifty went to the Raritan River Railroad station to await developments. As soon as the strikebreakers, under a guard of twenty men, had alighted from the train the Russians began attacking them with sticks, bottles, and other missiles. Guards fired several shots in the air and this brought a hundred or more strikers and sympathizers from nearby places.

Several shots were fired into the mob by the guards, and the strikers retaliated with another volley of missiles. One of the guards attempted to arrest Vincent Sosnowski, a strike leader. According to bystanders Sosnowski seized a stone, beat the guard senseless, and made a break for liberty. The next instant a shot was fired, and Sosnowski fell dead.

In the meantime the guards had fought their way to the factory with the exception of one, Gordon Thom, who took refuge in a nearby house. The occupants of the house refused to permit him to stay there, it is said, and Thom was compelled to face a group of strikers waiting for him on the outside. He made a dash through the crowd, firing five shots to bring help. Thom escaped. Ignatz Maum, one of his assailants, was killed in the fight. Maum's aged mother cast herself upon the body and her wailing intensified the feeling of the strikers, who gathered around the body and for hours resisted the attempts of the authorities to remove it.

With the arrival of Sheriff Edward F. Houghton and a force of deputies, assisted by a number of volunteer assistants, the mob was dispersed. At night patrols in the vicinity of the factory were established.

Prosecutor Joseph E. Stricker came from New Brunswick, and after a preliminary investigation ordered the arrest of six men against whom he made charges of murder. They are Gordon Thom and James Van Allen, guards, and Alexander Tilti, Adolph Murkski, Anton Rabosski, and Mike Delkoss, strikers. The men were taken to New Brunswick, as the authorities feared a demonstration if they were kept here.

Today's trouble recalls the riot two years ago in Roosevelt, a few miles from South River, in which several were killed and many injured. The Roosevelt outbreak started from similar causes. According to the authorities, several of the rioters here also took part in the Roosevelt disorders.

TO TAKE UP COAL JUGGLING.

Report of Manufacturers' Association Will Be Laid Before Commission

The report of the Committee on the Coal Situation of the Manufacturers and Business Men's Association of Brooklyn, putting the blame for high prices and the alleged coal shortage on the speculators and the coal sales agents, was adopted by the association yesterday at its special meeting. Judson G. Wall, Chairman of the Committee on the Coal Situation, said the report had been adopted without discussion. The committee found there was not a shortage in coal, but the crisis was caused by a juggling of prices by sales agents and speculators.

Within a few days the committee will visit Washington to lay its findings before the Federal Trade Commission. The association wants Congress to give the Federal Trade Commission power to fix the prices at the mines; to determine what is a reasonable profit, and to see that an adequate supply is made available for retailers and consumers.

WIFE SUES HARRY FOX.

One of Dolly Sisters Asks Divorce from Vaudeville Actor.

Mrs. Yancsi Dolly Fox, one of the Dolly sisters, filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday for a divorce from Harry Fox, vaudeville actor, whom she married in Greenwich, Conn., in 1914. She alleges misconduct by her husband with various women during the last few months in New York and elsewhere.

Mrs. Fox, her husband, her sister, Rozsika Dolly, and the latter's husband, Jean Schwartz, song writer, all received articles of jewelry under the will of James Buchanan (Diamond Jim) Brady.

Delicious steak "toasted" Yes Sir!

THE way you like it, exactly—thick, savory—butter melting on top; tender and juicy. It's "toasted," isn't it (of course you call it broiled).

You wouldn't want it raw, would you? Cer-tain-ly NOT!

And for exactly the same reason you'll like Lucky Strike Cigarettes. The Burley tobacco—it's toasted. Puts in a new flavor, and seals it in—that's what toasting does to Burley tobacco.

A new creation in cigarettes

New, different—there is no other cigarette with this new toasted flavor. You can compare it to your morning toast when it's buttered hot.

LUCKY STRIKE is the real Burley cigarette, too—another entirely new idea. You know Burley tobacco—you've been pouring it out of green, blue and red tin boxes for years. Now get the Burley flavor—toasted—in a cigarette, and join the LUCKY STRIKE smoke circle today.

How to open the package

Instead of breaking the seal and tearing open the entire top of the package tear off part of the top only.

Cigarettes in paper packages of twenty are carried more handily this way, and keep better; less likely to spill into your pocket. It's easy to do and worth doing.

It's toasted
